EXTEND CLEAN POLITICS LAW, WILLKIE URGES

Would List Assets of President and Kin.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Colorado Springs, Colo., Aug. 7—Wendell L. Willkie today challenged the New Deal to father a set of incisive amendments to the Hatch act which, the Republican candidate for President declared, would make the act air tight as a clean politics law. He proposed:

1. That the President and all federal policy making officials file sworn statements of their personal assets upon entering and leaving office, and that members of their families also file such statements.

2. That all members of such officials' families be prohibited from receiving any compensation for representing others in transactions with the federal government.

The Republican Presidential nominee studiously avoided any mention of the Roosevelt family, whose members have prospered even in depression times. He was particularly emphatic in asserting that such a law should be applied to members of regulatory commissions, such as the Securities and Exchange commission, the Federal Trade commission, and the National Labor Relations board.

Approves Closing Loopholes.

"I heartily indorse the statement made by others that now is a good time to close all the loopholes in the Hatch act," Willkie told a press conference.

"Regardless of whether these proposals are enacted, I would be delighted to file such a statement if I am elected President, and so would the members of my immediate family.

"We all know the abuses that have grown up in Washington, abuses where members of commissions, public officials, and their families represent interests before government bodies and boards. Now we need a law which would eliminate influences on government that come from position—a bad thing in a democracy.

Calls for Details of Assets.

"Since the purpose of the Hatch act is to bring purification to our political life, I think there ought to be an amendment which would provide that all members of the President's cabinet, all members of important federal regulatory commissions, and likewise the President himself, should upon assuming office, file with the secretary of state a detailed listing of their property assets.

"Upon leaving office there should be another similar detailed listing of assets filed.

"If such an amendment is made to the Hatch act, I shall not only comply with it myself, but voluntarily will have each of the members of my immediate family also file such listings of their property assets.

Would Prohibit Compensation.

"I also suggest an amendment to the Hatch act which would provide that any of the members of the immediate family of any of the above designated officials should be prohibited by law from receiving any compensation for any services performed for anybody in connection with transactions with any of the departments of the federal government.

"In other words, the members of the immediate families of the designated officers would not be permitted any compensation for rendering any services for anybody in connection with any transactions with any departments of the federal government.

"Whether or not the amendments are adopted, I shall personally file and also have the members of my family file such listing of assets upon the assuming and leaving of public office."

Talks with Herbert Hoover.

Willkie added that no members of his family would render any service in connection with government business, whether or not the law was amended.

The Republican leader talked with Herbert Hoover on the telephone today and arranged to meet him early next week in Denver.

Willkie received a wire today from O. M. W. Sprague, professor of economics at Harvard university, who was special assistant to the secretary of the treasury from June to November of 1933. Sprague, who resigned the treasury job and returned to Harvard, wired:

"Please include me among the former Roosevelt treasury officials who are supporting you in this campaign."

THE VERSATILE DEMOCRATIC PARTY SLOGANS

In New York and other regions dominated by Tammany ideology, the slogan is one hundred per cent political and the rest inspirational under the Democratic National Chairman Edward Flynn of Tammany Hall.

W.C.T.U. Says Here's How to Quench Thirst

BY MARCIA WINN.

A nation eaten away at its core by self-indulgence cannot be strong, Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith, president of the W. C. T. U., contends.

Therefore, the W. C. T. U., as it opened its sixty-fifth annual convention yesterday at the Hotel Stevens, is preparing for a big boom in its amethyst drinks. As a means of national defense, the ladies believe, they are without peer.

Amethyst drinks, as explained by Mrs. Blanche Pennington of Huntingdon, Pa., director of the department of nonalcoholic fruit products, are unfermented liquids. The name was adopted because, in the language of ancients, an amethyst was a fetish warding off inebriation. Then, too, Mrs. Pennington [who, as Blanche Cornwall starred in the 1915 silent movie production of Poe's "The Pit and the Pendulum"] says, "It is such a very beautiful word."

You'd Be Surprised.

Already the department has published several pamphlets of amethyst drink recipes, ranging from "November Chill" to "May Magic." The pamphlets bear such titles as "Mugs o' Joy," "Teaing About" and "Brisk Beverages," and you'd be surprised at the storm of requests for them. Mrs. Pennington is, also.

"I get so many requests," she said raptly, "that I sometimes wonder if the people think liquor is put in our drinks.

"Now, rhubarb," she began, her face glowing as she watched five heads of the W. C. T. U. pose for cameramen with glasses of orange juice lifted toward their mouths, "is one of our lovely drinks. We call it May Magic, but it's plain rhubarb tea.

People Make a Fuss.

"I really can't say what my own favorite is. I love so many. But my husband is a state official, you know [superintendent of the Pennsylvania Industrial School for Boys], and sometimes I have as many as 50 to dinner. Just the first of July I had that many, and strawberries were coming in, so I used our strawberry water. We use that with club soda, you know, and really it was embarrassing the fuss people made over it.

"The reason I'm so fat," she confided, "is that I just adore all of them."

Mrs. Pennington never serves her amethystine wonders before dinner. She says cocktails have become "so common" that even her cook's family serves them. "So I've just dropped all of that," she said.

Sassafras in the Spring.

She varies her drinks with the seasons—sassafras tea in the spring, new nogs [egg yolks beaten up with orange juice] in the winter or blue nectar [made from huckleberries] with a heavy autumn dinner.

Bertha Rachel Palmer, director of scientific temperance education, is exhibiting two pots of chives at the convention. One, nourished on ordinary water, now has a tall growth. The other, watered with an alcohol solution, is stubby. Alcohol, she says, stunts rather than kills. "For if it did [kill]," she adds, "there would be no temperance problem."

NO MORE 'SAILORS AND FLOOZIES'; NAVY'S INSULTED

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 7 (AP).—The roisterous title—"Sailors and Floozies"—was bad enough, but when the navy saw that painting, it knew it had been outraged. The result was that Paul Cadmus' conception of a sailor's diversions ashore came down in a hurry from where it was hanging in the palace of fine arts at Treasure Island.

Conceding that the painting was "unnecessarily dirty," Dr. Walter Heiln, an official at the art exhibit, said. "If it were a master work I'd take a stand against shelving it. But so far as I'm concerned, it's not a masterpiece and is just unpleasant."

"Sailors and Floozies" was not the first painting by Cadmus to arouse the navy's displeasure. Back in 1934 he turned out a picture called "The Fleet's In," which Admiral Hugh Rodman called an unwarranted insult to the navy."

The picture, intended to be hung in Washington, promptly vanished.

Nazis Torpedo a British Liner Under Convoy

LONDON, Aug. 7.—The British admiralty announced tonight that a German submarine recently attacked a British convoy off the west coast of Ireland and sank the 9,337 ton passenger liner Accra.

The big Elder-Dempster ship heeled over and went down in half an hour. Of the 475 persons aboard, 455 were rescued and 20 lost their lives. Most of these perished when one of the lifeboats capsized in choppy waters. Those rescued were landed at a northwest British port.

Liner Attacked at Noon.

This was one of the biggest British ships to be sunk in convoy since the start of the war. The attack was launched without warning at noon, July 26, it was said.

Contrary to some reports, there were no refugee children aboard. The passengers were in the dining room at luncheon when the torpedo struck the ship. Capt. John Joseph Smith and members of the crew ordered the passengers to put on lifebelts and enter lifeboats, which were lowered quickly.

Warships sped after the U-boat, dropping their depth charges.

The admiralty also announced that the mine sweeping trawler River Clyde had been sunk by a German mine. About 18 men are believed to be missing.

Claim Only 30 Rescued.

New York, Aug. 7.—Reports in shipping circles here today said there was a heavy loss of life in the sinking of the British passenger liner Accra by a German submarine. Many of the victims, it was said, were child refugees being sent to New York and Canada. These reports said only 30 persons survived.

29 Survivors Land.

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Aug. 7 (AP).—Twenty-nine survivors of the crew of a Greek vessel torpedoed off Tory island near the northwest Donegal coast Sunday night landed in lifeboats at Carrigart yesterday. The torpedoed ship carried a crew of 32.

The vessel was identified as the 4,360 ton Pindos.

Nazis Tell Sea Raider's Success.

BERLIN, Aug. 7 (AP).—Germany's high command today announced a German raider had sunk 30,000 tons of British merchant shipping "overseas."

A NIGHT IN LIFE OF BRITISH AIR BOMB SQUADRON

Tribune Writer Tells of War 'Show.'

BY GUY MURCHIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH A ROYAL AIR FORCE BOMBER COMMAND SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Aug. 7.—Flying weather over Germany was bad last night and it was difficult to see any good target on which to drop bombs. This Tribune correspondent knows, because he was one of a small group at a royal air force bomber station that was permitted to see crews receive their assignments, take off in huge Wellington bombers for Germany, and return five hours later to relate their adventures over ham and eggs.

These lads had confidence to spare that they could cope with anything Germany or the weather could hurl against them. They returned one by one in the night or on the wings of the morning, lighthearted and ready to eat, listen to the radio, or talk before going to sleep. It was difficult to realize they were not college boys engaged in some intercollegiate sporting contest.

Targets Assigned Early.

Three hours before takeoff the men assigned to the night's "show" were informed of the primary and secondary targets and discussed identifying landmarks with their intelligence officers. Large maps of German controled areas and weather reports from observers nearest the targets were carefully scrutinized.

Each bomber was manned by a crew of six—a pilot, second pilot, navigator and bomb aimer, wireless operator, and two air gunners. As they climbed into their giant planes they seemed like an orchestra preparing for a concert. Their sensitive fingers played over a complicated array of gadgets like violinists tuning up before a concerto.

The controls in the cockpit of a bomber make a commercial transport plane look simple. In addition to a commercial pilot's gadgets and wireless apparatus, all of which are complicated, a bomber carries a bomb sight, bomb releases, guns, gun sights, hydraulic turrets, a flare dropping mechanism, retractible landing gear, and a telephone system that links members of the crew.

Off in Black War Paint.

At the nose and rear of the guns is a complicated mechanism, most of which moves up and down and around with the gunner's seat as he keeps an enemy plane in the reflector of the gunsight, permitting the gunner's head to remain a comfortable distance away.

Only a faint row of hooded flares broke the darkness of the field as the bombers, black in their night war paint, took off at five minute intervals toward the east. Walking across the field to watch them, I flushed a grouse a few feet from the flare path, the bird evidently being more accustomed to bombers than humans.

The 17th bomber had disappeared in the darkness by 11 o'clock and I spent the night talking with men in the mess hall. Talking to a rear gunner, I learned he has the loneliest job aboard a bomber. He cannot see any of his ship thru the transparent plastic that forms a spherical cover of the turret.

Gunner Looks Like Poet.

He feels as if he were hanging in space and the only communication he has with his mates is by telephone. This gunner was only 20 years old.

"The Germans do not seem to aim their antiaircraft guns but just fire 'mud' at us in a barrage for us to fly thru," he said. "We see all sorts of strange sights: flaming onions, parachute flares that look like the setting sun, and sometimes smoke puffs that appear exactly like barrage balloons in the distance.

"The Germans are good at sound detection and operation of searchlights. They often wait until we get almost over them and well within range of their antiaircraft batteries, then they suddenly switch on the lights. They have literally thousands of lights, and these sometimes catch us the instant they are turned on. Their favorite method of concealing a target is to blanket it with lattice work of moving searchlight beams."

I had inspected a rear gunner's turret and seen a photoflash bulb set in an emergency socket to be flashed as a signal from the captain to the rear gunner, ordering him to prepare to bail out. To do so the rear

Bill Amending Neutrality Act Goes to Senate

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7. — The house of representatives, by voice vote, this afternoon adopted an amendment to the neutrality act which would permit the dispatch of American ships to Europe to transport refugee children out of the war zone. The bill now goes to the senate.

Rep. Hennings, sponsor of bill.

Opposition by a group of congressmen on the ground that the United States might be drawn into war, if any tragedy occurred during the ocean voyages, was overwhelmed by Republicans and Democrats alike.

The bill applies to children under 16 years of age. It requires that safe conduct assurances be given by all belligerents before the ships enter the war zone. It also requires that the American flag be painted on both sides of the vessels and on the deck as a warning to ships and airplanes of warring nations.

Travel Without Convoys.

Traveling without convoys, the ships will be manned by only enough adults to form a crew and care for the young passengers.

The bill is intended primarily to permit evacuation of English children, but under its terms the children of any nation willing to assume moral responsibility of subjecting the children to the dangers of a trip thru the war zone coul be brought here for the duration of the war. Speedy action has been urged so the rescue work can begin before the expected German onslaught against the British Isles.

The bill makes no provision for handling the children. It is up to the British government or welfare agencies in this country or abroad to finance the venture. There is no appropriation by which the United States government can finance the voyages. The bill simply permits American ships flying the American flag to enter the war zone now prohibited to American ships except those in Red Cross service.

Support Must Be Guaranteed.

A further provision, proposed late in the day's session by Representative John C. Schafer [R., Wis.] and adopted by a vote of 91 to 64, requires that the adult personnel accompanying the children be American citizens.

Another change embodied in the legislation stipulates that citizens who accept the responsibility for care of refugee children be personally liable for their support as long as they remain in this country.

Representative Thomas C. Hennings Jr. [D., Mo.], sponsor of the bill, in explaining the legislation, said that it was similar to the authorization given the Red Cross ships carrying supplies to Europe.

Ships to Be Leased.

"It does not mean that this government will send the ships," Representative Hennings said. "It does mean that the British, or any one responsible, can charter our ships to rescue children from the war territories."

"This is the opening wedge," said Representative Earl C. Michener [R., Mich.] an opponent of the plan. "Just as night follows day, this bill will be followed by other legislation that will get us in the conflict unless we are mighty careful."

Michener called attention to the danger of a mercy ship hitting a floating mine and the attitude of the American people in such a case.

SENATOR WARNS CALL FOR GUARD IS UN-AMERICAN

Fears New Doctrine of Militarism.

Reopen Draft Hearings

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7 (AP).—Suddenly reversing themselves, members of the house military committee decided today to call five more witnesses, probably next Tuesday, to testify on the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military training bill. Altho Chairman Andrew J. May [D., Ky.] announced that hearings had been closed last Friday and the committee voted 11 to 10 in a stormy session yesterday not to hear further testimony, the members decided today at what was described as a "love feast" to reverse themselves and proceed with brief public hearings. The witnesses to be heard are Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox, Gen. John J. Pershing, Harry H. Woodring, former secretary of war; Louis Johnson, former assistant secretary of war, and Hugh Johnson, newspaper columnist.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7.—Denouncing President Roosevelt's request for authority to send the National Guard across the seas and into foreign lands, Senator Walter F. George [D., Ga.] declared in the senate today that a strange new doctrine—the doctrine of militarism, of tyrants, of dictatorship—has arisen in the United States.

Senator George.

"This is the doctrine," Senator George asserted, "that we must send our soldiers outside of this country to take up a defensive position for the United States."

The Georgia senator addressed himself to what he called the fundamental traditions of a free people as the senate returned seriously to the business before it—the National Guard resolution—after two days of tumultuous debate on the administration's program to create a mass conscript army.

Final Vote Is Near.

The resolution authorizing the President to order the National Guard and the reserve and retired personnel of the regular army into active federal service for a period of one year is expected to reach a final vote tomorrow. The senate then will take up the conscription bill.

Altho his opposition was addressed to the theory and purposes of the resolution itself, Senator George spoke in support of an amendment by Senator John A. Danaher [R., Conn.] to give the officers and men of the National Guard, as well as the reserve and retired personnel of the regular army, 20 days after the enactment of the proposed mobilization law to resign.

The argument advanced by Senator Danaher, Senator George, and others in support of this amendment was that the guardsmen offered their services under the present law, which permits the President to order them into federal service and send them outside the continental limits of the United States only after congress declares a national emergency.

The Danaher amendment finally was defeated by a vote of 47 to 36.

Cites Dual Character.

"We are all familiar with the fact that by a circuitous, and I should say subterranean, method the National Guard is now given the dual character of a state militia and of a national organization," said Senator George. "I do not care to discuss that, but the National Guard in every state was organized, and was continued, and the greatest enlistments were made upon the definite understanding of the law that they were members of a state militia.

"They might be called, it is true, into the service of the country in time of war, but who has the right to declare it? Only the congress of the United States. Only the congress of the United States may rightfully declare it.

"But I warn this country now that we may become participants in a war without a declaration of war. The very joint resolution now before the senate provides in express terms that the National Guard may be called into active service, military service, not alone for training.

"The very suggestion that they are called for training is hypocrisy of the plainest character and type. They are called for active military service.

"Is there a member of the senate who does not recall that in the days of President Polk the army of the United States was sent outside the United States, clearly and definitely beyond the boundaries of Texas, and in a position of advanced danger? When that army was assailed the cry arose all over the nation that we were for all intents and purposes in war; that we must defend ourselves.

Recalls Calhoun Speech.

"Then it was that a statesman stood on the floor of the senate, John C. Calhoun of South Carolina, and in a memorable speech, then unassailed and yet unassailable, declared that if we must make war upon Mexico it was not necessary that we make war upon the American constitution in the same breath.

"The pending joint resolution provides that the National Guard, enrolled for the enforcement primarily of the law and for the preservation of the peace within the states, with no thought that it ever would be called as a part of the armed forces of the United States save in war, may now be sent—where, Mr. President? Under the plain language, to any part of the western hemisphere, to the possessions of the United States and to the Philippine Islands, in the very doorway of a conflagration arising in the east.

"Senators may vote for it if they want to, but they will answer questions when they go home. All America has not lost its common sense. Men and women in humble walks of life still have some sanity left.

Calls Congress Responsible.

"Congress is now doing almost blindly the most extraordinary thing that was ever seriously contemplated in the whole history of this nation; to-wit, covering the militia, the home guard, the state forces, into the national army, not for the purpose of training—I have heard the statement so often that I can hardly respectfully repeat it—but for the purpose of making them a part of the national defense forces and sending them anywhere so long as they are kept in the western hemisphere or in the possessions of the United States or in the Philippine Islands.

"Who cares? Is it your responsibility as a member of the congress, or is it Gen. Marshall's responsibility as the chief of staff? Is it your responsibility and mine as members of the senate, or is it the responsibility of some officer of the United States army, or of the executive branch of the government, if you please?

Points to New Doctrine.

"The congress of the United States, and the congress alone, has the power to declare war, has the power to do this extraordinary thing, has the power to create a condition from which there can be no retreat, and from which we must advance steadily to war.

"The strange doctrine has arisen in this country that we must send our soldiers outside to take up a defensive position for the United States.

"I do not care who lays down the promise that we must advance to some point outside of the United States to take up a defensive position for this nation. I know the military experts may say that the best defense is an offense and that if we go out soon enough and stop the other fellow, he cannot ever get to us. That is the doctrine of militarism. That is the doctrine of tyranny; that is the doctrine of dictatorship. That is not the doctrine of democracy; it is not now; it never has been.

Urges American Way.

"The doctrine of a free people is that we will defend our own land against invasion. We will listen to the siren voice and song of no military leadership, which tells us the best way to defend is to go over on the Rhine or to take up a defensive position just outside of London or anywhere else we can get in the British empire. That is the doctrine of militarism. That is not the doctrine of a free people."

Replying to Senator George, Senator Morris Sheppard [D., Tex.], chairman of the military affairs committee and manager of the resolution, declared that every member of the National Guard "took an obligation to serve the United States in any time of crisis when he took the oath of loyalty and obedience to the federal government."

After the senate had rejected the Danaher amendment it took up an amendment by Senator Alva B. Adams [D., Colo.], which would forbid the President to send the guard anywhere outside the continental limits of the United States except to its territories and possessions, including the Philippines. "The question is whether we wish to put in the hands of one man the right to involve the United States in war," said Senator Adams.

A SENATOR TAKES A WHIFF; CLEARS FELLOW SENATOR

But the Minton-Holt War of Words Rages On.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7 (AP).—Two Democratic senators, Rush Holt of West Virginia and Sherman Minton of Indiana, hotly renewed their battle of oratory in the senate today in a round of speeches bristling with cries of "coward" and expressions of "contempt."

Senator Josh Lee [D., Okla.] entered the controversy at one point to deny that during the opening conflict between the two yesterday "the senator from Indiana was intoxicated." Holt, Lee said, had said something unintended yesterday in the heat of anger.

"He said," the Oklahoman continued, "that the senator from Indiana did not appear to be in shape on the floor. This would give rise to the implication that the senator from Indiana was intoxicated.

"I had the senator from Indiana blow his breath in my face. There was no liquor on his breath. I never saw him take a drink."

Holt Makes a Comment.

Holt, who had previously completed his principal speech in the controversy, jumped up and said he was "glad the senator from Oklahoma is an expert on halitosis."

Briefly interrupting discussion of the national guard mobilization bill, the West Virginian rose first today and asserted that remarks which Minton made in debate yesterday about the Holt family constituted "a malicious, uncalled for, and untrue attack."

Minton, who had called the family a "slacker family" and charged that the elder Holt sent a son to South America to avoid the world war draft, sat silent thruout the speech, but declared upon its conclusion that "it is a little late now to expect me to accept the denial."

Rules Restrain Minton.

If Holt had documents to disprove contemporary newspaper reports of his father's activities, Minton continued, he should have published them long since. The Indianan shouted that "parliamentary language will not permit me to express my contempt for the senator from West Virginia."

Of Holt's brother, Minton said that "I don't know what kind of service he gave to the army, but everybody in West Virginia, everybody I talked to, says he went away to avoid service in the armed forces. That's the doctrine of slackers. That's all I said yesterday and it was all I intended to say."

Holt said that if his father were alive now, "even tho he would be 90 years old, he probably would meet the senator from Indiana personally and would answer him in the manner he should be answered."

FORMER DETROIT MAYOR INDICTED WITH 150 OTHERS

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 7 (AP).—Circuit Judge Homer E. Ferguson, who has been conducting a grand jury investigation of gambling and graft in Wayne county [Detroit] today returned indictments charging former Mayor Richard W. Reading and 150 others with conspiracy to protect operations of a gigantic handbook organization.

Richard Reading.

Reading already is under a state indictment on charges of protecting the numbers racket and under a federal indictment, issued yesterday, charging income taxe evasion.

Other defendants in the handbook indictment include Wayne county Prosecutor Duncan C. McCrea; his chief investigator, Harry Colburn, and Fred W. Frahm, former superintendent of police—all of whom have been named in earlier state indictments—and Richard W. Reading Jr., the former mayor's son.

Dressed for Diplomats

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 7.—As he was considering a "nonpolitical" inspection tour of northeastern defenses, President Roosevelt today made plans to receive his running mate, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace for an acknowledged political conference.

The meeting will be the second discussion of New Deal campaign strategy by the two Democratic candidates. The first was held a week after Mr. Roosevelt was "drafted" for a third term and forced the somewhat balky Democratic gathering to pick Wallace as the Vice Presidential candidate.

Secretary of Commerce Harry Hopkins, arrived here today in advance of the conference. As the man, who master-minded the "draft" of the President and the nomination of Wallace, Hopkins is expected to sit in on the meeting.

It is believed that Wallace will submit his resignation as head of the department of agriculture or at least name the date he is to resign.

Yesterday President and Mrs. Roosevelt entertained visiting South American diplomats and their wives at luncheon.

ACTION DELAYED ON BILL TO PAY BIDDLE'S LOSS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7 (AP).—The senate claims committee has deferred action on legislation by Senator Joseph F. Guffey [D., Pa.], which would provide a payment of $243,361 to reimburse Ambassador and Mrs. Anthony Biddle for property reported lost by them in the German siege and capture of Warsaw, Poland, last September.

This action was recommended by Secretary of State Hull, who suggested in a letter to the committee that it would be better to wait until all claims of a similar nature had been presented.

"While I desire to facilitate action on the claim of Ambassador and Mrs. Biddle, and of others, for reimbursable losses," Hull wrote, "I believe it is preferable to await reports from all our officers and employés who may have suffered losses in this particular catastrophe and in conformity with the general practice have a single bill introduced for the relief of all of them."

DRUM WARNS U. S. OF COMPLEXITIES IN MODERN WAR

General Calls for Offensive Spirit in Army.

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Aug. 7 [Special].—Lieut. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, commander of the 1st army, tonight warned the United States not to let its enthusiasm and self-confidence blind it to the complex and difficult nature of modern war. Speaking to about 70,000 regular army troops and National Guardsmen concentrated in a 1,300 square mile area near here for three weeks of intensive training of unprecedented peacetime scope, Gen. Drum addressed himself fully as much to the entire nation. The speech was broadcast over the Mutual Broadcasting system.

Lieut. Gen. Hugh Drum.

The United States, he asserted, "must stop basking in the sunshine of peace and in the security of two oceans."

Gen. Drum stressed his opinion that the offensive military spirit should permeate the entire military organization and its operating plans. This nation, the commander said, must avoid, "before it is too late, the doctrines of the supremacy of the military defensive which have led to the ruin of France and forced England to face so many disasters."

Asks Rapid Weapon Output.

"We have seen a strong military nation stand in defense behind a fortified zone so long that its power, incentive and will for the offensive were so dissipated as to cause its ultimate ruin," he asserted. "Modern weapons are of little value in battle if an offensive military spirit is lacking in the personnel manning them."

National defense efforts of the United States, he said, require attainment of two corollary objects:

1. An effective industrial organization for rapid production of modern weapons in large quantities.

2. Manpower, "trained, organized, and equipped for modern combat."

"It should be realized that these two objectives must go hand in hand," the commander said.

Cites Modern War Methods.

Gen. Drum asserted there is a need to "reorient ourselves on the conduct of battle in the light of recent European campaigns." Discussing lessons to be learned, he cited the following as responsible for gaining decisive results on land:

1. Supremacy in the air, coupled with intimate and close cooperation between air and ground forces.

2. Use of heavy and light tanks, closely supported by motorized infantry and artillery, which have caught the enemy "in a pandemonium created by aerial bombardment."

3. The use of large mechanized forces.

4. An emphasis upon speed, continuity of pressure, and intense firing power.

5. Simplification of supply.

6. Use of officers and men trained physically and mentally to endure day and night exertions.

"The successful accomplishment of such operations," said Gen. Drum, "presupposes, in fact, demands, a perfection in fighting and training never before required."

Doughboy Still Is Mainstay of U. S. Army, Says Gen. Lynch

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7.—The infantry still is the mainstay of an army and has undergone more changes since the world war than any other of the services, Maj. Gen. George A. Lynch, chief of infantry, declared today.

In an interview, Gen. Lynch lauded the improvement in automatic and semiautomatic weapons which has increased the effectiveness of the fighting men. He also stressed the mobility which has been achieved in infantry operations.

While much attention has been given to bombing and tank attacks by the German army, he said 60 per cent of the German army still consists of infantry. Many heavy weapons, which are part of a German infantry division, are mule-drawn rather than mechanized, and correspondingly slower than American forces, the general said.

Pistols Supplement Rifles.

"While there are more automatic pistols in our modern infantry division than rifles, there is no disposition to arm men in the front lines with pistols, he said. Officials claim it takes a good shot to hit anything at 25 yards with a pistol, whereas the rifle is effective at much longer range.

Pistols are carried now by all officers and by sergeants. They are issued to machine gun crews, operators of special weapons such as mortars, which have found increasing use, and to all communications and other staff personnel. While a plan for arming all infantrymen with pistols was discussed during the world war, it was not carried out.

There has been great improvement in the semiautomatic rifle, now the standard weapon for infantrymen, over the old bolt action rifle in which the recoil and reloading affected the soldier's aim, Gen. Lynch continued.

New Mobile Weapons.

New weapons have been developed, including two types of mobile weapons never used before. Both are antitank guns. One is the manhandled weapon of 50 caliber, which, it is understood, may be replaced with 30 mm. guns, and the 37 mm. truck drawn gun which is more powerful but cannot always keep up with front line troops. Many believe this is where the French army failed in stopping the German armored divisions.

More than a year ago Gen. Lynch wrote in the Infantry Journal:

"The German battalion, like our own, appears to have no weapon that cannot be manhandled over considerable distances. The French battalion, on the other hand, has a 25 mm. cannon for antitank defense which is dependent on wheeled transport for its movement. This weapon seems incongruous in the battalion organization. It seems to have no more mobility and less power than our 37 mm gun. From the available evidence, it would appear to be an inadequate solution of the problem of antitank defense."

French Officer Agrees.

This opinion was confirmed recently when a French officer told United States war department officials that if the French had possessed a manhandled antitank gun, they could have stopped the German Panzer divisions.

Gen. Lynch discussed the increasing use of light machine guns, working close to front line troops, and heavier machine guns for longer range firing.

Half-ton trucks with 4 wheel drives, capable of 50 to 60 miles per hour, now carry machine guns. A modern battalion goes into action with power to fire in any direction.

While Gen. Lynch declined to comment upon the merits of the Thompson submachine gun, commonly referred to as the Tommy gun, other officials said there is a definite need for a submachine gun of longer range and lighter weight.

The army now has about 1,500 submachine guns and recently awarded a contract for 2,634 more. Officials have denied a British statement that the entire American production of 5,000 Tommy guns per month is taken by the British.

LINK WAR EFFORT TO U. S. ARMING, ENGLAND URGED

Minister Says American Buying Must Increase.

LONDON, Aug. 7 (AP).—Britain must dovetail her own military effort with the American defense program to win the war, parliament was told today.

Arthur Greenwood [top], Sir Kingsley Wood [center], and Neville Chamberlain.

The government spokesman, Arthur Greenwood, Laborite minister without portfolio, pictured American factories—guided by war trained technical experts from Britain—in the rôle of supplementary producers of war material with the British fighting forces as the consumers.

His comment, made in initiating debate on Britain's economic policy, raised the question of immensely increased shipments of arms from America.

France's Fall Increases Need.

"The need to supplement our own production by drawing upon the vast and invulnerable capacity of North America has immensely increased since the fall of France," Greenwood said.

"While but a few months ago we were placing orders with American industry to supplement the deficiencies in the combined allied production, we now need to embark on a much more extensive program which must be related to the American defense preparations."

His declaration was taken to mean that British orders for war material—now under negotiation for tremendous increases—would be dovetailed with the United States' own orders to American plants.

Standardization Proposed.

Standardization of such supplies as ammunition and plane motors to permit mass production and buying by both governments already has been proposed.

Giving immediate point to the disclosure of Britain's need for greatly heightened American aid, Greenwood announced organization of an economic war policy committee composed of himself as chairman, Neville Chamberlain and Sir Kingsley Wood.

Almost at the same time a dispatch from Washington told of British plans for purchase of "hundreds of millions of dollars" worth of tanks, artillery and other war supplies in addition to all previous allied orders.

Experts to Augment Staff.

The chief British agent in Washington, Arthur B. Purvis, would not estimate the dollar extent of the new program but previous purchases have topped a billion dollars.

The committee announced by Greenwood will direct purchases of war materials in America.

The staff there will be augmented "by experts with practical experience such as the United States have not had in the production and operations of different types of armament," the minister said.

Greenwood said Britain's shipping situation was "not too bad" and that "starvation of the people of this country is impossible."

NEW SEA BATTLE BELIEVED FOUGHT OFF S. AMERICA

VICTORIA, Brazil, Aug. 7 (AP).—A new sea battle between the British armed cruiser Alcantara and a German raider—both already battle-scarred—was believed to have been fought today off South America.

The resumption of their running engagement was indicated by loud explosions reported at sea and a radio message to a government station saying two armed ships were sighted off the Brazilian coast.

The Alcantara left Rio de Janeiro, 300 miles southwest of Victoria, Monday after four days of repairs required by its sea fight with an unidentified raider July 28. The raider also was reported hit during the fight and there was speculation that it might have met the armed merchant ship coming from port while heading ashore for repairs.

Germany Holds Up Trains Taking Refugees to France

VICHY, France, Aug. 7 (AP).—Repatriation of refugees from Belgium and Lorraine was suspended today as a result of German refusal to allow passage of refugee trains into occupied France. The German action was understood to be a temporary measure. Mail service between occupied and unoccupied France has been suspended for several days.

Society Girl Missing

MISS PATRICIA CAIN.

Melrose, Mass., Aug. 7 (AP). — Patricia Cain, 21 years old, missing daughter of a wealthy food manufacturer, apparently was traced to Andover, 20 miles from her home, today thru a Concord, N. H., physician.

Dr. Jules Weinberg told police that early Monday morning, the day after Miss Cain disappeared, he stopped his car in nearby Wakefield and picked up a girl who was asking a ride. The girl, he added, closely fitted a description of Miss Cain.

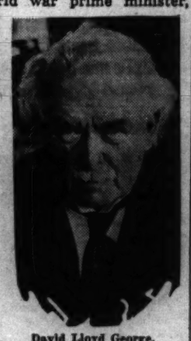
Dr. Weinberg asserted that he and another Concord physician, who accompanied him, "thought the girl was acting oddly" and that they told her she should go home. She told them, he continued, that she was going only to the next town, Andover, where she left the car.

Members of her family said Miss Cain had been offered a position as councilor in a girls' camp at Suncook, N. H., several miles north of Andover, but an investigation by New Hampshire state police established that she had not reported at the camp.

WORLD FACES BIG TEMPEST, SAYS LLOYD GEORGE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 7.—David Lloyd George, world war prime minister, in a broadcast to the Welsh people tonight warned his hearers that "storm clouds gathering over the country and the empire are now assuming a darker and more threatening purple, not only over our own land but in many quarters of the globe."



David Lloyd George.

He said there were signs "that such a tempest as Britain has never before encountered was about to break upon her and all she stands for."

He said he was sure Britain "would pass thru this hurricane fearless and erect, and will emerge from its rage mightier and more honored than ever for the good of mankind."

ARMY ARSENALS ORDERED TO USE 3 DAILY SHIFTS

Employes to Work 48 Hr. Week in Six Plants.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7 (AP).—Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson ordered six army arsenals today to go on a three shift, 48 hour week basis next Saturday, Aug. 10, in order to increase production of munitions at least 65 per cent.

The war department chief said the arrangement was authorized temporarily in order to obtain maximum production of needed war supplies from the six establishments. The order was issued after conferences with Sidney Hillman, labor member of the national defense commission, Stimson said, and it was approved by President Roosevelt.

Will Get Time and a Half.

Officials asserted the step would make possible the employment in the arsenals of more than 8,000 additional skilled mechanics. Possibly twice that number of additional semi-skilled and unskilled personnel would be employed, they said.

While the program is in effect laborers and mechanics will be paid time and a half for time worked over 40 hours per week. There will be three shifts of eight hours per day, six days a week.

Frankford Employs 4,700.

This will apply to laborers and mechanics at the following plants:

Rock Island arsenal, Rock Island, Ill., which now has approximately 5,500 employés.

Watertown arsenal, Watertown, Mass., which now has approximately 2,200 employés.

Frankford arsenal, Philadelphia, Pa., which now has approximately 4,700 employés.

Picatinny arsenal, Dover, N. J., which now has approximately 3,800 employés.

Watervliet arsenal, Watervliet, N. Y., which now has approximately 1,800 employés.

Springfield armory, Springfield, Mass., which now has approximately 3,200 employés.

Officials said that the number of shifts now being worked varied in different arsenals, and sometimes in different departments of a given arsenal.

Will Ask Tank Bids.

Rock Island, Ill., Aug. 7 [Special].—Bids will be asked in the near future for the manufacture by private industry of an undetermined number of medium sized tanks, it was learned at the Rock Island arsenal today. In the past the tanks have been manufactured only at the arsenal.

The medium sized tank was designed at the arsenal and is being manufactured here, but not at a rate to keep pace with the speeded up defense program. It is understood that these tanks will continue to be turned out at the arsenal, but large contracts will be let to private firms as well. The tanks are more heavily armored than light tanks and mount seven guns.

Mrs. Thomas Corcoran, wife of the special attorney for the Reconstruction Finance corporation, gave the ship its send-off by smashing a bottle of champagne across its prow.

CHEMIST ROBBED OF 'SUBSTITUTE' BLOOD FORMULA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Aug. 7.—Albrecht Douglas, 43 years old, German-American chemist of New York and his Chilean wife, the former Baroness Mahtzah, reappeared today after 20 days' absence, during which the American embassy was demanding explanation for their "arrests."

They showed up at the American legation denying they had been in custody, and asserting they had taken refuge with friends because their residence permits were not in order. They have been ordered to leave Rumania by Tuesday for the United States.

During their absence, it was confirmed, his secret formula for a "blood substitute" was stolen. He explained that his discovery was not an "artificial blood," as it has been reported. Douglas today said: "It is a substitute for blood and may save the life of a wounded man who has lost much blood. It can replace blood up to a certain point. Artificial blood is impossible, but this is a useful substitute."

ADMIRAL ON AIR TO URGE WARSHIP SALE TO BRITAIN

Interventionists Enlist Aid of Standley.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7.—The campaign of interventionist forces in and out of the Roosevelt administration to release 50 or more American destroyers to Great Britain will be carried forward Saturday night with a nation-wide radio broadcast by Admiral William H. Standley, retired, chief of naval operations from 1933 to 1937.

Admiral Standley's address on "American Aid to Britain" is to be carried by the Columbia Broadcasting system from 9:15 to 9:30 p. m. The interventionist group which arranged the broadcast last Sunday by Gen. John J. Pershing also planned Admiral Standley's address.

Official Pressure Used.

Gen. Pershing, who urged the release of at least 50 destroyers to Britain, spoke over all three broadcasting systems, the officials of which yielded to administration pressure and allotted the time.

Whether Admiral Standley himself or some one else requested the allotment of time by CBS could not be ascertained tonight. Joseph W. Alsop Jr., newspaper columnist and a distant cousin of President Roosevelt, made the request for the allotment of time for Gen. Pershing's speech. According to reports in radio broadcasting circles, Alsop used the name of James L. Fly, chairman of the federal communications commission, in his request.

Fly admitted he "discussed" the allotment of time for the Pershing speech but denies he put any pressure on the broadcasting companies.

Sarnoff Questioned.

At a hearing of the senate interstate commerce committee on another matter today, Chairman Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.] asked David Sarnoff, president of Radio Corporation of America and chairman of the board of the National Broadcasting company, whether Fly requested the radio stations to permit Pershing to speak over the air.

"Not that I know of," Sarnoff replied. "I don't think he would do anything like that."

"Then you don't know anything about these reports?" Wheeler asked.

"O, no. This is the first I have heard of it," Sarnoff said.

CANADIANS WARN OF 'HOSTILE' JAPS ON WEST COAST

VANCOUVER, B. C., Aug. 7 (AP).—A resolution expressing alarm at the presence of Japanese on the British Columbia coast was prepared by a civic committee today for presentation to the city council. Ald. Halford Wilson warned that Japanese fishing boats off the coast "could readily be transformed into torpedo carrying war craft by a hostile group."

"In Canada," he said, "we have come to believe that the Japanese residents are not loyal to the empire, but are ferociously working for their own gods in far off Japan."

He asserted the Japanese have given no support to Canada's war effort and have made few donations to the Red Cross.

OBJECTS TO CCC TAKING YOUTHS NEEDED BY ARMY

Col. Gowenlock Cites Pay Differences.

Col. Thomas R. Gowenlock, 6th corps area civilian aid to the secretary of war, yesterday termed a mistake any administration action to enroll the youth of the country into the Civilian Conservation corps at the expense of the army.

He was speaking of the new policy, announced by Paul V. McNutt, federal security administrator, by which CCC enrollment was opened to boys whose families are in the "moderate income group." Heretofore only youths whose families are on relief rolls or are eligible for relief or whose incomes are below community standard have been eligible for the CCC.

Higher Pay in CCC.

"The CCC camps were organized to keep the youths off the streets," Col. Gowenlock said. "Since the object of the organization was to keep them busy on something useful, I see no reason to offer any inducement which would interfere with the army and discriminate by giving the CCC enrolee more money per month."

Col. Gowenlock, who was assistant chief of staff, G-2, for the 1st division of the A. E., referred to the fact that the young man who is asked to join the army at $21 per month basic pay for three years, may enroll in the CCC for one year at $30 per month.

28,000 in Corps Area.

Capt. Louis Earlix, assistant adjutant general on CCC camps in the 6th corps area, said yesterday that the area's quota had not been enlarged under the new regulation. There are 28,000 in the CCC in the sixth corps area.

When the new enrollment period opens Oct. 1, Capt. Earlix said, the corps area will replace those who have been discharged or quit the CCC. He had no comment to make on the broadening of CCC entrance requirements.

SEES HOW BRITISH HURL BOMBERS AGAINST NAZIS

Tribune Writer Tells of a Night's 'Show.'

gunner must turn the turret to one side so the doors will open. If he gets a red signal, the order for a jump, he can fall backward out the door, opening his parachute. The gunner described German antiaircraft fire as "uncomfortable at 11,000 feet" but said the British crews paid little attention to it.

When the bombers began to return, we could hear the squadron commander on the station radio talking to the pilots, calmly guiding them to a safe landing. One bomber pilot reported his hydraulic apparatus out of order and could not lower his wheels. He also still carried a full cargo of bombs because fog had hidden his target in Germany. At the suggestion of his commander he jettisoned his bombs 10 miles off the coast before attempting to land. Fortunately he was able to lower the wheel by hand and bring in the ship undamaged.

Some Bring Back All Bombs.

Several bombers brought back all their bombs because, in the words of the commander, "We are proud of our record of bombing accuracy and do not want to drop bombs unless we see a target."

Because a German air raid warning had been issued the field could not be adequately lit, and once there were nine bombers circling and waiting to land.

It was a joy to see the faces of the men of all 17 of the crews as they walked thru the station door and removed their heavy flying togs. There was little doubt that, after sharing the ride to Germany and back with a ton of bombs, the crew members were friends for life.

Flyers Tell Their Troubles.

After questioning by intelligence officers, whose job is to extract every bit of information from the tired airmen, they repaired to the mess for ham, eggs, coffee or tea. Most of them are New Zealanders, and one of the first things they did was to turn on a radio for a broadcast from New Zealand.

As they ate they recounted their troubles in searching for targets in thick weather which was "tenthenths cloud." Several saw the flare paths of airdromes, which is the most unmistakable of all targets, and were hoping to wreck planes on the ground, tho it is well known the Germans have many dummy airdromes. Only one bomber actually found a primary target and made a direct hit with incendiary bombs on a munitions factory. The rear gunner reported that demolition bombs just missed the factory.

A Crew Captain at 20.

One youth of 20 had made his first raid as captain of a crew. He said the ship got caught in the "most hellish antiaircraft fire" he had yet seen. He was glad he did not lose the bomber and crew because, he said. "I figure we are worth in the air 85,000 pounds [about $340,000], including the cost of equipment and crew training."

On the whole, it was a relatively easy night. A squadron normally encounters German fighter planes, but heavy clouds spared them from a single fighter attack last night.

[A German communique yesterday said of these raids: "British planes which flew into Holland and western Germany in small numbers dropped bombs in various places without causing damage worth mentioning."]

MAY FIGHT FOR CANADA, RETAIN U.S. CITIZENSHIP

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 7 [Special].—An important move to facilitate enlistment in Canada's defense forces by citizens of foreign countries and especially of the United States, was announced today by J. L. Ralston, minister of defense.

An order in council has been passed which will enable men of a foreign country to enlist in Canada's military, naval or air forces without taking the oath of allegiance if by so doing they forfeit their citizenship.

So far as the United States is concerned, any citizen who took a Canadian oath of allegiance would forfeit his American citizenship automatically, and suffer the additional disadvantage of not acquiring Canadian citizenship automatically. President Roosevelt drew attention to this fact last fall without making any comment, which move then was interpreted as an invitation to Canada to adjust the situation so those who wanted to join Canada's forces could do so.

FIREBOAT SALE APPROVED.

Britain's Reply

These pictures, released in London, are said to show British reactions to leaflets dropped by Germans on southern England the night of Aug. 1. The leaflets, containing extracts of Hitler's "Appeal to Reason" speech to the reichstag, were intended to warn Britain of futility of further warfare.

GIBRALTAR SOON WILL BE SPAIN'S, OLD RULERS SAY

Rock's 'Exiled Regime' Makes Forecast.

BY MAURICE ENGLISH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Aug. 7.—The speedy return of Gibraltar to Spain was forecast today in a message to Gen. Francisco Franco, chief of state, from the Spanish civil government of Gibraltar which has existed in exile since the fortress was taken by the English 236 years ago.

The message, printed in the weekly publication, Seman, and reproduced in the Spanish press, thanked Gen. Franco for the "impending conversion into happy reality for our uninterrupted, century old dream"—the return of Gibraltar to Spain.

Reference to Franco Speech.

This was a reference to Franco's speech of June 17, in which he declared the recovery of Gibraltar is a sacred obligation which Spain has inherited from the Catholic kings.

The city government of Gibraltar, the message declared, has watched enthusiastically the development of the campaign for the recovery of the city and wished to offer Gen. Franco all its assistance in the "realization of a great patriotic desire."

The exiled authorities were asserted to be eager to resume possession of the ancient city hall and take over the government of Gibraltar.

Want Special Rank for Flag.

Finally, the message expressed the hope that Franco would grant a special rank of honor to the flag of Gibraltar, "especially at the time of the triumphal return of the rock."

The Gibraltar civil government fled the rock on Aug. 4, 1704, rather than submit to the English conquerors. It has resided ever since in the nearby town of San Roque. New civil authorities were named as the old ones died and the traditional claim to government of the town never has been allowed to die.

Italian Women Upbraided for Wearing Trousers

ROME, Aug. 7 (AP).—Italian women who wear trousers and big sun glasses were upbraided today by Premier Mussolini's newspaper Il Popolo D'Italia. They were accused of aping American movie stars and of wearing costumes which not only were in bad taste but sacrificed the wearers' femininity.

HUNTED GERMAN FLYER GIVES UP TO ENGLISH WOMAN

Tells of His Fear After He Bailed Out.

LONDON, Aug. 7 (AP).—A titled Englishwoman, Lady Buckland, widow of Lord Buckland and sister-in-law of Lord Camrose, publisher of the London Daily Telegraph, today captured a Nazi aviator who had been roaming England nine days.

Lady Buckland came upon the airman as she motored along a country road near Bristol. Noting that the man's appearance was unusual, she questioned him and then marched him off to the authorities. The flyer had been at large since he bailed out of a disabled plane. The military and the police had been searching for him.

Story of Capture Told.

Newbury Burks, a servant at Woolton house, gave this version of the capture:

"Lady Buckland was out driving when she saw the man step into the road from a wood. He was in foreign uniform and was disheveled.

"She at once realized he was the 'wanted' man. She spoke to her chauffeur, who stopped the car and questioned the man. The airman was exhausted and, altho he could speak only a few words of English, indicated he had been afraid to surrender because he thought he would be killed immediately.

Explains Fears with a Sign.

"By drawing his fingers across his throat like a knife he showed the chauffeur the sort of fate he expected.

"The chauffeur ordered the man into a car and drove him to a police station. The Nazi, with his torn clothes and a heavy growth of beard, was a somewhat fearsome sight, but Lady Buckland wasn't at all nervous."

AIRPORT WHERE LINDY LANDED AT PARIS IS BOMBED

LONDON, Aug 8, Thursday (AP).—Le Bourget airport at Paris has been bombed by a British plane, the air ministry announced.

Arrow locates scene of bomb raid.

[Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh landed at Le Bourget when he flew the Atlantic.]

The ministry said a medium bomber dropped bombs near aircraft and hangars in a surprise attack on the airport on Tuesday afternoon and escaped before antiaircraft batteries could open fire.

The air ministry issued the following communique today on German air raids during the night:

"Bombs were dropped in various parts of Great Britain last night by isolated enemy aircraft, but apart from broken windows little damage is reported except that in one town in the northeast of England a sanatorium and shop property suffered considerably. Leaflets were dropped in the north.

"Casualties were very few and the only serious injuries were to some women walking in a country road."

NORSE TO STUDY U. S. BOMBERS AND FLY TO ENGLAND

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 7 (AP).—Several score of war experienced Norwegian aviators arrived in Toronto tonight to make a special study of the operation of United States bombers to be delivered by air to England.

It was understood that a number of such bombers were ordered by Norway before the end of fighting there, and that the Norwegians agreed to take delivery of them in Canada, then fly them to England to continue their fight against Germany.

In addition, said Capt. H. Riiser-Larsen, officer in charge, the Norwegians will form the nucleus of a Norwegian flying legion to be organized in Canada.

RUMANIA BALKS AT SURRENDERING MARIE'S SHRINE

Opens Parley Over Dobruja Today.

Hungary's Demand

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Aug. 7 (AP).—Hungary tonight served notice that in her 20 year long territorial dispute with Rumania she will be satisfied with nothing less than a return of 75 per cent of Transylvania. This word, it was learned on high authority, was given to Raoul Bossy, a Rumanian envoy, in a talk with Premier Paul Teleki of Hungary. Bossy, it was announced, will return to Bucharest tomorrow to inform his government of Hungary's position.

BY SAM BREWER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Aug. 7.—A Rumanian delegation left tonight for Craiova to start discussion with the Bulgarians tomorrow for settlement of the southern Dobruja problem.

With negotiations actually on the point of starting, there have been optimistic reports that the question was settled when Rumania's ministers to Belgrade and Sofia conferred in Sofia with cabinet ministers two days ago. Now it is evident, however, that nothing but the preliminary arrangements for negotiations were made there.

[On Monday sources close to the Bulgarian government asserted the Dobruja question would be settled Saturday with Rumania returning southern Dobruja to Bulgaria.]

Bulgaria Seeks Two Districts.

Bulgaria now asks two districts—Durostor and Caliacra—forming the greater part of what is called the quadrilateral with the towns of Turtucaia, Silistra, Mangalia, and Balcik roughly marking the corners. Mangalia and Silistra would be left to Rumania.

That is more than the Rumanians want to give. For one thing they do not want to give up Balcik, favorite resort of the late Queen Marie. Her heart was buried there at her express direction, giving Rumania a permanent claim on that disputed spot.

Sentiment against any cession of territory, despite the German insistence, has grown by leaps and bounds. Transylvania is the main problem, but Rumanians say that if any land is given up in the Dobruja—especially after the cession of Bessarabia to Russia—then it will become impossible to stand out against Hungarian demands in Transylvania.

Oppose Any Cessions.

A large and vociferous section of opinion headed by the Peasant party leader, Julius Maniu, demands flat refusals to all claims for territory.

These sources believe Germany would not force a settlement at the risk of disturbing the peace of southeastern Europe just now while she is busy elsewhere, and they believe Hungary would not dare march without German approval.

Their platform, it is said, is based on three points, as follows:

To refuse to yield any territory, to fight if anybody tries to take any, and to improve relations with Russia and Britain.

Gafencu Goes to Moscow.

Improvement in Russian relations already has been sought by the government, and former Foreign Minister Grigore Gafencu left today to become minister in Moscow.

If negotiations with Bulgaria are successful it will mean some territory must be given up, tho not much. Then negotiations with Hungary will start, probably at Arad, between Aug. 12 and 15.

One forecast taken seriously by diplomats here is that the present cabinet will arrange a settlement with Bulgaria and resign. Then a cabinet composed of Transylvanians and headed probably by Alexander Vaida Voevod would be named and would seek a settlement with Hungary, which it would not be likely to reach. Finally, when that fell thru, as would be pretty certain, a new cabinet formed by Maniu would be allowed to see what it could do.

ARRESTED AS PURSE THIEF.

Lee Smye, 15 years old, colored, was arrested last night shortly after he allegedly snatched a purse from Mrs. Eva Richman, 1245 South Homan avenue, in front of 619 West 13th street. Lee told police his home is in Memphis, Tenn.

RUMANIA PASSES SEVERE NEW LAW AGAINST ITS JEWS

Favors Only Front Line Vets of World War.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Aug. 7 (AP).—The Rumanian cabinet tonight promulgated a new Jewish law which was a major step in this country's adoption of Nazi ideas.

The law separates Rumania's 750,000 Jews in three categories.

To the first—Jews who have fought in the front line for Rumania, and their descendants—are accorded some of the rights of Christians. Those of this class who hold public office may keep their jobs, but no new appointments will be made.

Others Barred From Office.

Jews in the second and third categories—those in regions annexed to Rumania after the world war and those of the old Rumania who never were in active combat for the fatherland—are barred from public office, from professions "having direct liaison with the public authority," and from operating cafés, tobacco shops, movie theaters and many other enterprises.

All Jews are prohibited from owning farms or other rural lands. Those now owning such properties will lose them to the government and be recompensed with bonds.

Bar Some from Army.

Jews in the second and third categories are barred from military service. In place of such service there will be a special tax payable in cash or labor on public works.

Jews likewise are excluded from the Rumanian youth organization. This places the status of Jewish School children in question, since all school children must be members.

[The official Hungarian newspaper Uj Magyarsag yesterday advocated another Jewish law for Hungary. It paper suggested economic measures against Jews be so intensified that Jews would voluntarily leave "out of the knowledge that they cannot prosper as heretofore."]

HITLER FLIES TO ESSEN TO HONOR KRUPP, ARMS MAKER, ON BIRTHDAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 7.—Adolf Hitler and his aids today sought to emphasize the closeness between the government and German industry. Hitler personally congratulated Gustav Krupp von Bohlen und Hallbach, the chief of Germany's giant arms concerns, on his 70th birthday. Hitler flew to Essen and presented the golden badge of the Nazi party to the manufacturer.

Gustav Krupp.

Walther Funk, Germany's minister of economics, gave Krupp the German eagle shield, bearing the inscription, "To the Economic Leader of Germany." Dr. Fritz Todt, minister for armaments and ammunition, presented the first "war service medal of the first class" to Krupp. A bust of Hitler was given to the manufacturer in the name of Rudolf Hess, deputy leader of the Nazi party.

ITALIANS OCCUPY ZEILA, BRITISH PORT NEAR ADEN

Capture 2 Other Towns in British Somaliland.

BULLETIN.

LONDON, Aug. 8, Thursday (AP).—A government white paper announcing an important new policy affecting India was reported this morning to be ready for publication this afternoon.

Secretary for India L. S. Avery was expected to announce the policy to parliament, stating how far Britain is willing to go to satisfy India's demands for independence and, perhaps, also giving a plan under which Britain would tap the wealth and manpower of India to carry on the war with Germany and Italy.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 7.—The battle for Africa and the near east has begun in earnest, all reports reaching London tonight indicated.

Three Italian columns were advancing successfully thru British Somaliland, it was announced in a communique issued at Cairo, British headquarters in Egypt.

An Italian column on Monday entered Zeila, which was undefended, it was stated. Zeila is a port on the Gulf of Aden, only 100 miles from the straits of Bab-el-Mandeb, the southern outlet of the Red sea, and 150 miles from the British colony of Aden on the north shore of the gulf.

Capture Two Border Towns.

Also on Monday, "Hargeisa was captured by a strong force which included tanks, artillery, machine guns and aircraft," the communique said. On Tuesday, it was stated, "Oadweina was occupied by the enemy with a force estimated at 2,000 with guns and armored fighting vehicles." Hargeisa and Oadweina are within Somaliland, north of Italian held Ethiopia, and are south of the Somaliland port at Berbera.

On the Egyptian-Libyan border, according to reports reaching London, two Italian divisions concentrated near Bardia, were expected to march on Egypt, altho, so far, no announcement has been made that operations there have been started.

[Tuesday's Italian communique reported by the Associated Press said the British were "put to flight during a clash of advanced troops beyond the Cirenaican (Libyan) border."]

Not Caught by Surprise.

Strategic advances and threatened advances by Italian forces, both from Ethiopia into Somaliland, and from Libya across Egypt aimed at the Suez canal, have not caught the British by surprise. Nevertheless, it is evident from the concern shown here in regard to these operations that they are believed to be part of a concerted plan to eliminate British control, if possible, not only in Egypt and Palestine, but also the entire Arabian peninsula.

If the Italian operations now under way and those eventually expected were successful, the British navy might be cut off from vital oil fields in Mosul, Iraq; in Iran [Persia], and even in the Persian gulf.

This warning was echoed and re-echoed in the British press today, but it was hinted Britain has several surprises which may halt the enemy at a point where what first appeared as military successes may be turned into a major military disaster.

Berbera an Important Point.

It was admitted here that the fall of Berbera on the Gulf of Aden would mean that British forces in Somaliland could not be sustained. Premier Benito Mussolini "will have added to his collection of deserts" if this happens, the military expert of the Evening Standard wrote tonight.

The loss of Berbera does not mean that command of the Red sea would be passing to the Italians, he said, but asserted the danger was that Italy "will have a few more ports and air fields from which to harass shipping passing to or from the Indian ocean."

The same expert asserted an assault from Libya would be the main enemy offensive. He asserted the Italians believe "they can seize the Suez canal, turn south in Egypt and the Sudan, take Palestine and Syria, and consolidate an empire stretching from Libya to Kenya, separating us from the Turks and cutting off and seizing for themselves the oil lines from Mosul."

Westward on Khartum.

Altho it was not mentioned in today's Cairo communique, or by experts commenting on the Italian campaign in the near east, it was recalled that less than a week ago other Italian forces had been concentrated in Ethiopia and were driving westward toward Khartum.

It was mentioned then that a possible Italian attack from Kassala, Gallabat and Kerma, southeast of Khartum, possibly would be timed with an attack from Libya. Italian forces from Ethiopia possibly would attempt to march northwestward to Khartum, break Sudanese resistance and prevent effective support behind the British front facing Libya.

The risks of the Italian campaign are considerable. Even around Salum, Libya, when this TRIBUNE correspondent flew there in 1929, water for the population in that region was brought up in weekly boats from Alexandria. The desert extends for almost 400 miles to Mersa Matruh, British base in Egypt. During the heat, desert operations are almost killing on troops or any one undergoing physical activity.

Also in the Italian advance on Somaliland the same condition prevails and transportation of water alone constitutes a difficult problem. With Britain controling the Gulf of Aden the possibility of advancing columns being isolated from their source of supplies is encouraging the hope that Italy is overextending herself.

Another danger for Italy, it is asserted here, is that the British fleet between Italy and Libya is making it dangerous for Italy to reënforce or supply her troops from Europe. British manpower, too, is available in the near east ,and it was said authoritatively Britain "can bring huge reserves from India and Australasia."

Another factor contributing toward British encouragement is said to be "savagely hostile Ethiopia, which again can be supported by the British from the south."

Claim "Conspicuous Results."

ROME, Aug. 7 (AP).—Italian infantrymen smashed across the British Somaliland frontier in East Africa at several points tonight and Fascist authorities claimed "conspicuous results" by bombers attacking British African bases preliminary to a vast military drive.

Italian airmen struck at British encampments at Salum, guarding the Egyptian-Libyan frontier on the Mediterranean, raided the railway connecting Mersa-Matruh and Alexandria, and shot down a flying boat off Tobruk. Eight of the crew were rescued by an Italian warship.

Across Egypt to the east, Fascist flyers bombed the important oil port of Haifa in British-mandated Palestine, "setting fire to more gasoline tanks and hitting the port works."

Bomb Berbera and Aden.

The communique telling of the attack on Haifa, the third of the war, said previous bombardments caused fires to rage for days, and that a refinery was destroyed.

Italian flyers also bombed Gibraltar again last night.

Authorities said 337 men were dead and missing in war operations during July, bringing the total since Italy entered the war to 1,916.

The July casualty lists showed 89 flyers killed and 62 missing. Navy casualties were 99 killed and 69 missing. The army loss was 18 in East Africa. Wounded airmen numbered 109 and wounded sailors 130.

The government previously had announced the loss of 151 airmen, 610 naval officers and seamen, and 818 troops killed on the French front.

The man they shot is Oscar Kibort, 47, proprietor of a store at 6105 University avenue. Kibort, who was shot Monday night, is not seriously hurt.

The three were arrested by Policemen Edward Simons, George Hayes, and William O'Neil. Masterson was seized immediately after the holdup because when Kibort began shooting he thought he had been wounded and fainted. He told who his companions were.

FASCIST EDITOR ASSAILS HULL'S WARNING TO U. S.

Gayda Calls War Menace Only a 'Phantom.'

ROME, Aug. 7 (AP).—Virginio Gayda, authoritative Fascist editor, replied today to the warning of United States Secretary of State Hull against the danger of aggression by declaring that Germany and Italy have no intention of carrying the war into the western hemisphere.

Gayda who frequently expresses the views of the Italian government, wrote in Il Giornale D'Italia that Hull was "creating a phantom of German-Italian menace" for political purposes.

"It is evident that Hull would like to alarm the American nations with a feeling that a transfer of the war to the American continent by the victorious axis powers is more or less imminent," Gayda wrote.

Calls Insinuation Unfounded.

"It is well now to point out once more that this insinuation is absolutely unfounded, arbitrary and—let it be said with respect for the eminent American statesman — tendentious rather than provocative."

[Hull's statement Monday asked the American people to "be ready and willing for real sacrifice of time and of substance and for hard personal service" and to "arm to such an extent that the forces of conquest and ruin will not dare to make an attack on us or any part of this hemisphere."]

Italy and Germany entered the war to solve European problems and "never thought and will never think of threatening other continents," Gayda asserted.

Sees Political Motive.

The Fascist editor declared Secretary Hull was attempting to "create an atmosphere favorable to that of the objectives of American politics."

One of these objectives, he continued, was "North American imperialism directed toward a monopolizing political, financial, and economic control over other American countries under the specious pretext of non-existent threats from across the ocean."

Other objectives, said Gayda, were that of "a banking affair which speculates on artificial panic and war business to multiply its profits."

MASS PROMOTION IN ILLINOIS GUARD SCHEDULED SOON

Mass promotions to bring officers of the Illinois National Guard up to an equal rank basis with officers of the regular army for the first time in the peacetime history of the National Guard will be made within a few weeks, Maj. Gen. Samuel T. Lawton, commander of the 33d division, Illinois National Guard, announced yesterday.

The promotions, authorized a week ago by the National Guard bureau of the war department, will give the rank of lieutenant colonel to three brigade executive officers and nineteen battalion commanders who now hold the rank of major. Three other brigade officers and 19 more battalion officers who now hold the rank of captain will be made majors.

"Brigade and battalion commanders in the guard always have been one rank below those of the regular army," Gen. Lawton said. "The promotion, which will place them on an equal basis, is a recognition of the fact that the guard units are the second line of defense of the country, and should be regarded on an equal plane with the regular army."

Gen. Lawton said the promotions will be announced while the guard is engaged in the coming war games at Camp McCoy, near Sparta, Wis.

HITLER PLACES CIVILIANS OVER ALSACE-LORRAINE

Administrator Named for Luxemburg, Too.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 7.—Alsace, Lorraine, and Luxemburg were given civilian administrations today by Fuehrer Adolf Hitler, who took them out of the hands of the military.

Joseph Buerckel [top] and Baldur von Schirach.

Joseph Buerckel, who administered the Saar district after its reincorporation into Germany and later became governor of Austria, was appointed chief of the civilian administration for Lorraine. Provincial Governor Robert Wagner, who hails from Baden, was named administrator for Alsace, and Gustav Simon, the former provincial governor of Coblenz area, was appointed to direct affairs in Luxemburg.

Name New Youth Leader.

To assume his new duties in Lorraine, Buerckel gave up his post in Austria. He was replaced there by the leader of Germany's Hitler Youth, Baldur von Schirach. Since the Nazis hold that youth should lead, it had been expected that Schirach would be given another post. He is only 33 years old. Schirach started his military service at the outbreak of the war as a private but he now returns to a government post as a lieutenant. During his military service his chief aid, Arthur Axmann, ran the Hitler Youth organization and Axmann has been named chief youth leader.

Military interest shifted toward the Mediterranean, where a number of experts were said to expect new Italian moves, especially against Egype. Diplomats who saw service in Egypt assert that King Farouk is fundamentally anti-British. If the Italians score only a minor success in Somaliland, or possibly on Egyptian soil, they say Farouk might surprise the English. The Germans are eager to see their Italian allies make a bold strike.

Colonial Office Busy.

At factories in and near Berlin big quantities of tropical uniforms and tropical helmets are being manufactured. Special courses for those who are interested in colonial problems are being conducted under direction of Germany's colonial experts.

Ever since the Nazi organization was enlarged to be able to run the state, Hitler has had a colonial political office preparing for Germany's future colonial aspirations. Its leader, Gen. Ritter von Epp, has been displaying extraordinary activity, with a big staff of colonial experts and men who returned from abroad at the outbreak of the war working under his orders.

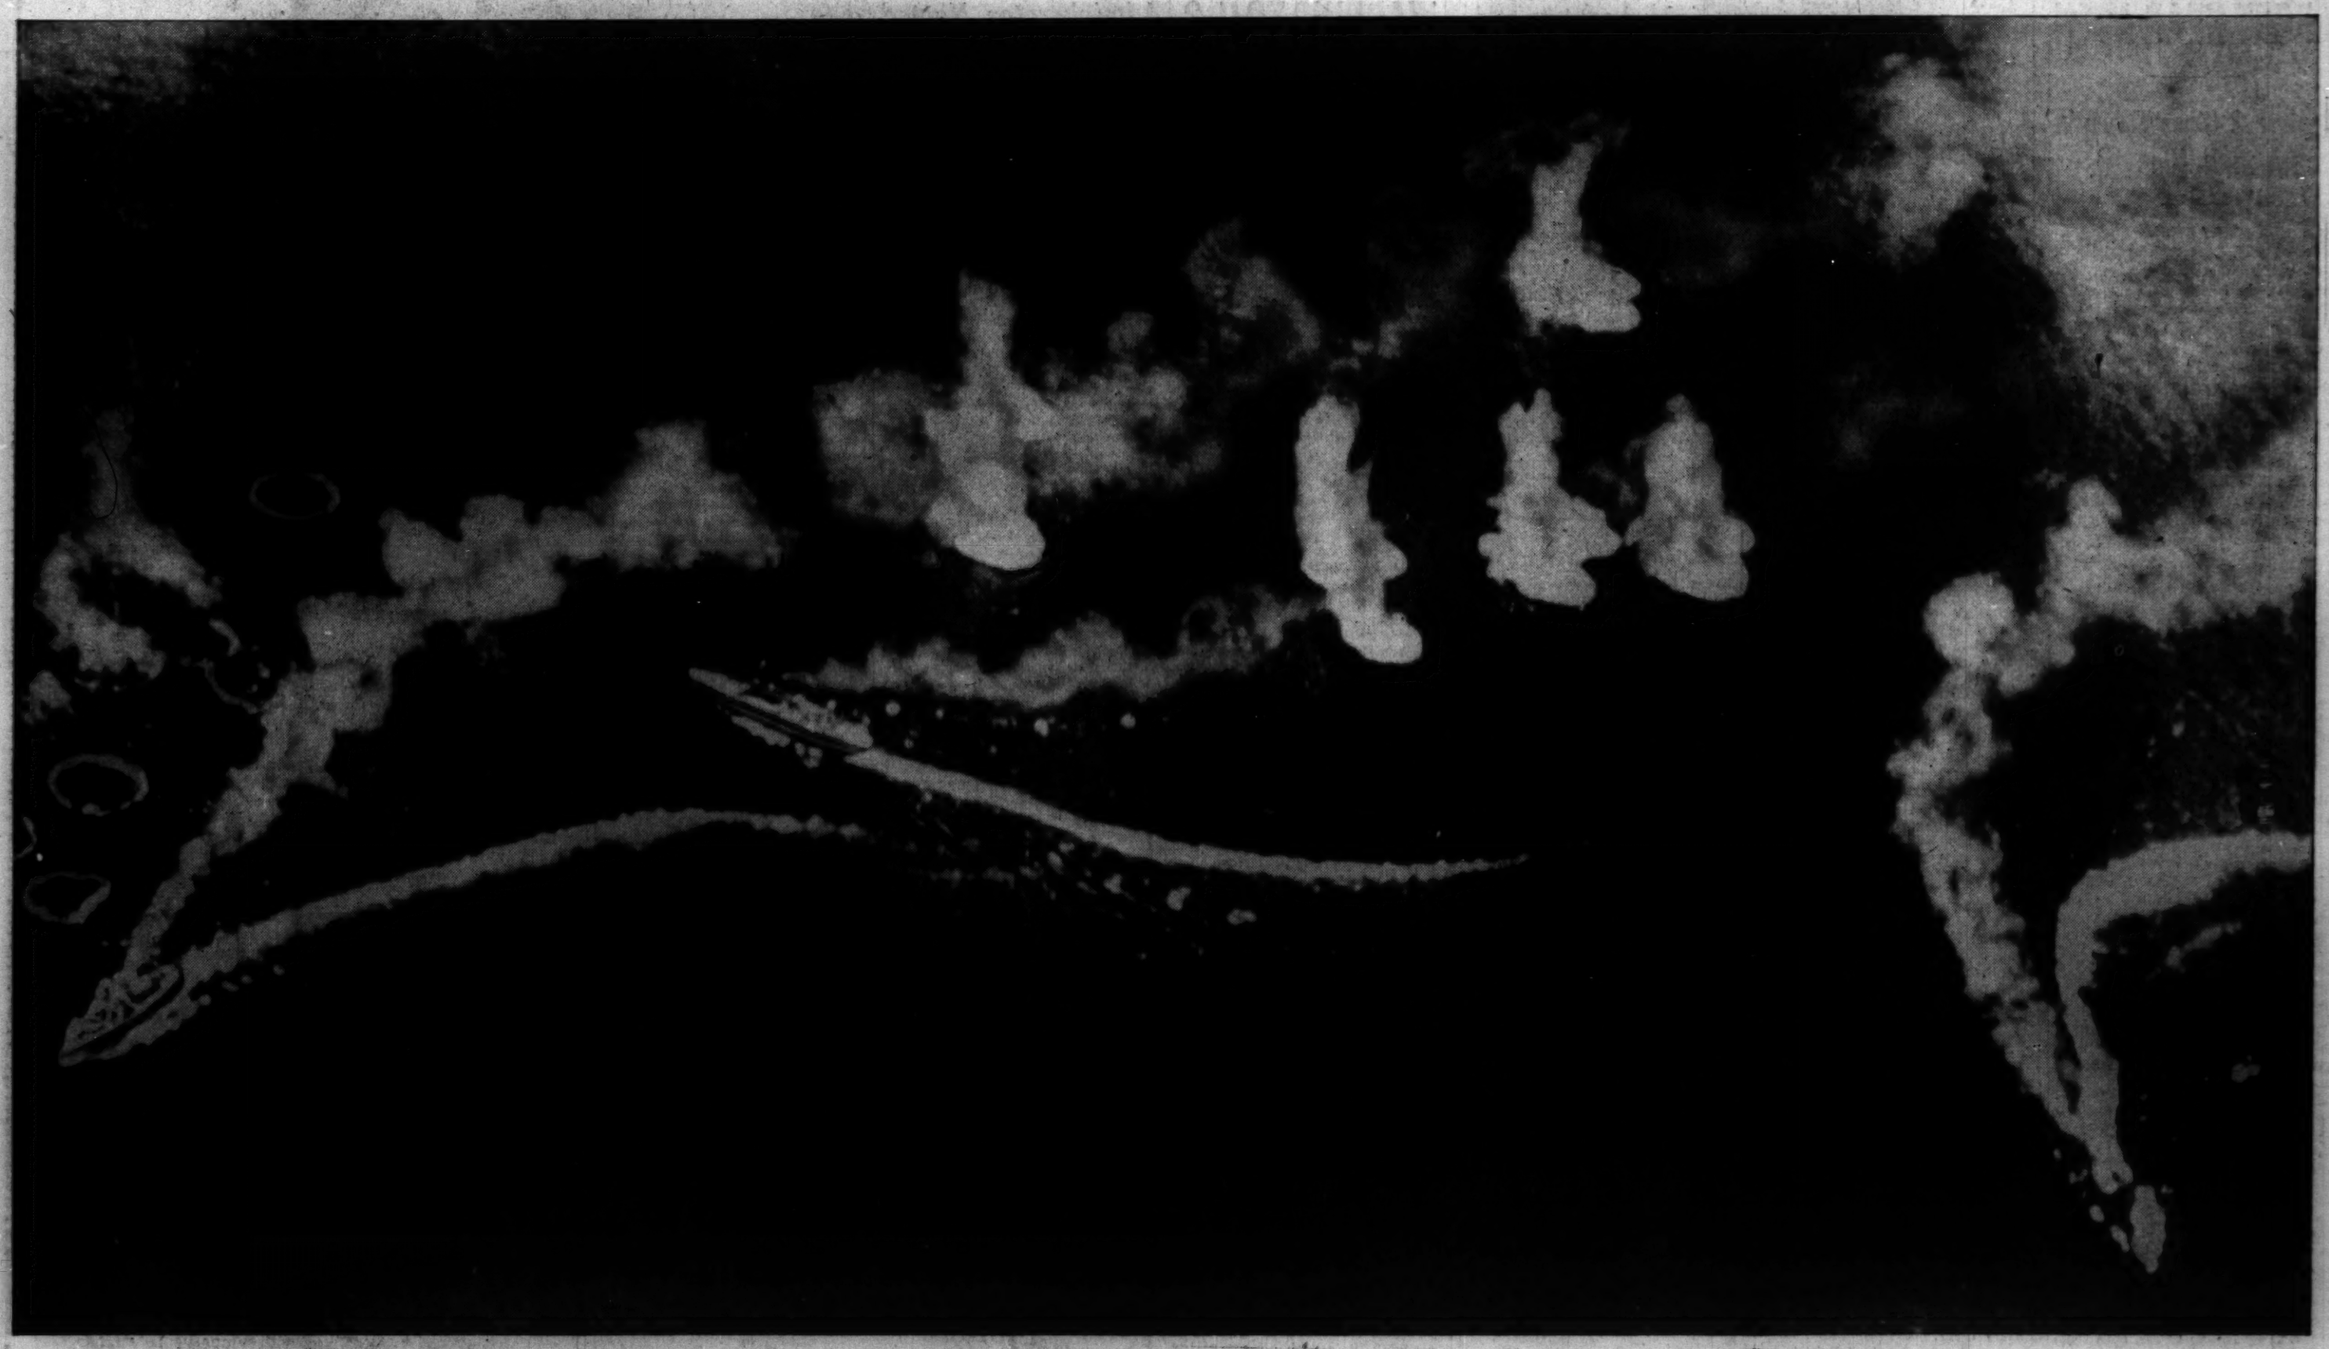
Spectacular Photograph of Air Bombing of British Naval Unit—Italians Seize Three Towns in Africa



[Associated Press Wirephoto] By Clipper.]

The caption accompanying this photograph, approved by British censor, says it shows three British ships being bombed by Italian airplanes. No other facts were made available. Note white streaks thrown up behind warships in their maneuvers. In middle background are bomb hits on water, some of them throwing up spouts. Location of the battle was not given, but Italian planes have been bombing British bases and naval units in the Mediterranean.

WAR PRISONERS POUR IN; CANADA EXPANDS CAMPS

Thousands of Interns Are Brought Overseas.

BY GEORGE SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 7.—Canada is holding prisoner thousands of Germans and Italians brought from Great Britain and more war prisoners are arriving in the Canadian internment camps almost daily.

In addition to the imported Germans and Italians, Canada has interned about 1,000 enemy aliens who were residents of Canada before the war, including a number of Reds, some of whom were Canadian born. When Italy entered the war, Canada had 300 Germans behind barbed wire barricades. Since Italy joined Germany in arms the population of the camps has been growing rapidly.

The Canadian Royal Mounted police have handled all the internment operations. As a result of their activities the number of internment camps has increased steadily from three that were opened at the outset. More have been built in the north country, and still more are being prepared as more prisoners are being sent from Britain.

Biggest Camps in Bush.

The biggest internment camps are located in the bush and surrounded by nine foot barbed wire fences with lookout towers at intervals. The bush itself serves as an additional barricade, being so dense that it alone almost precludes the possibility of escape. United States tourists en route from the east to see the Dionne quintuplets at Callender, Ont., pass within a few miles of the internment camp at Patawawa.

One of the camps is old Fort Henry, built at the head of Lake Ontario to withstand invaders from the United States. It was restored a few years ago to attract American tourists, and is now filled with German prisoners. From the camp in the outskirts of Kingston, Fort Henry's prisoners can look across into the United States. Fort Henry will be emptied soon and its prisoners moved to bush camps well to the north.

The enemy aliens are paid 20 cents a day for work, which they do mostly in government forest preserves. If they are put to work for private companies they are paid the prevailing local wages.

They are fed the same rations given to Canadian troops and are permitted to write letters home. The letters are censored.

Protected by Neutrals.

The prisoners are under the protection of the representatives of the neutral power chosen by the German and Italian governments to attend their interests. The Japanese minister is the protective agent for the Italians, the Swiss consul general for the Germans.

No prisoner has been sentenced to death, but camp officials say the new prisoners from Britain are a "tougher lot," and anything may happen. If a prisoner were placed on trial on a capital charge the protective consul would act as his defense counsel.

Among the prominent interns are Adrien Arcand, the Canadian Fascist party's "fuehrer," and James Franchesini, multimillionaire shipbuilder whose firm was building patrol boats for the Canadian navy when he was interned.

"Fuehrer May Face Trial.

Arcand was seized when the German radio announced that he was about to lead the French-Canadians he had organized into a black shirt following before the war in an attempt to set up an independent state. Justice Minister Ernest Lapointe has indicated Arcand will not escape with internment. He may be among the first to go on trial under new sections of the defense of Canada regulations.

Franchesini came to Canada as an Italian laborer and made a fortune building highways after the world war. He was the first contractor who managed to get jobs from all political parties and his friends included many important Ontario politicians. His connections availed him naught, however, when the mounties closed on him. His fortune is in the hands of the custodian of enemy property.

Another important intern is an Italian who has been rated as Canada's No. 1 gangster.

War Blame Court

Palais de Justice in Riom, France, where French high court of justice will be installed today to determine war guilt of former French leaders.

FRANCE TO BEGIN COURT PROBE OF MILITARY DEFEAT

Judges to Be Installed Today at Riom.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VICHY, France, Aug. 7.—The new French high court of justice will be formally installed by Minister of Justice Raphael Alibert at a ceremony in the palace of justice in Riom at 4 p. m. tomorrow. Riom is a small town between Vichy and Clermont-Ferrand.

The court's first business will be to decide who was responsible for France's military defeat and then to try the persons held responsible. It begins its functions six weeks after the signature of the armistice.

Ceremonies to Be Brief.

The installation ceremonies will be picturesque and historical but brief. The court will be presided over by President Caous of the French appeals court and nine other magistrates. The court will be sworn in and then will proceed to organize its first tasks of investigating the war responsibilities.

Several days later the court will be reconvened by President Caous and magistrates will be appointed to investigate various phases of the war conduct. These magistrates in turn will report to the court and, on the basis of their findings, proceedings will be instituted against ministers, diplomats, politicians, and military officers.

The French press today said the trial was likely to be the biggest one in modern times. A whole decade of European history and politics leading up to the war will be under review.

May Last Until Autumn.

It is expected that the investigations or grand jury aspect of the court's work will take several weeks and that personalities will not be haled before it until later in the autumn.

So far the only person mentioned as accused is Georges Mandel, secretary of the interior in the Paul Reynaud cabinet. He is charged with conspiring against the security of the French state.

It is reported here also that a commission of German officers shortly will be installed at Vichy or in the unoccupied area of France as a control commission over demobilization. After the world war the French and British had an interallied control commission in Berlin for several years.

FINED FOR BEATING FATHER.

Willard Werner, a WPA timekeeper, was fined $200 yesterday by Judge Jay A. Schiller on a charge of beating his father, John, 70 years old. The father said his son attacked him Tuesday night in their home at 1506 Orleans street.

BRITAIN REFUSES TO LIFT BLOCKADE FOR FOOD SHIPS

Rejects Cudahy Plea for Aid to Belgium.

Envoy Faces Rebuke

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7 (AP).—John P. Cudahy, big game hunter and ambassador to Belgium, faced a possible reprimand from the state department tonight for an unauthorized interview in London in which he discussed food conditions and the conduct of German soldiers in Belgium. Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles announced he had cabled for a complete text of Cudahy's remarks, made yesterday, which provoked sharp criticism in the British press. Cudahy gave the interview, Welles said, without notifying the state department.

LONDON, Aug. 7 (AP).—The ministry of economic welfare said today that Britain refused to deviate from her policy of keeping food shipments out of German occupied territory and added that there need not be any famine in Europe this winter.

John P. Cudahy.

Ministry experts said the continent's harvests and reserves ought to be adequate with general distribution to prevent any general famine—provided the Germans do not take the best for themselves while leaving the conquered populations hungry.

Refuses to Relax Ban.

The ministry statement followed British criticism of an implied plea by John Cudahy, American ambassador to Belgium, that the British navy relax its blockade for food shipments. Cudahy said Belgium would be close to famine by early fall unless food was sent from the United States.

Food shipments would not be allowed thru the blockade even if they were to be distributed by an organization which the British could trust completely, one authoritative source said.

The British view was that any such food would make the whole situation easier for the Germans, relieving them of their troubles with hungry people.

Quotes Hitler's Assurance.

The harvests will not be bumper crops this year, this source continued, but he maintained that if famine should occur it would be due solely to "Nazi rapacity in looting stocks for the reich."

He quoted a statement by Adolf Hitler to the reichstag July 19 that "food supplies are assured for the duration of the war, thanks to measures taken in time" over the whole economic area controled by Germany and Italy."

HOUSE MEMBER INSPECTS NAVAL TRAINING STATION

Representative James G. Scrugham [D., Nev.], a member of the house naval appropriations committee, arrived by plane from Washington, D. C., yesterday, to inspect the Great Lakes Naval training station. He was greeted by Capt. E. A. Wolleson, chief of staff, acting for Rear Admiral William C. Watts, commanding officer, who is ill.

Scrugham, a former resident of Highland Park, told several companies of enlisted men that the safety of the United States and the destiny of democracy rested on their shoulders and on the sort of training which was being given them.

Prepare House for Windsors in Bermuda; They Arrive Today

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Aug. 7 (AP).—Government house, an 18 room turreted mansion set amid a 45 acre park of lawns and cedar groves and built of native coral, was made ready today for the visit of the duke and duchess of Windsor, who arrive here in midafternoon tomorrow.

Mrs. Hastings Brooke, sister of the colony's bachelor governor, who will be the Windsors' hostess, showed correspondents today thru the mansion, which is the residence of her brother.

The duke and duchess will occupy a suite of two bedrooms and baths on the south side of the house, opening on a veranda commanding a view of Hamilton. Both rooms are furnished simply and decorated in pastel shades.

Duke Has Bodyguard.

The room to be occupied by the duchess contains twin beds of ordinary white painted iron with brass knobs such as might be found in any summer seaside residence. In the room is an antique mahogany chiffonier, a dressing table and wardrobe, and a flowered chintz chaise-longue matching the draperies of the French windows.

The duke's bodyguard will occupy a guest room next to his and the duchess' personal maid will have a room adjoining hers.

Ascending the main staircase from the ground floor the Windsors will be faced by an enlarged framed photograph on the landing showing the duke with a coronet on his head and wearing the royal robes he wore at the coronation of his father in 1911.

An autographed crayon sketch of the duke in military uniform hangs in the vast dining room along with pictures of other former British monarchs.

Leader in War Relief.

Mrs. Brooke is turning over to the duchess her own sitting room in the southwest corner of the second floor. The hostess, a handsome gray haired woman, is a leader in the colony's war relief work despite her 60 odd years.

Mrs. Brooke said the only opportunity of leaders in Bermuda's official life to meet the duke and duchess may be at a small cocktail party on the terrace of the mansion, altho other social functions may be arranged if the Windsors wish.

The length of their stay is still uncertain. Arrangements for their transportation to Nassau, where the duke will serve as governor and commander in chief of the Bahamas, remain a military secret.

FOE OF NEW DEAL BARES EFFORT TO KEEP HIM OFF AIR

Radio Censorship Grows Worse, Says O'Connor.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7.—The senate interstate commerce committee heard evidence today that the Roosevelt administration tried, by threats and intimidation, to keep one of its purge targets off the radio during the 1938 campaign. The disclosure was made in a letter read into the record by Senator Charles W. Tobey [R., N. H.], at whose behest the committee has been investigating the radio industry.

Yesterday the committee heard charges that the Radio Corporation of America bribed at least one federal official and paid fees illegally to two members of the United States senate to delay action on a government anti-trust suit against the corporation in 1932. This was denied by David Sarnoff, R. C. A. president, who was a witness before the committee.

Calls Appointee Unfit.

The inquiry is the outgrowth of hearings on the reappointment of Thad H. Brown to the Federal Communications commission. Senator Tobey has indicated his belief that Brown is unfit to serve on the commission because of his failure to take action against the R. C. A. for alleged monopolistic practices.

The letter concerning the tactics employed by the New Deal in the abortive attempt to rid congress of all except "yes" men and rubber stamps was written by former Representative John O'Connor [D., N. Y.] to Edward Kirby, president of the National Association of Broadcasters.

O'Connor, an outspoken opponent of the New Deal, was chairman of the powerful house rules committee, and with the backing of Republicans and southern Democrats, succeeded in blocking several of the administration's "must" bills, thereby incurring the wrath of the President. He was the only member of congress designated by Mr. Roosevelt for the New Deal purge who failed of renomination.

Political Censorship Extended.

In his letter to Kirby, O'Connor charged that a political censorship of radio has existed for several years, having been extended even to foreign broadcasts. After the Columbia Broadcasting System agreed to let him reply to the President's purge announcement over a nation-wide hookup, O'Connor charged, Harry Hopkins, since appointed secretary of commerce, told a C. B. S. official that Columbia had been put in Mr. Roosevelt's "dog house."

The former congressman added that when he did speak, he was cut off the air from 20 middle western stations.

"You will recall the announcement of the President's purge against me last summer," said the letter, which was dated June 30, 1939. "Soon thereafter the Columbia Broadcasting chain offered me a nation-wide hookup to answer the purge.

Representative Is Summoned.

"When this arrangement was made public, the White House sent for the Washington representative of Columbia, and one of the President's secretaries stated that Columbia 'was in the dog house' for giving me the time, and something should be done about it.

"At the same time, Harry Hopkins went from Hyde Park to the race track at Saratoga Springs, New York, and protested to one of our most eminent citizens, a vice president of Columbia, that 'the boss' [meaning President Roosevelt] was mad as hell about Columbia giving me the time, and unless something was done about it, the National Broadcasting chain thereafter would be the 'white haired boy' at the White House. This vice president, however, told Mr. Hopkins where to go. Instead, he went to the cabinet.

Famous Formulas Expounded.

"Is was at this same Saratoga race track and on this occasion that Mr. Hopkins announced his famous formula, 'We shall spend and spend and tax and tax and elect and elect.'

"This probably was just before the seventh race, after losing the first six. Dice, dogs, and the ponies often upset people, but this could not have inspired his statement in Iowa a few days ago that the 1940 Democratic convention would be controled by the radicals in his group. All sensible Democrats were thereby put on notice.

"There was a result to the censorship on me, however, in that I was cut off from 20 stations in the midwest. The advertised broadcast just never did float thru the air.

"For years the whole situation as to radio has been rotten—and has been getting more so in recent years. It smells to heaven, or North Carolina, or Texas, and way stations."

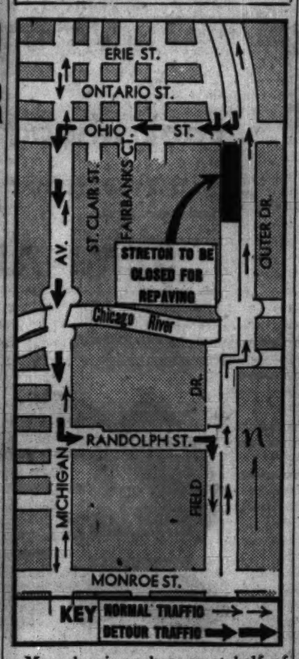
Sarnoff, questioned by the committee again today, vehemently denied the charges in the letter, then went on to state his regret that the name of the President had been drawn into the inquiry. He branded as an unadulterated falsehood the allegations in an affidavit introduced before the committee yesterday in which he was said to have quoted Mr. Roosevelt as having said before his election:

"Dave, you are the father of radio, but when I was assistant secretary of the navy, I mothered it for you."

"Why," declared Sarnoff, flushing, "That was back in 1932 and I was supposed to have said that I would have little trouble dealing with Mr. Roosevelt after he became President. The fact is, I didn't meet President Roosevelt until 1934."

The hearing was continued until tomorrow.

Map Drive Detour



Map showing where west half of Lake Shore drive will be closed three days for repairs, beginning Saturday. Arrows indicate proposed traffic detours.

The west half of Lake Shore drive will be closed for resurfacing from Ohio street to the Ogden slip bridge for three days beginning Saturday, Otto K. Jelinek, park district traffic engineer, announced yesterday. The east half of the drive will remain open.

Southbound traffic on the drive will detour west at Ohio street to Michigan avenue, then south to Randolph street east to Field drive again. During the Monday morning rush hour period, however, southbound traffic on Lake Shore drive will be permitted to proceed on the east half of Lake Shore drive, while northbound traffic will detour to Michigan avenue. No parking will be permitted on the west side of Michigan avenue between Oak and Randolph streets while the work is in progress.

ELEVATED LOOP UPHELD AS GREAT BUSINESS ASSET

Official Assails Plan to Raze Structure.

Suggestions that the elevated lines loop be eliminated eventually under a unified Chicago transit plan were attacked yesterday by Bernard J. Fallon, general manager of Chicago Rapid Transit Lines. His remarks were made at a meeting of the city council's local transportation committee and representatives of the surface and elevated lines, at which attempts were made to iron out difficulties standing in the way of a unification ordinance.

Bernard J. Fallon.

"It would be a great mistake to tear down the loop structure and depend entirely on subways," Fallon said. "The loop occupies only 8½ per cent of the street area in the downtown business center and is the greatest asset the other 91½ per cent has. It is the greatest passenger pickup system in the world."

The conferees discussed the right of the city to order the removal of the Market street "" stub, extending from Lake street to Madison street, but came to no definite conclusion. Fallon said he did not believe the city could legally order the removal in the ordinance.

Submits 65 Page Report.

Ald. Paul H Douglas [5th] submitted to the transportation committee a 65 page statement of proposed revisions and suggestions on the proposed unified traction ordinance.

Ald. Douglas said the ordinance should place a ceiling of $5,500,000 on the price to be paid by the new company for the properties of the Chicago Motor Coach company. He said physical assets of the company cannot possibly exceed $5,625,000 in value and probably are worth $5,125,000.

Douglas said he understood there is "serious talk" of paying 12 million dollars to the Omnibus corporation, owner of the bus company, for the properties.

From other sources it has been reliably reported that a price of $8,500,000 is being considered.

Property Yields 15 Per cent.

Douglas asserted that on the basis of 1939 earnings, the bus company is earning about 15 per cent on the real value of the properties.

Douglas said that such a high rate of profit results from privileges granted the company by the park district in permitting it to operate on boulevards, and from the right to operate over city streets without a franchise.

Douglas also recommended that the traction ordinance prohibit the investment of the new traction fund in tax anticipation warrants of the city of Chicago. He pointed out that about 15 million dollars of the 67 million dollar traction fund built up under the 1907 streetcar ordinances is frozen in sour city tax warrants.

He proposed further that the transit lines be required to pay half the cost [about $300,000] of a public referendum on the traction ordinance in the event that the lines later failed to accept the ordinance.

Advocates Public Ownership.

Douglas said a detailed analysis of the proposed ordinance led him to believe that "public ownership of the traction system under proper conditions would be preferable to private ownership." He argued that it would be unwise to grant a monopoly on local transportation to a private company, that the city could borrow money for transit improvements at lower interest rates than a private company, and that private utilities are tempted to try to corrupt governmental agencies on matters of franchises and rates of fare.

He warned that the proposed ordinance will grant a perpetual franchise to a unified traction company unless a strong forfeiture provision is included. He asserted also that the present "water" should be wrung out of the valuations of the surface and elevated lines. He placed their combined worth at $100,000,000. Present book values of the properties exceed $250,000,000.

Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe is expected to rule today on a petition asking approval to pay interest due Aug. 1 on $72,720,000 of surface lines 5 per cent bonds.

Stylists Hail Tribune Contest as Opportunity for Designers

American designers for years have created the bulk of women's wear in this country. But with Paris basking in the limelight, their talent has been overshadowed. Now they are to come into their own.

This was the opinion of several Chicago stylists yesterday in commending THE TRIBUNE for its American Fashions contest. The principal aim of the contest is to encourage American fashion designers and to turn the spotlight of the world on America as the center of the clothes industry. It is open to both professional and amateur designers thruout the country.

Termed First Real Opportunity.

"The American Fashions contest is the American designer's first real opportunity for recognition," said Mrs. Mary Sharp, advertising manager of Blum's Vogue women's wearing apparel shop. "We always have had faith in American designing. Paris collections have only been inspirations which were supplemented here by wearable, livable American clothes. We need a contest like THE TRIBUNE'S to prove the worth of our designs."

Mrs. Edith D. Williams, style and advertising director of John T. Shayne's furriers and women's specialty shop, said the contest is a step in tune with the times.

"Every one, whether connected with any phase of style promotion or not, realizes that America today has become the fashion center of the world," she said. "For some time we have been moving in that direction.

"With world conditions as they are, the varied fashion professions have become the most important career opportunity opened to young Americans today. THE TRIBUNE is to be congratulated on bringing this to the attention of the public and for stimulating the latent talent we have along these lines."

Praise of THE TRIBUNE'S efforts on behalf of the American designer also came from Harry P. Friedman, buyer of women's wear for Kerman's Michigan avenue shop.

"The American Fashions contest is an excellent idea," he said. "It will stimulate designers to get on their own. THE TRIBUNE is doing a good turn for the public and for the dress industry as a whole."

25 Prizes to Be Awarded.

Twenty-five cash prizes, totaling $7,500, will be awarded to winners of the contest. There will be one prize of $3,000, one of $2,000, three of $500, and 20 of $50. A position as designer with Eisenberg & Sons, creators of women's apparel, will be given to the top ranking amateur among the first six winners.

All sketches and designs must be in Tribune tower by Aug. 15. The contest will conclude with a grand finale Oct. 2 when garments, made from the winning sketches, will be modeled at two style shows in W-G-N studio. A coast to coast audience will hear a description of the gowns broadcast.

Detour South Canal Bridge Traffic to Save $150,000

A plan to detour present traffic over the South Canal street bridge during construction of a new bridge was approved by the city council yesterday. By detouring traffic the city will save $150,000 estimated as the cost of building a temporary bridge.

7 OFFICE GIRLS SAVE NICKELS FOR WILLKIE TICKETS

Seven stenographers who said yesterday they had been cool toward politics until Wendell L. Willkie became the Republican presidential nominee took $26.25 in nickels to G. O. P. headquarters in the La Salle hotel yesterday to buy their round trip tickets for the Elwood, Ind., notification ceremonies Aug. 17. They explained each had saved $3.75 from her pin money.

Six of the girls work in an office at 910 South Michigan avenue. They are Burtice Cross, Dorothy Kopps, Virginia Krueger, Adelaide Sahs, Gladys Hanzel, and Esther Mugford. The seventh, Esther's sister, Ruth, works at 310 West Adams street.

Two of the stenographers offered to do typing free of charge, after regular working hours, for the Cook county Republican organization.

GOVERNMENT JOB TOTAL IS PLACED AT 4½ MILLIONS

Approximately 4¼ million persons in the United States are employed in government service in federal, state, and local offices, the Civil Service Assembly of the United States and Canada reported yesterday. The pay roll of the workers is estimated at 6 billion 180 million dollars. The survey estimated the numerical increase of workers at 43 per cent in the last 10 years. The largest increase in this period was listed as in federal government service, in which the survey said the number of workers has risen from 862,000 to 1,296,000. The figures were made public by the public administration clearing house on the University of Chicago campus.

MICHIGAN YOUTH DROWNED.

Holland, Mich., Aug. 7 [Special.]—Richard Calcutt, youthful son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Calcutt of Flint, was drowned while swimming behind the breakwater at the mouth of Holland harbor last night.

LYONS REPORTS JULY INCREASE IN RELIEF ROLLS

Relief rolls in Chicago increased in July for the first time since June, 1939, Leo M. Lyons, Chicago relief commissioner, reported yesterday. In July the CRA gave aid to 88,047 cases [203,428 persons], compared with 85,922 [197,795 persons] in the previous month. Lyons said the increase was caused by a decline in WPA employment. During July 3,797 cases were opened because relief applicants had lost WPA jobs, while only 552 were closed because of assignments to WPA projects.

RED FLAG TAKES PLACE OF 3 FREE BALTIC BANNERS

'People's Courts' Set Up as Nations Enter Soviet.

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Aug. 7.—Three national flags, those of Estonia, Latvia, and Lithuania, disappeared today when the red flag of communism was hoisted in the Baltic states. The three Baltic countries have become part of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

With the disappearance of the last vestige of national independence of the Baltic countries, people's tribunals have been set up. Persons can now be arrested and sentenced within 24 hours of their being charged by denunciation with a crime. This decree authorizes the GPU [secret police] to execute enemies of bolshevism immediately after their arrest.

Severe Penalties Set Up.

A special decree authorizes the peoples' court to sentence to three years forced labor and a fine amounting to $1,000 all persons opposing the new Moscow composed government.

Relatives and friends of the accused also are liable to the same punishment if they attempt to conceal the whereabouts of the guilty. All persons opposing the introduction of communism are called Trotzkyists.

Reds Fail to Hold Rallies.

The attempts of communist agents in Finland to arrange demonstrations in Helsingfors and other cities in connection with the incorporation into Russia of the three Baltic states proved a fiasco. No meetings took place in Helsingfors. There were no disorders or demonstrations in any Finnish city.

The soviet radio stations are emphasizing the introduction of butter rationing in Helsingfors, where people are now limited to 200 grams [about 6½ ounces] of butter a week. This only applies to Helsingfors, where butter rationing has been introduced because the population has hoarded and stored butter.

Veterans' Hospital Scotches a Cigaret Packet Rumor

If you've been saving empty cigaret packets, empty match books, or the union labels from cigarets for the Hines Veterans' hospital you might as well throw them away right now. Charles G. Beck, hospital manager, said yesterday that there was no truth to the rumor the hospital could exchange such objects for full packages of cigarets.

SENATOR TRUMAN APPEARS WINNER OVER GOV. STARK

Edge Slight in Unofficial Missouri Returns.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 7 (AP).—Gov. Lloyd C. Stark, who gave the Pendergast machine the beating of its political life in 1938, appeared squeezed out of the Democratic senatorial nomination tonight by Senator Harry S. Truman, a man the organization helped send to Washington six years ago.

In Missouri's closest election contest since 1922, Truman inched away from Stark with a 7,000 vote lead after unofficial returns from yesterday's primary had been tabulated from all except about 100 scattered rural precincts. Eighteen years ago Senator James A. Reed beat Breckenridge Long by 5,900 votes.

It was doubtful whether even a unanimous vote for Stark in the untabulated ballot boxes could regain for him the lead he lost when the city vote began making itself noticeable. Former United States Prosecutor Maurice M. Milligan, also in the race, lagged behind by more than 100,000 votes.

City Vote Helps Truman.

Unofficial returns from 4,308 of the state's 4,447 precincts, including 781 of 783 in St. Louis and all 551 in Jackson county [Kansas City] gave: Truman, 261,238; Stark, 254,435, and Milligan, 125,064.

Truman won his unofficial margin in the cities, but the contest was so close the official canvass may have to determine the ultimate winner.

Some observers said the absentee votes variously estimated at 5,000 to 10,000 might decide the final outcome. Neither Truman nor Stark would comment on the unofficial returns.

In the Democratic gubernatorial race Lawrence E. McDaniel of St. Louis won a decisive victory over State Senator Allen McReynolds of Carthage.

Forrest C. Donnell of St. Louis won the Republican nomination for governor by a wide margin and former State Senator Manvel H. Davis of Kansas City apparently walked away from six opponents to capture the G. O. P. senatorial nomination.

Gov. Ratner Renominated.

Topeka, Kas., Aug. 7 (AP).—Gov. Payne Ratner, Democrat and a veteran campaigner at 43, and William H. Burke, Republican and a novice at 61, were nominated for governor in yesterday's primary election.

JAIL INSURANCE WORKER; FAKED ACCIDENTS TOLD

Three women who said they went to Riverview amusement park to have accidents which were planned in advance sent an insurance adjustor to jail yesterday for 60 days. They said he did the planning.

The adjustor is Walter W. Eckart, 3859 North Springfield avenue. He became acquainted with the women, Judge Joseph B. Hermes was told in Felony court, thru settling legitimate personal injury claims for two of them. Then, the women said, Eckart persuaded them to go to the amusement park, pretend to get hurt on rides, and sue for damages.

The plot was exposed after the suits were filed, and Eckart was charged by James A. Brown, assistant state's attorney, with attempting to obtain money under false pretenses. The planned accidents were so realistic, the court was told, that two of the women actually were injured.

HELD ON ROBBERY CHARGES.

Arthur Assink, 25 years old, of Allegan, Mich., was ordered held to the grand jury on two robbery charges yesterday by Judge Joseph B. Hermes in Felony court. Assink was arrested last Saturday as he fought with a motorist whom he had robbed after hitchhiking a ride.

WILLKIE'S TOWN STOCKING UP TO FEED MULTITUDE

Preparing for 100,000 on Notification Day.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Elwood, Ind., Aug. 7.—How to feed at least 100,000 persons in a town of 10,000 is one of the major problems attending the Willkie notification ceremonies here on Aug. 17. Both amateur and professional helpers are working toward its solution and tonight, nine days before the affair, the prospects are that the hungry will be fed—but not five course luncheons, including salad.

As usual at such crowded affairs, the lowly sandwich is destined to provide the backbone of nutritious stamia for the throng which will come to Calloway park to hear Wendell L. Willkie accept the Republican Presidential nomination.

Ham, cheese, tenderloin, hamburger, and hot dogs—at a dime each—compose the probable selection, and this standard variety may be augmented by a few sliced chicken which are likely to sell for a quarter.

Seas of Soft Drinks.

Oceans of soft drinks—but no beer and no liquor—also will be available in the park, and one canny caterer from out of town is bringing a backlog of 10,000 box lunches above his ordinary needs—just in case.

The restaurants downtown will serve plate lunches. Until today these lunches retailed for 25 cents. Today they were 30 cents. On notification day they will be 50 cents. Although they might not satisfy a hungry thresher they aren't skimpy meals.

Here are some food statistics, as gathered by Charles Barnes, head of the local committee charged with overseeing the feeding arrangements:

In the park 60 separate food and soft drink concessionaires will occupy 113 tents on three sides of the 60 acre plot, occupying 1,750 front feet of space.

Extra Places Downtown.

In the downtown streets, 25 food concessionaires will occupy 250 front feet. These are in addition to the 32 regular eating establishment which will be operating with extra help on notification day.

Eighty permits have been issued to private citizens to sell food and drink in booths on their own property in the town.

Many of the special trains which will bring thousands to the national G. O. P. rally will have diners or will carry box lunches for their customers.

Several organizations, like Harry Ditchburne's 1940 club of Chicago and the Columbia club of Indianapolis, have arranged with private caterers to feed their members in special tents on the grounds.

About 1,500 party leaders will eat together in tents adjacent to the park. A Chicago catering company has this order.

Packers to Send Supplies.

Most of the big packing companies in Chicago and Indiana will send refrigerated trucks full of ham, other cold meats, and cheese direct to the grounds where the concessionaires can call on them as their needs dictate. A large quantity of ice cream also will be stored at the park.

The soft drink people are making elaborate preparations to slake the visitors' collective thirst. One bottling man told notification headquarters today that he will have 8,500 cases of 12 bottles each of his beverage ready for distribution in the Elwood territory on the 17th.

A nearby bakery plans to bake 30,000 buns for the big day. Almost all of Elwood's churches will sell sandwiches and soft drinks.

Order 30,000 Chairs.

Homer E. Capehart, chairman of general arrangements, completed orders today for 30,000 chairs which will be placed beneath the shade trees fronting the platform where the nominee will speak. Half of them will come from Chicago and the remainder from Indiana concerns.

Farmers whose corn crops have been purchased in order to provide adequate parking facilities abuting the park were busy today cutting the grain. The fields will be leveled and parking guide posts sunk in parallel lanes. About 50,000 automobiles can be accommodated in these parking areas.

City Hoosier Willkie Club Plans Meeting Tomorrow

Chicago's first Hoosier club for Wendell L. Willkie will hold a final meeting at 2 p.m. tomorrow in the Auditorium hotel prior to attending the Willkie notification ceremonies Aug. 17 in Elwood, Ind. The club has a car on a special train which will go to Elwood. All Hoosiers are invited to join the party. Dr. Irene Behnke heads the club.

PERUVIAN CHILD MOTHER AT 5 TO COME TO CHICAGO

Seek to Study Case for Science.

Plans are being made to bring Lina Medina, purported child mother of Lima, Peru, and her son, 15 months old, to Chicago for examination by a committee of physicians, it was disclosed last night. The baby and his mother, who was said by Peruvian physicians to be only 5 years old when the child was born May 14, 1939, are expected to arrive Aug. 20.

It was said that while in Chicago the mother and child would be supervised closely, but reports gave the visit certain commercial aspects, intimating they might be exhibited elsewhere. The young mother's parents were reported to have signed a contract covering the trip to the United States.

Court Removes Protection.

This contract was made possible by a ruling of the Peruvian Supreme court last April. This decision set aside the government guardianship and returned the Medina girl to her parents.

It was learned that Dr. Abel Rodriquez Larrain, 4601 South Ashland avenue, a counselor of the Chicago Medical society, had been approached on the matter. Last night Dr. Larrain reluctantly verified plans for the visit.

"It is true that the baby and the mother are coming to Chicago," he said. "I have agreed to arrange for a committee of doctors to study the case and determine the scientific facts on the understanding that there will be no exhibitions of the child or the mother. While they are in Chicago, both will be constantly under supervision of the committee of doctors."

Consulted On Birth.

Dr. Larrain, who was born in Peru, was in Lima on a visit shortly after the child was born. At that time he was called into consultation by Peruvian doctors.

"As far as I could determine at that time the whole thing was authentic and worthy of further study," Dr. Larrain said.

The baby was born as a commission of physicians, on hand to report on the amazing case of precocious motherhood, witnessed the Cæsarean operation in a Lima hospital. The baby weighed 5.96 pounds at birth.

Many obstetricians have expressed disbelief in the reported age of the Medina girl, asserting it is physically impossible to give birth to a child much before the age of 11.

Attempts to bring the Medina girl and the baby to the United States for exhibition at the New York World's fair were halted last year by the decree of the Peruvian government.

'I Am' Messiah's Midas Touch Described in Suit Over Boy

A story of the production of gold thru "precipitation," by the versatile St. Germain, messiah of the "I Am" cult, regaled a courtroom audience yesterday before Thomas J. Sheehan, a Circuit court master in chancery.

The feat was described by Mrs. Naomi Moberg, 33 years old, 9253 South Damen avenue, a member of the cult who is resisting the petition of her former husband, Harold, for sole custody of their son, Robert, 11. Moberg asserts the boy may be affected physically and mentally by the tenets of the "I Am" cult unless the court deprives the mother of part time supervision over him.

At the request of Moberg's attorney, Benjamin B. Davis, Mrs. Moberg read an account of the gold "miracle" from a booklet of "I Am" literature. This account had been edited by Guy Ballard, who was the earthly representative of St. Germain until last Dec. 29. At that time Ballard died—or "ascended," as the cult puts it.

Provisions for "Balance" Told.

"Your presence does not hold coined gold to release," read the Ballard version of St. Germain's gospel, "altho we could produce plenty of it and the greatest technicians in the world could not tell the difference.

"In Europe for more than 100 years I precipitated gold wherever I moved and used it, but you must be wise in doing that. We have a record of all the gold coin in each country and of all the money that has been destroyed. Therefore when we utilize this privilege, of course, we balance with the treasury of nations where we are."

"Do you believe St. Germain could 'precipitate' gold?" Davis asked Mrs. Moberg.

Never Saw Gold Production.

"I am satisfied it could be done," she answered.

"But have you seen it done?" Davis persisted.

"No," Mrs. Moberg admitted reluctantly.

Davis then touched on the subject of K 17, the "I Am" secret operative. It seems that according to what Ballard told Mrs. Moberg last October, K 17 learned that three German submarines were off the Panama canal and destroyed two of them in half an hour.

Writing of this to her son, a student at the Dakota School for Boys, in Dakota, Stephenson county, Mrs. Moberg concluded: "You could be one of K 17's helpers when you ascend if you wish it."

Moberg, who is a grocery chain official in Des Moines, Ia., then took the stand.

Tells of Letters to Son.

"When I called for my son at the Dakota school in June," he said, "he told me: 'Mother has been writing funny letters to me and has taken me to an I Am sanctuary.' He said he wanted to spend all his time with me."

The Mobergs were divorced in 1934, the decree providing that they divide the boy's custody while he is not in school. Attorney Benjamin Vanderveld, representing Mrs. Moberg, asked whether she had any religious convictions during her marriage.

"She corresponded with some Hindu concerning Indian religious beliefs," Moberg said.

The hearing will be resumed this morning, and young Moberg may be brought to court to express his preference on the parent with whom he wishes to remain.

In Ann Sheridan's Grip, Kiss Lasts 56.2 Seconds

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 7 (AP).—Director Lloyd Bacon wanted a kiss with feeling for the fadeout of "Honeymoon for Three." So he called Ann Sheridan aside and explained, but Ann warned: "George Brent may be a little self-conscious, so I'll just hold on if he tries to break." And she did. A stopwatch timed their embrace at 56.2 seconds. Warner's publicity department said that is the all-time long kissing record for the movies.

A NEW TRANSPORTATION ERA.

Trends in travel in this country make an interesting study. 1920 was the peak year in railroad passenger revenues. There is approximately four times as much traveling done today as there was twenty years ago. The private automobile began to be a serious competitor of the railroads about that time and today more people travel by that means than use the railroads. In the meantime, the passenger bus had become an outstanding railroad competitor, and the air lines show an upward trend in passenger miles that is amazing.

Seven-eighths of the loss in passenger travel suffered by American railroads in the past twenty years has been for distances under 450 miles. This is about the limit of a strenuous day's journey by private automobile. Ninety-five per cent of all intercity auto travel is made in the daytime. Over 40,000,000 adults have come of age since 1920. Many of these have never traveled on a train. Once people saved for years to make a trip; now everybody goes everywhere, winter or summer. A responsible railroad executive has said, "A truly significant thing about this phenomenal expansion in travel is that the railroads by capturing only 5 per cent of the total would double their passenger traffic."

Safety, speed, comfort, and economy are the four considerations which govern the traveler's choice of transportation facilities today. The order of their importance varies with the individual's desires or requirements. The railroads are becoming fully aware of all these facts and are rapidly taking steps to capture the business not only of the travelers of today who prefer daytime travel for distances under 450 miles, but also those who contemplate longer journeys. Streamlined Diesel and Diesel-electric trains of the type of the Zephyrs, Rockets, Super-Chiefs, etc., have been put into service in increasing numbers on most of the progressive first-class railroads from coast to coast. The result has been an increase in the number of passengers carried, a reduction in operating expenses, and a greater net revenue. Coach sleeper cars have been gaining in favor, and the more luxurious services which have been inaugurated on the longer hauls have been so popular that reservations must be made well in advance in order to obtain accommodations on some of these trains.

The increase in popularity of the new services is due to the increased speed and comfort of the journey. Costs have been reduced and safety factors increased. The Mark Twain Zephyr of the Burlington railroad, as a special stunt on Oct. 23, 1935, traveled an average speed of 122 miles per hour for three miles near Edison, Neb.—an all-time record up to then for Diesel-powered equipment. Sustained average speeds of 60 miles an hour are common on most runs for equipment of this type. If the railway carriers are in earnest in their desire to capture a fair share of the enormously increased travel, these speed records within a few years will sound as amusing as those of the first steam trains whose average of 20 miles an hour was considered the limit of fast locomotion. Certain sections of roadbed will have to be straightened and improved, but the ultimate revenue will certainly justify the costs. Modern metallurgical and mechanical science, if given a free rein, will take care of the safety factor. This means that railroads will have to discard many of their old theories. The public as a whole is not interested in a heavy investment in old railroad equipment and has little sympathy for the heavy burdens of taxation and regulation which have been placed on the railroad carriers. Unfortunately the modern generation has no loyalty or gratitude to such institutions for past services. It is only interested in getting to its destination in the fastest, most comfortable, and cheapest manner possible.

Let them have an average speed of 100 miles per hour and rail traffic will double.

NEGRO PILOTS.

At a recent hearing of the house appropriations committee, Representative Ludlow of Indiana called attention to a recent act of congress requiring that facilities be made available for the training of Negro airplane pilots for the army. Asked by Mr. Ludlow what had been done to carry out this mandate, Gen. Marshall, chief of staff, replied that "there is no such thing as colored aviation at this time." He suggested that the start should be made by the Civil Aeronautics authority.

It is to be hoped that Mr. Ludlow will see to it that the intention of congress is not defeated by burocratic buck-passing. This is said not only in protest against discrimination but also in recognition of the very large contribution to national defense which may be expected of Negro pilots.

The first requisite of a military flyer is quick nervous responses. He should have a superior sense of balance, excellent muscular coördination, a good sensory apparatus, a sound body. In short, the qualities which make a good athlete are required of a flyer. Of course he should have physical and moral courage as well. In all of these qualifications Negroes have given ample demonstration of their fitness. A race which has produced, in the span of a few years, Joe Louis, Henry Armstrong, Jesse Owens, Jefferson of Northwestern, Ozzie Simmons of Iowa, a substantial number of Golden Gloves champions, and a score of other absolutely top-notch athletes, provides a rich resource which ought not to be lost to the country thru prejudice. In the face of this roster of world champions the physical fitness and courage of their race cannot be questioned by any reasonable man.

The record suggests that the country would lose less by refusing to train Harvard, Yale, and Princeton men for the flying corps than by refusing to train Negroes.

NEW YORKERS FOR CONSCRIPTION.

As the struggle to send America into the war grows fiercer, such violent exchanges as those of Tuesday in the senate are probably as unavoidable as they are unfortunate. The men who met at the Harvard club in New York City on May 22 and on two later occasions to organize in support of the conscription bill are above suspicion as to patriotism and honesty.

They are, as one of them said, old Plattsburg men. They are members of the Military Training Camps association, which has helped to keep the military training of civilians going. This is one of the few things the United States has done to prepare itself in time of peace. The members of the association have offered their own services and they have encouraged and stimulated others to do so.

It is true that many of their contacts—family, social, and financial—are overseas, and they may not see a national problem with the single eye of people in the west who have not been bred in Atlantic seaboard traditions and associations. But they are not to be charged with a lack of patriotism. They are no more guilty of that than people who wish to keep us out of war are guilty of working for Hitler.

As the debate over this untimely and unfortunate issue grows more furious, accusations from both sides will tend to be less and less discriminating and proceed from criticism of a point of view to strictures on character. It is further unfortunate for the appearance of what these members of the Military Training Camps association did that they raised a large sum of money to be used in putting the conscription bill over. It was to be spent, they explain, entirely in presenting the arguments for conscription to the public and thus get a favorable opinion back of the bill.

New York thinks in terms of money, and these citizens did what they supposed any cause required. It must have a lot of cash. They made no secrecy of what they were doing and, if they were misguided, they at least didn't try to hide their activity. They have just received a lot of criticism and they will get a great deal more.

Senator Holt will not be the only person to point to this episode as proof that certain men connected with high finance again are trying to send the country to war to protect investments and make profits. We don't believe that of these men, altho we feel that their ideas and their activities at this time are not to the benefit of their country but are injurious in more ways than one. What is going on now in administrative circles has nine applications to the campaign for the third term to one for national defense.

It may be conceded that these men are unselfish in urging the conscription. They know that the seaboard people do not volunteer. They have never volunteered for war and they are not volunteering now. A volunteer army would have to come from the west and south.

The advocates of conscription were most unfortunate, also, in the character of their defender in the senate. It was their bad luck that it had to be Minton of Indiana. He seldom chooses a good side and, if by some chance he has one, he immediately makes it much the worse by associating himself with it.

THE REARMAMENT BAROMETER.

The United States Steel corporation has unfilled orders on hand for about 2½ million tons of steel. That is the smallest amount in the history of the corporation previous to 1932. The world war peak early in 1917 was 12 million tons. At the highest in 1929 the corporation had 4.5 million tons of uncompleted business. Even at the end of the first quarter in 1932 near the depression bottom the corporation had as much business on the books as at present.

Steel is a basic material in national defense. It is used not only in making guns, ammunition, armor plate, and the various kinds of motorized equipment which have played such an important part in German success, but in the specialized machinery which will have to be built to produce billions of dollars' worth of armament quickly.

The administration may believe that a conscript army must be quickly called, but it isn't getting plants busy making equipment such as armies must have to be effective. If it were the United States Steel corporation would reflect it. It is the dominant company in its industry, and because of diversification of its products it is certain to receive a large share of the orders for steel needed in rearmament. Rearmament cannot be making much progress when the combined commercial and war orders are only equal to five weeks' capacity output of Big Steel.

INTANGIBLE WITNESS.

[Washington Star.]

When Dr. Boyce of Los Angeles, plaintiff, insisted on the appearance in court of a certain witness in his behalf, he created a situation that would have puzzled Blackstone himself. The doctor called for one Sho Sha, described by him as a resident of the spirit world. The judge, according to legal custom, thereupon issued a subpena for the person of Sho Sha, assuming that a ghost has a person, and passed it on to a pair of deputies to serve.

Subpena servers, in order to survive at their trade, have to be resourceful. From constant practice they are usually able to put the bite on their customers, but in this case they had not the ghost of a chance. The only address they had was care of Mrs. Loretta Julian, psychic sensitive, who had first introduced Sho Sha to the doctor. The medium, admitting that Sho Sha was under her management, obligingly put in a call for him by going into a trance, while the deputies stood by waiting to hand over the legal document as soon as the spirit materialized enough to take it. But her efforts proved futile. Sho Sha declined to appear and is now held in contempt subject to a hundred dollar fine. In this whole shady story the haziest possibility of all is that of collecting.

There is said to be a serious shortage of toolmakers, gaugemakers, die sinkers, and other skilled mechanics at the Springfield armory, where the Garand rifle is being manufactured. Is it possible that pending the importation of additional workmen, if any, the armory employés are being restricted to a 40 hour week?

THE MAN WHO LIVED FOREVER.

We see in the news of the courts of law that Saint-Germain has cropped up again [the "Great I Am" case], and we proceed to pounce upon him like a hawk on a June bug, for he is a fascinating character in the fringes of history. He figures as a patron saint for the various cults of mysticism which are derived from the Illuminati and Rosicrucians of the 15th and 16th centuries, but his earlier incarnations didn't leave much evidence. He operated in a large way, however, in the 18th century, and his trail may be crossed in the writings of such credible witnesses as Horace Walpole, Voltaire, and Baron von Grimm.

Adventurer, charlatan, and alchemist are the words with which skeptics describe this mystifying fellow. He called himself the Comte de Saint-Germain, for no special reason except that the name had a noble sound. [He is not to be confused with M. de Saint-Germain, which was a monicker of the Old Pretender, and Claude Louis, Comte de Saint-Germain, who was a French general of the same period.]

The phony Saint-Germain is believed to have been a Portuguese Jew. He spoke German, English, Italian, French, Portuguese, and Spanish. He composed music, played the violin skilfully, had an uncanny knowledge of ancient and modern history, and was a high grade chemist for his time. He claimed to be able to remove flaws from diamonds, to transmute the baser metals into gold, and to preserve life indefinitely by means of a secret elixir. He often asserted that he had lived for 2,000 years.

Saint-Germain was arrested in England as a Jacobite spy in 1743. He appeared at the French court in 1748 and was high in the favor of Louis XV. for a while. He turned up again in London in 1760, and in Russia in 1762. There he is said to have been an important figure in a conspiracy that placed Catherine II. on the throne.

Then he went to Germany, where he was called "Der Wundermann." He initiated Cagliostro into the higher degrees of hanky panky. He spent his declining years in Schleswig-Holstein, studying alchemy and whatnot with a German prince as his pal. He died there in 1780 or 1785; but——

He is said to have been seen in Paris four years after his death! [See "Historical Mysteries," by Andrew Lang.]

WOLVES ARE LOOSE.

Now human wolves will slash the throat of the world,
To sate their lean ferocity
they have hurled
Their fiercest ranks, with lightning strokes: there lies
Each ravished victim, under cruel skies.

For nation after nation
is no more:
Sharp fangs have found their prey, and drip with gore.
The skulking jackals, vultures, scent a kill;
They tear at carrion, and eat their fill.

Beware! Those human wolves are not full fed:
A lust to kill will grow, where blood drips red!

In Praise of Skyscrapers.

Canyons of steel and concrete. Mighty squares of granite. Sheer cliffs of massive limestone. Great pyramids of earth torn rock. Citadels of shining tile. Cloud capped steeples of unbelievable height. Soaring ramparts of appalling verticality. Multistoried temples of beauty and utility. Pinnacles of bare glory and of strength. Symbols of ancient worships and testaments of man's lofty aspiration. Mad dreams come true of legendary architects of Babylon.

Let a new Monet arise to paint the mansions of the sky in all their aspects. Half hidden summits in the dawn mist. Coral tinted spires in the early morning glow. Dazzling beacons at high noon. Lengthening shadows at the base courts. Majestic battlemented bastions against a blood-red setting sun. Blazing evening lights and scintillating jewel towers. Somber, mysterious barriers to the midnight moon.

"Skyscrapers." Salutations to the inspired lexicologist who first conceived your name! J. J. L.

The Campaign Is Getting Hot.

A notice printed in the Schuyler News of Rushville, Ill.:

"Posting of New Deal campaign literature on my building, located at the corner of North Liberty and Jefferson streets, is hereby positively forbidden, and any infringement, such as has been done for several campaigns in the past, will meet with severe and just punishment.—Alice V. Garrison."

THE LAKE BREEZE.

Stealthily it steals across
Water fast asleep,
Till the waking ripples toss
Spray, and whitecaps leap.

Stronger, stronger comes the breeze;
Waves caress the shore;
Fluttering, the deathstill trees
Pulse with life once more.

Weary souls on beds of pain
Utter thankful prayers,
Knowing they called not in vain
To the One who cares.

Declination of a Nomination.

Sir: In the realm of insignificancy there are two distinguished seats: the one, the position of the father of the bridegroom at a wedding; the other, the occupant of the Vice President's chair. The best appreciation of the latter was contained in the classic comment of Speaker Joseph Cannon when he refused to be considered as a candidate.

An' sae, wi' apology

FOOD LIKES AND DISLIKES.

IN common parlance we refer to animal instinct rather than intelligence. We assume that certain procedures are performed as a matter of course—without teaching and certainly without demonstration. The mother attributes seem to be inherent. Regardless of the species, the knowledge of how to provide nourishment and transportation, as well as the principles of reproduction, are highly developed.

In the selection of food, however, animals and semibarbaric peoples appear to be far more sensible than civilized man. We eat things that "taste good" and seem to have no innate comprehension of our requirements. Long before we discovered the value of the hormones present in the lining of the gastric pouch and along the digestive tract, Indian tribes of the great west—boasting many perfect physical specimens—were consuming liver and other internal organs as the most coveted portions of the animal. Their routine use of glandular products prevented deficiency diseases, so well known to our day and age.

Laboratory workers who have been using rats in feeding experiments encounter the greatest difficulty in producing dietary failure because when mixed edibles are supplied, the rodents pick out only those substances which they apparently need. One investigator found it necessary to pulverize the material so fine that worthless particles could not be detected. Where wheat kernels were soaked in an extremely dilute noxious chemical, they declined to ingest the injured cereal. When this "doctored" ration was combined with normal grain they would unerringly choose the innocuous kernels.

In a series of studies reported by Richter and others, it was shown clearly that white rats will select a diet which is accurately balanced, if given the opportunity. In other words, they will take exactly the correct proportions of proteins, carbohydrates, minerals, and vitamins.

The query then comes: Have we crushed a trait or a tendency in our progeny that really should be encouraged? In our childhood, we were made to eat what was set before us and to ask no questions. Perhaps we can call to mind a tot who was told to drink a glass of milk or take a whipping. Tearfully he would gulp the liquid—later to suffer from indigestion or be otherwise indisposed. We have learned that many persons are allergic [sensitive] to this fluid. Disciplinary measures designed to force children to swallow anything against which every cell of their being rebels, may work against good hygiene.

But tastes can be acquired just as sensitivity can wear away and this is the reason why some who have been unable to eat fish or other articles, well known to be responsible for hives, can do so later in life.

Deficiencies will not exist if we can procure a proper ratio of essential elements. Possibly the one who shuns cow's milk would, if left alone, find his lime in other ways and this may explain a craving for raw potatoes, turnips, carrots, etc. No doubt this yearning arises because minerals and vitamins are lacking.

Some of our cooking processes have added to the artificiality of our meals—causing the loss of many nutritive properties. If we have true instincts we will probably benefit rather than harm ourselves and our offspring by yielding to likes and dislikes. But we must distinguish between fussy or finicky appetites and a reaction against some comestible.

WATERMELONS.

M. R. writes: What food value has watermelon? How about vitamins?

REPLY.

Slight—due to the sugar in the juice. It has a moderate amount of vitamin C and some A and B.

TOO MUCH RADIO.

Tortured writes: Is there such a thing as radioitis? What causes some people to have the radio going constantly, listening to nothing in particular?

REPLY.

A well known malady, related to movieitis, addiction to roller skating, etc. The type of nervousness responsible will yield to silence and rest. A good book or magazine is an excellent antidote.

BLOOD BANKS.

D. K. writes: I have heard about blood banks. Can human blood be stored and used for transfusion whenever it is needed?

REPLY.

Yes, this plan is in successful use in a number of hospitals. The fluid retains its vitality and potency without change for about 14 days. Thereafter the reactions increase. Blood that is thirty days old may be used in emergencies. In some cases, material that is not more than two days old is necessary.

HE CHANGED HIS MIND.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 5.— I quote from Mr. Roosevelt's address to the Democratic victory dinner delivered on March 4, 1937:

"My great ambition on Jan. 20, 1941, is to turn over this desk and chair in the White House to my successor, whoever he may be, with the assurance that I am at the same time turning over to him as President a nation intact, a nation at peace, a nation prosperous, a nation clear in its knowledge of what powers it has to serve its own citizens, a nation that is in a position to use those powers to the full, in order to move forward steadily to meet the modern needs of humanity; a nation which has thus proved that the democratic form and methods of national government can succeed."

He has reversed his ambition at least in the terminology of a President. Perhaps President Roosevelt wishes to think he will turn chair and desk over to First Dictator Roosevelt.

ANTI THIRD TERMITE.

BOTH SIDES OF IT.

Dubuque, Ia., Aug. 4.—I was pleased to read your editorial announcing that you were going to give space to both sides in the approaching campaign. The Tribune is a fine paper and has informative articles on all subjects—commerce, finances, crops, charts of business, farm, etc., and it is a shame so many people are so prejudiced against you for your anti-New Deal attitude that they won't read well worth while news in your paper. This attitude is detrimental to your paper. Now you are on the right track by allowing the New Deal expression in your columns just like the anti-New Deal side. The New Deal is entitled to have its views presented to the public in its own way and I am highly pleased that you have decided to give it space for its views. Answer them if you want, but give them space.

UKULELE AND GUITAR.

Chicago, Aug. 3.—Many thanks for the music and songs in the Sunday's Graphic section. The arrangements are splendid.

Would it be possible to include the ukulele and guitar chord symbols, as is done in all popular music these days?

This would be of great benefit to thousands of players of these instruments. At present I write the symbols in each measure, but there are many players of these instruments who are not able to interpret the harmony into chord symbols.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Aug. 8, 1918

The "black day" of the German army in the world war, according to Gen. Ludendorff. After this date the German command gave up hope of victory, or even of holding their gains, and hoped only to avoid surrender and possibly crack the allied morale thru a strategic defense. This point, Ludendorff said later, "put the decline of our fighting power beyond all doubt . . . the war must be ended."

WPA MOTHER'S SON MAKES GOOD.

Chicago, Aug. 4.—Recently you reported that Cadet Capt. Edwin M. Wojdak of Crane Tech had been chosen as one of six high school graduates for the 1st division scholarships to the Citadel, Charleston, S. C., military school which is headed by Gen. C. P. Summerall.

Young Wojdak lives at 1751 N. Whipple street. He is one of four children of Mrs. M. Wojdak, employed as a seamstress on WPA Project 30,224, 3930 Federal street. She receives $52 a month. Much credit should be given this little mother for her devotion and for the faith she has in this son and her other children.

She has worked hard to keep her family together but could not give them the worldly goods that most young people today enjoy. In spite of that, this young man graduated with the highest average in the entire city of Chicago and is an honor to his school, his community and to the WPA.

Give the WPA people a break. Most of us are good American citizens and should receive your attention more than criminals who wormed themselves into WPA some time or other.

MRS. ANN FISHER.

ENGLISH VIA RADIO.

Oak Park, Aug. 3.—For some time, like Grace K. Fusch, whose letter on pronunciation appeared yesterday, I have been going to complain of the murder of the English language by various radio newscasters. I supposed that in order to obtain such a position one must have not only a good voice but be well educated. Yet every day one may hear the following: Onable for unable, frahntier for frontier, deMONstration, and, believe it or not, one spoke of the "exODus of the refugees." Then there is the announcer who always says "parlyament" and "exQUISite." When it comes to foreign names it is easy to overlook their struggles, but there is no excuse I know of for pronouncing Glasgow to rhyme with cow, which makes one say "ow." LoTHYan, Stettin-eye-us and—shades of New England!—Henry CaboTT Lodge are what some of them get away with. Is there no way for these announcers to check what they are doubtful of, or aren't they doubtful?

EDITH F. LEASURE.

WHY ISN'T JIMMY THERE?

Oak Park, Ill., Aug. 6.—The place of danger for the marines is in China. They are there because President Roosevelt keeps them there. It is not very uplifting to think that Col. Roosevelt of the marines is not at the place of honor.

JAKE K.

PERSHING AND LINDBERGH.

Chicago, Aug. 5.—I think Gen. Pershing dug up his speech from the antique war equipment heap. We heard it many years ago.

We remember the thanks America got after the last world war. As before.

First sympathy, then change the law, send ammunition, planes, boats, brass bands, and then the boys. For what?

It's great to be an American when a man like Lindbergh can talk facts in spite of being told to speak guardedly.

O. H.

Chicago, Aug. 5.—When the thug is approaching me my fervent hope will be that the passerby to whom I call for help shall not be Col. Lindbergh. He would have no qualms about dismissing the plea, readily discerning that it was merely another case of the age-old struggle over the division of wealth. C. K. P.

Chicago, Aug. 5.—Any one who has read Gen. Pershing's memoirs cannot help but be profoundly shocked by the general's radio speech last night!

AN ANXIOUS MOTHER.

A FISHERMAN'S TROUBLES.

Ottawa, Ill., Aug. 5.—I am one of many fishermen in this state trying to make a living and in so doing I have to compete with WPA.

The state of Wisconsin does all its fishing with WPA labor, furnished and paid by the taxpayer. They are sending fish to the Chicago market for 1 cent a pound and keeping the market flooded.

I always was under the impression that WPA could not be used to compete with private industry. Am I right or am I wrong?

I fish a state contract for the state and pay them one-half cent a pound for carp and 1 cent a pound for buffalo. How am I going to do this if Wisconsin keeps flooding the market? Why not give our fishermen a chance and let Wisconsin take care of its own? EDWARD BOSS.

WHERE'S THE PENSION INCREASE?

Chicago, Aug. 2.—I suppose there are thousands of old age pensioners, like myself, wondering why we haven't received the increase, which was originally passed by the state legislature more than a year ago, but vetoed by Gov. Horner on account of an erroneous statement by our United States senator. At the last special session of the legislature the bill was again introduced and carried, later being approved by the governor—more than two months ago.

If there was no appropriation made for the increase whereby the increase could be made, why make such a bill law?

Could any one enlighten me?

GOLF EMPLOYE KILLED AS CAR SIDEWIPES TRUCK

Steve Streick, golf course employé at the Edgewood Valley Country club in La Grange, was killed yesterday when his car sidewiped a truck in Joliet road, west of La Grange road, near Lyons. He was 25 years old. The truck was driven by Wayne Schmucker, 25, of Iowa City, Ia.

Angelo Gregor, 47, was killed at Michigan and Balbo avenues. He stepped in front of a car driven by Emery Joiner, 44, of 5638 South Elizabeth street, the head of a dental laboratory. Gregor was unemployed. He lived at 2220 Wabash avenue.

DRUNKEN DRIVER GETS NINETY DAY JAIL SENTENCE

Frank Misurelli, 29 years old, was sentenced to 90 days in jail in Criminal court yesterday on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

Police told Judge U. S. Schwartz that they arrested Misurelli in Chicago Heights July 8 after he had dodged in and out of traffic at 75 miles an hour. They said that they then found he was intoxicated.

Misurelli gave an address in the 2100 block of Michigan avenue, but police said they were unable to find any one there who knew him. The case came to Criminal court from a justice of the peace court in Chicago Heights.

PICK WEST SIDE SOPRANO, BASSO VOCAL WINNERS

64 Compete in Event of Music Festival.

More than 400 persons filled the ballroom of the Graemere hotel last night to hear 64 sopranos and bassos sing for a chance to be heard at the 11th Chicagoland Musical Festival in Soldiers' field on the night of Aug. 17.

Miss Elsie Imhof.

Awards were made in four soprano divisions and these, with the bassos, complete the west side's contingent of vocalists. The best man and woman singer in Chicagoland will be chosen on the afternoon of festival day.

A young woman, who as a champion A. A. U. sprinter several years ago developed a fine pair of lungs, led the mezzo soprano division. She is Miss Elsie Imhof, 29 years old, 1804 Congress street.

Housewife Places Second.

Second place went to Helene Wojnarowski, 26 years old, 2134 Point avenue, a housewife. Paderewski is her musical inspiration, she said. Clara Confare, 25, of 711 Loomis street, was third. She is the daughter of Thomas Confare, former band leader.

Lillian Vesely, soloist in the Wheaton Presbyterian church, took first place in the lyric soprano group. Miss Vesely, who won second place last year, earned her bachelor's degree in music at McMurray college, Jacksonville, Ill., and has taught in the public schools. She is 23 and lives at 159 Addison road, Riverside.

Helene M. Maxouris, 21, of 5433 Congress street, was second and Miss Beatrice Ulbricht, 18, of 723 Wenonah avenue, Oak Park, was third.

The closest contest of the evening was won by Miss Marion Lorraine Huebner, 21, of 3336 North Springfield avenue, who was called back with four other dramatic sopranos to sing a second time for the judges. She is a pianist as well as a vocalist and won her teacher's degree on a scholarship at North Park Junior college.

Second honors went to Miss Frances Sorkin, 17, of 3823 Polk street. Miss Alice A. Hanson, 300 South Ridgeland avenue, Oak Park, was third.

Third Festival Contest.

It was the third festival contest for Miss Dorothy Cornfield, 18, of 4818½ North Kimball avenue, who won the contest for coloraturas. Competing on the north side last year, she took first place. In 1938 she was second.

Second place was taken by Miss Louise L. Dolezal, 24, of 6112 Cermak road. Third place honors went to Miss Dorothy Goldberg, 19, of 4910 North Spaulding avenue.

William J. Manthei, who stands 6 feet 3½ inches, won first place among the bassos. The singer, who is 30 and lives at 4243 Potomac avenue, was second in 1938 and third last year. He is a bank clerk and a church soloist. Robert L. Smith, 25, of 401 North Lombard avenue, Oak Park, was second and Constantine A. Reusch, 26, of 308 25th street, Bellwood, was third.

Judges of the contest were Mrs. Ernest J. Kruetgen, wife of the postmaster; Richard De Young, voice teacher, and Raymond Koch. Mrs. Edmund Tyler, chairman of festival vocal and choral contests, conducted the competitions.

Contests for south side vocalists will begin at the Shoreland hotel tonight when tenors, contraltos and baritones will be heard. Sopranos and bassos will sing tomorrow night, beginning at 7 p. m.

TEST YOUR HORSE SENSE

Select the answer which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers on page 26.

1. A pignut is most nearly akin to the Walnut Almond Hazel nut Hickory nut
2. To parboil food means to Boil it to pieces Stew slowly Partially boil Steam it
3. A young man sent his sweetheart a mastiff for a present. Would she most likely put it in The garage Her hair On her dressing table In her bookcase
4. A housewife would most likely use madras for making Sheets Husband's shirts Junior's overalls Bath towels.
5. The word "oleander" should remind one of Hair oil Margarine Medicine Flowering shrub
6. A little boy was playing with a neighbor's dog when he was bitten on the hand. The proper action for the boy's father, who was standing near by, would be to ……Kill the dog immediately to prevent its biting others.
   ……Insist that the owner kill the dog at once and have its head analyzed for rabies.
   ……Have the dog penned up for two weeks to see if it has rabies.
   ……Ignore the situation as a common experience in childhood.

Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6, average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—The last question counts five points.]

COUNCIL BANS JAYWALKING IN CROWDED AREAS

Jay walking will be prohibited in the loop and other busy sections of Chicago by a new ordinance which was passed yesterday by the city council and goes into effect Aug. 31. Violators are to be arrested and fined $1 to $200 for each offense.

Capt. David Flynn of the traffic division said he believes the new ordinance will help prevent accidents. He intends to discuss methods of enforcement with Commissioner Allman before the ordinance becomes effective.

The new regulations will be effective only in sections where there are traffic lights at all four corners of a block. This will restrict enforcement to the loop and important business sections elsewhere in the city.

The ordinance was recommended by the council committee on traffic. It follows a practice already observed in some other cities.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste matter out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Who says ALL-BRAN is America's dependable laxative cereal? The one million people who choose it for breakfast, or some other meal, every day. On the average day, one million servings!

But that's only part of the story. For 20 years Americans have looked to ALL-BRAN as an answer to the problem of common constipation (due to lack of the right kind of "bulk" in the diet).

The test of science

Research scientists—both nutritionists and medical men in famous universities—have proven ALL-BRAN's effectiveness over and over again. Millions of people have used it.

Head of Plan Commission Refuses to Accept Salary

George T. Horton, newly appointed chairman of the Chicago Plan commission, declined in a letter read to the city council yesterday to accept any salary for the post. The council has passed an ordinance placing Horton's compensation at $50 a day and not to exceed $5,000 a year. Horton asked repeal of this action, and the matter was referred to the finance committee. Horton is president of the Chicago Bridge and Iron company.

Flying termites can be destroyed with an insect spray, but colonies of termites established within wood itself present a problem....And prevention is easier than cure!

Grindstone Is Often Enemy of Romance

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"If a man tells me that he loves me, and has given me nice gifts and attentions to show it, but then gets his money all tied up in a new business and doesn't see me any more, could he possibly be in love with me? He tells me to call him at his place of business any time, any day, any hour. He says he does not know when he will get a day off, but that it will be mine to decide what to do with when he does get it. He says, if I give him a few months, he'll prove his attitude toward me. But I can't understand. If he loves me, why do I have to suffer all the disappointments I'm knowing now? —BEULAH."

Well, Beulah, these are hectic days in the business world, and woman's patience is drawn upon in more quarters than you imagine. We cannot see any reason to doubt the man's word, altho we do feel that, in his zeal to make a success of his business, he is forgetting that there should be some time out for other things, especially for the attention love requires with a girl like you, Beulah.

Working night and day, every day of the week and month, isn't the formula for success. One gets too confused with his nose to the grindstone every minute. One stands in danger of losing that something which starts one back on a new morning with renewed and revitalized zeal. If you could get this argument over to your young man, Beulah, we think you wouldn't have any problem whatever. But you must not do it in a nagging or self-pitying way. It's his interests you must appear to be looking out for, his health and his welfare.

You, yourself, must try to understand that you are the impetus to his constant business activity, and you'll be the one to profit eventually, no doubt. As hinted, love sometimes has to be relegated these days to a shadowy background, but not a permanently shadowed one, you understand.

Hints on Preserving Your Grooming on Sports Occasions

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

With all the fancy "doodads" we women are encouraged to wear for active sports activities, is it any wonder that we are likely to feel self-conscious when our hair gets blown about by the breeze, perspiration rolls down our faces and makes us feel generally uncomfortable, not only from a physical standpoint, but from a general appearance viewpoint?

Yes, we can don fancy slacks and play suits, tie pretty ribbons or bandanas about our hair to keep it from blowing in our eyes [it's a pretty way to outsmart the wind!], but what we all want to do is to look just as appealing to masculine eyes while participating in various sports activities as we do when we have just stepped from a refreshing shower, and are all dressed up in our clean, fresh garments, with fresh makeup applied, too.

What's the trick, you ask? Well, it IS a trick, but with a little careful planning, you CAN manage to look attractive and not the least bit self-conscious about your looks. We'll offer a few suggestions with which you can experiment. You may think of some yourself. Anyway, let's get our thinking caps on and go to work on ourselves to see how attractive we can look under trying circumstances.

In the first place, unless you've a slim enough "figger," we suggest that you purchase an inexpensive play girdle that the stores are featuring for active sports wear. Under no circumstances neglect to wear some kind of girdle, for when you're reaching for that high tennis ball you won't present a very pretty picture if you wiggle in spots like a bowl of jelly.

In the second place, see to these grooming details: Have your legs and underarms free of superfluous hair; be sure that your hair is clean and waved, either naturally, or with a fresh permanent; start out with fresh play clothes each "performance"; keep your nails well groomed [even if they do get a little dirty while you're playing it won't take much going over to repair them afterward]; and last, but not least, see that your makeup fits the occasion. Don't apply so much that it looks artificial in strong sunlight.

Frock with Girlish Effect

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

That very desirable girlish effect is one of the recommendations for this frock, which may be made of either crêpe or sheer woolen for the coming school season. Business girls, too, will like this frock for its precise, altho feminine, air. In fact, it's a dress that is suitable for any occasion in the daytime, and makes a dashing appearance for informal evening "dates" as well. A delicate print is a possibility, too, and the fluid lines of jersey will make up handsomely.

Style No. 3377 is designed for sizes 12, 14, and 16, and 36, 38, and 40 inch bust measurements. Size 16 requires 3¼ yards of 39 inch material for short sleeve dress, with ⅝ yard of contrasting for collar and cuffs.

Box 337, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Universal Day—It looks as if it might be hard to concentrate today, but do your best.

Expression is the keyword for a 3-month. When you have a 3 vibration you should express yourself, either thru your talents or thru friendships. If you sing, sing, and if you write, it will be the best time to put forth your literary efforts. The danger lies in not having anything worth while to express and so descend to gossip and a frittering away of time and energy on trivialities. Be gay, friendly, and cheerful.

Year Ahead—Those in a 3-year, which includes today's birthday children, ought to be at the height of their self-expression right now. Make the most of it because routine looms up in 1941.

Show a Child Courtesy You Would Adults

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.
(Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.)

They sat right in front of me at recent high school graduating exercises which were held out on the wide lawn edged with great trees, a little girl of about six and two women. There was a great deal going on for a child as well as grownups to enjoy, a band playing, young people marching, flags fluttering in the cool breeze, other children on nearby chairs.

But this little girl didn't seem to see it, or at least to take it in. She really caught my attention because, as she wriggled around before us, she displayed probably the most discontented and peevish little face I'd ever seen. It was not at us she turned to look, but up at her mother, with an unchildlike look of actual dislike. Right after one of these hostile glances, she'd pull her chair away or slightly brush her feet against her mother's skirt, at which her mother would swing around, jerk her and the chair back, or snap at her with a frown and compressed lips, then turn back to talk gayly and smilingly to her two women friends.

It was all so marked that, right close to me as it was, it obtruded itself on my attention. Not once during the whole performance did I see one warm or friendly little attention or gesture given to the child. While she, involved with the discontent within her, could not give herself to the pleasant occasion.

Suppose, I couldn't help thinking to myself and saying silently to that mother, you'd try a few of those smiles on your little girl. Suppose you'd spare some of that chumminess for her. Suppose, when she spoke to you, you were at least civil enough to answer. And if you answered, suppose you were as courteous as you are to these two friends of yours. Suppose you were like that with your little girl! She wouldn't be the unappealing litle girl she is now.

Something similar happened on the way home, too. This was also the case of two women and a little girl.

The woman who was sitting next to the little girl simply turned her back to her so she could talk to her friend, and kept it turned there thruout the trip.

When the little girl tried to speak to her, she'd barely answer, then turn back again. When the friend got up to leave, she said goodby to the mother effusively and didn't notice the child. And when, after she got out on the platform, the sweet and unresentful little thing waved and called goodby thru the window, the woman barely responded, moving her lips in a lifeless and perfunctory smile. The child was, to all intents and purposes, completely ignored.

Naturally, two grown people and a child can't behave in just the same way as one grown person and a child, but even when there were three, the mother or the friend could have shown an inclusive feeling, even if they did talk mostly to each other. There are ways of doing this, with a friendly smile when eyes meet or a little short conversation tucked in here and there, or a cozy pat of the hand, just some occasional show of interest to make the child feel one of three instead of a bored outsider.

All of which is only saying a very simple thing, that we need common courtesy in our relations with our children as we do with grownups.

THRU THE LOOKING GLASS

One of the blessings—and it isn't a minor one—of the age in which we live is the popularity and the effectiveness of modern deodorants. Makes you wonder how in the world men or women with any sense of fastidiousness ever got along without them.

The deodorant cologne is a comparatively recent inspiration, and a welcome one. The use of an antiperspirant is not a very quick operation. It's most important with this type of preparation to follow directions exactly — most products emphasize the necessity of allowing ample time for the preparation to dry thoroughly. But there are occasions when the time isn't available—and this is when the quick drying deodorant that does not injure fabric is invaluable.

Deodorant colognes serve a double purpose, refreshing and deodorizing at once. The makers of one of the best antiperspirants, manufacturers who have a great deal of integrity about their products, have just brought out a deodorant cologne that satisfies their exacting requirements. They're pretty well pleased with it, and they have every right to be.

There are two colognes, in fact. One which men will like particularly has a fresh, mentholated fragrance. It couldn't be described precisely as a perfume. The other is a perfumed cologne, but the scent is a clean, delicate one.

These colognes can be used at odd moments when a deodorant and refreshant is needed. They dry quickly, are harmless to fabrics, and, at least so far as the most rigid tests would show, are not irritating to the most sensitive skin. They're grand things to use after exercise.

Velveteens in Shops Prove Fall Is Near

BY REA SEEGER.

New arrivals unrolled in the fabric collections causing no end of shopping excitement are the velveteens and corduroys destined for swank street outfits. The velveteens are especially easy to take. They're amazingly softer than ever before; that old wiry stiffness has been abolished, and this year's stuff ranks with thick velvet for sheer flexibility and flattery.

There's one new shade of gun metal gray that promises to be a winner. With so many smart new fall costumes featuring shades of gray, the velveteen designers have surely presented a particularly stunning tone in this. Other colors to take the eye are coppers, all shades of dark brown, and some more-than-effective sand beige tints.

Used for trim tailored outfits, some fashioned in two piece effects to simulate clever suits with pockets, high necklines, and long fitted sleeves, or as one piece dresses with huge pockets, welt seams, concealed pleats, and stitched bands, such velveteen models will provide the ideal all purpose or general daytime dress for any smartly planned fall and winter wardrobe.

There are high shades as well as dark, and many in between colors ready for the different looking costume—crimson, old gold, Lincoln green, silvery gray, carbon blue, and so on.

The corduroy is featured for college clothes and for trim two piece suits, with either short or long sleeves. Ribbing or wales this season are narrow and fine, altho the wider wale effects are obtainable in an interesting array of colors. See these new fabrics if you have any doubt that a fall season is here! The prices are extremely low if you need any further encouragement.

Gracie Fields' Assets Are Still in England, Her Accountant Says

LONDON, Aug. 7 (AP).—An accountant for Gracie Fields, Lancashire comedienne now in Canada, issued a statement today declaring that she had "substantial assets" in England.

The Navy league, meantime, reported that Miss Fields had arranged to give her services gratis at 32 concerts from Vancouver to Halifax in helping the league supply comforts to British sailors.

A treasury spokesman yesterday said Miss Fields had not sought to take more than the regulation $40 when she went to the United States recently, but last fall she and her Italian husband, Monty Banks, took about $112,000 out of the country with them.

[Yesterday in Toronto Miss Fields said she and her husband had done nothing wrong, that most of her assets were in England, and that she intended to return there.]

It Was a Great Day for Lake Forest Youngsters

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Barbara Lund was one of the hundreds of children—and grown-ups—making merry at a carnival in West park, Lake Forest, yesterday. A ferris wheel and merry-go-round and lots of ice cream, hot dogs, popcorn, and fizzy drinks for refreshments made the day a jolly one for the youngsters. The festival was sponsored by the George Alexander McKinloch Jr. post of the American Legion.

Sally Selects Guests Today for Next Party

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

Judging from the huge stack of mail on my desk, it looks as tho every boy and girl in the city has written in for an invitation to see "Protigies on Parade" at the Jack and Jill studio next week!

Of course, I couldn't possibly squeeze in that many at any party, but we will have room for 100 of you on Aug. 15, and I'm going to read all your letters and select my guests today. The winners will see their names listed in next Sunday's TRIBUNE, and the party will take place just one week from today.

I hope that all you boys and girls who've won invitations to this week's party at the Studio theater are ready for your special treat. The fortunate fifties who've been invited to see "Scatterbrain" with me today had better tuck their invitations carefully into their pockets before leaving home, because you must bring them with you.

I'm sure you'll all manage to be prompt, and that we won't have to wait for any slow-pokes, because I know you won't want to miss a single minute of Judy Canova's latest comedy.

See you all this afternoon, boys and girls!

Visit in the Berkshires.

The Berkshire music center established by the Boston Symphony orchestra is in the midst of its first season here on the historic estate of Tanglewood, where Nathaniel Hawthorne wrote his famous Tanglewood Tales. For six seasons thousands of music lovers have come to the Berkshires to hear Koussevitzky and the Boston symphony, but never before have all the buildings at Tanglewood been thus in use.

We went to a morning rehearsal of the orchestra. While the strains of Ravel's Daphnis et Chloe were coming from the great outdoor symphony shed, voices of the festival chorus, practicing the Kyrie from Bach's Mass in B Minor, could be heard from the barn down the hill and in one of the classrooms. Composer Roy Harris was addressing a class on composition, and there were activities in garage, toolhouse, and classrooms.

* * *

It was as pastoral a scene as you could imagine at Tanglewood, in spite of all this musical activity. Cows grazed in the pasture, the meadows lay green in the August sunshine, and the view from Tanglewood across Lake Mahkeenac to the blue misted Berkshires was as enchanting as you could find anywhere. Three hundred students are "living and working in music." A young orchestra with youthful conductors is one of the departments. Dr. Koussevitzky sits in the audience and occasionally interrupts the playing by an electric flash signal, to advise or correct, while pupils of conducting watch and listen.

Music students also flock to the morning rehearsal and, scores in hand, follow the symphony being rehearsed. Present, by permission, at this morning's rehearsal were many notables of the music world. Conductor Artur Rodzinski, who has a house near by; Cellist Gregor Piatigorsky, Arthur Fiedler, conductor of the Boston "Pops" orchestra, and several others stood chatting in a little group in the sunshine; a sister-in-law of Rodzinski and her small son, refugees from Poland, sat on a nearby bench; Actress Tallulah Bankhead, who has been playing in summer theater, sat in the shed, in slacks and a tomato red blouse, listening intently.

During rehearsal intermission Arthur Cable, trustee and official of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, was taken backstage to see Mr. Koussevitzky. The great conductor, perspiring profusely, a sweater thrown about him, was gracious and cordial.

"The Chicago Symphony orchestra must come to Boston next winter to play," he said. "We want you."

Community Day at Lake Forest Is Gala Event

BY JUDITH CASS.

THERE is one day each summer in Lake Forest to which all the children look forward eagerly and that is Lake Forest day, which is sponsored by the George Alexander McKinlock Jr. post of the American Legion. "Let's be at home on Lake Forest day," the youngsters all urge their parents, for on that day they have an amusement park within walking or bicycling distance of their homes.

Yesterday was the big day, and what a day it was. First there was a parade with decorated floats, bicycles and doll carriages, bands and fire engines. Perhaps most of the commuting colony mothers weren't downtown to see it, but you may be sure all their children were, and all the mothers were at the carnival in West park in the afternoon, for Wednesday is nurses' day off.

There was a merry-go-round, a roller coaster, a Ferris wheel and various other contrivances to mix well the ice cream cones, soda pop, popcorn, peanuts, and hot dogs that the children were eating as fast as they could persuade adults to buy them. There were races, a baseball game and, at night, dancing. Every one in Lake Forest, those who live and work there and those who only live there and come to Chicago to work, was there at some time during the day and evening. It was a holiday in the north shore town.

Kathleen Lord to Defer Her Debut for a Year.

Kathleen Lord and her mother, Mrs. Russell Lord, who are spending the summer at the Onwentsia club in Lake Forest, have decided to postpone Kathleen's debut a year and, according to present plans, she will make a formal bow next June or July. Miss Lord was graduated from the Masters' school at Dobbs Ferry last June and, altho most of her classmates are coming out this season, she will wait to be one of next season's crop of buds.

Life is far from being all play for Miss Lord this summer, for she is taking a business course in Chicago and comes in five days a week to learn typewriting and shorthand. If nothing happens to upset their plans, Mrs. and Miss Lord hope to go to South America for the coming winter. They plan to visit the Chilean lakes first and then to spend some time in Buenos Aires, where Kathleen will study Spanish. She already speaks several languages, for she and her mother and older sister, Betty, who now is Mrs. William Mac Lingo Jr. of Texas, lived abroad for several years.

Looks Forward to Gayer Times in World Next Year.

It really is partly because the Lord family has so many friends in England, France, Germany, and Austria that Kathleen is not making a debut this season. Wth conditions as they are in Europe and with so many friends fighting, Kathleen does not feel as tho she wants to have her first season out at this time. She hopes that life will be gayer and more carefree by next summer.

Mrs. Lingo is coming north for a visit with her mother and sister about Sept. 9. Miss Patricia Barton, who went to Dobbs with Miss Lord, departed yesterday for her home in Baltimore after a week's visit with Mrs. and Miss Lord at the club.

Debutante Patricia Cathcart, the James E. Cathcarts' daughter, has just returned from four weeks with the Edward Berminghams and their debutante, Harriet, on their ranch in Montana. Miss Cathcart will make her debut at a dinner-dance at the Shoreacres club on Friday, Sept. 13, instead of at tea and dinner-dance on Sept. 6. Miss Cathcart finished at Miss Hall's in Pittsfield, Mass., in June.

Debutante Marie Merrill Hubbard, daughter of Mrs. Merrill Hubbard of Lake Forest, is leaving Monday for Santa Barbara for a visit with Mary Jane Wiman and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Deere Wiman. Miss Hubbard is going west at this time especially for the Old Spanish Days fiesta, which starts on Aug. 15. The Henry Rowleys and the Dexter Cummingses are going west on the same train with Miss Hubbard.

Mrs. Hubbard and Betty will return from a stay in Brule, Wis., in about 10 days. Miss Hubbard will not be back in Lake Forest until the end of August. She will be given a dinner-dance by the John F. Jelkes at their farm near Millburn on Sept. 14. Debutantes Barbara Hixon and Joan Revell also will be especial guests at the party. The Joseph T. Bowens will entertain for Miss Hubbard later in the season.

The Joseph B. Flemings are departing next week for California to attend the fiesta and to bring home their 12 year old Jean, who has been visiting Nancy Mitchell for several weeks. Nancy is one of the Clarence B. Mitchells' children.

Subdeb Barbara McLaughlin is returning in about 10 days from a round of visits in the east. Now she is with the T. Albert Potters at their summer home at Jamestown, R. I. The Howard Bushes have gone to Minneapolis for a visit with his family.

Mrs. Eugene du Pont III. and her little daughter have departed to

Looking at Hollywood

By John Chapman

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 7.—If you added up all the working salaries of the stars who are appearing here in Noel Coward's "Tonight at 8:30" sketch series the total would be at least terrific, perhaps quite large.

However, the stars are doing it for the British war relief, free. There have been one-shot benefits in New York whose theoretical salary total was immense, but the three sets of Coward playlets are running a week apiece, six performances a week.

The opening bill was attended by a headline audience which included such visiting New York glamor boys as Dr. Louis Shurr and Billy Rose. The stars involved on the stage included Constance Bennett, Douglas Fairbanks Jr., Reginald Owen, Nigel Bruce, Gladys Cooper, Ernest Cossart, Henry Stephenson, Muriel Hutchinson, Basil Rathbone, Reginald Gardiner, Binnie Barnes, Freddie Bartholomew, and Blanche Yurka, all to put on one-third of a show that was originally presented by Mr. Coward and Gertrude Lawrence as an actors' holiday.

The movie folk didn't do half badly. In the first place, most of them were quite familiar with the stage after 20 or 30 years of premovie trouping. Mr. Fairbanks was one of the few with comparatively little stage experience, and he was engaging. Miss Bennett, opposite him in "We Were Dancing," was lovely and capable, but inclined to wave her arms and wiggle. Maybe she had been frightened by Miss Lawrence in her youth.

Gladys Cooper played ably in "The Astonished Heart," but opposite her was Mr. Rathbone, ex-stage actor who is now a screen top-notcher. Mr. Rathbone may have given a marvelous performance, but he played it in private at the opening. He was being so very casual, so very under, so very drawing room, that practically nobody heard him.

Hits were Mr. Gardiner and Miss Barnes in "Red Peppers," that hilarious burlesque of a corny vaudeville act. Miss Barnes, in her raucous and uninhibited way, was superb. Dr. Shurr, the agent, quivered in his seat next to mine, said afterward she would be wonderful in a Broadway show. And so she would. Broadway is always finding talent in the movies and Miss B., who used to play a phony cowgirl in an English wild west vaudeville troupe, knows the stage.

The day before all those Britons began their remarkable and generous show another gentleman of the empahhr, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, was having a bunch of bathing cuties in his Beverly Hills back yard. Sir Cedric, whose title is genuine and illustriously earned, is fond of lunching with Prince Michael Romanoff, and is one of Prince Mike's backers in a forthcoming Romanoff saloon. Despite this one quirk, he is a rather dignified fellow and the presence on his back lawn of a lot of babes in lastex requires explaining.

A Venice Mardi Gras is coming up, and the onepiece de resistance of any carnival is of course a bathing beauty contest. Harvey Walters and Eyre Powell, master minds of the show, asked Sir Cedric if he'd be a judge. He said he wouldn't mind but he didn't know very much about such things. "Fine!" said Walters and Powell. "We'll teach you."

So eight honeys, two mothers, two photographers, Mr. Powell and this reporter descended upon Sir C. The girls disrobed in the guest room, then sat in their bathing suits in the Hardwicke barroom. The photographers and I had a Scotch and Powell ate a cigar. Sir Cedric said he was going back to New York to play Malvolio in Helen Hayes' "Twelfth Night," but he'd rather live in Hollywood.

Drinks downed, everybody moved out in back, where on the rim of a tiny swimming pool the new judge was given a tailor's tape and shown what to measure on a bathing beauty. He was a quick study. Powell, the Cecil B. De Mille of the sand dunes, directed everything. He would count one, two, three, the girls would square their shoulders and smile, Sir Cedric would regard a figure, and the two photographers would snap. "You know, this isn't bad at all," said Judge Hardwicke.

Charles B. Cochran, noted London manager, writes to friends that, since show business is dead, the only way his American friends can help him is drinking Cochran sherry. The liquor tleup is his only source of income—but he thinks the theater will resume soon because there are so many millions of troops to entertain. . . . Forthcoming parties: The Warners and Ann Sheridan are serving cocktails today aboard the truck Miss Sheridan was "given." Wednesday RKO will throw a "lucky winners" party for the new Ginger Rogers picture, at which guests will draw for theoretical horses and listen to a "broadcast" of the race. The broadcast, done by a local horse track talker, will be on a sealed phonograph record and nobody will know the outcome in advance. Winners will get prizes.

The Warner press staff worked up a fever over the shooting yesterday of "the longest movie kiss on record," between Ann Sheridan and George Brent. I couldn't go, which is probably all right with you, but I did find out something else. In Buffalo there's a famous Sweetheart Tree. If a boy's and a girl's initials are cut in it, it's an omen for a long and happy life together. Well, the other day, an enterprising Buffalonian wrote Warners, offering to carve "G. B. loves A. S." on the tree for five bucks. It's being taken up with the Hays office.

Violinist Quick Major Success as Park Soloist

BY EDWARD BARRY.

In Grant park last night Robert Quick, assistant concertmaster of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, appeared as soloist with that organization under Hans Lange's direction. He revealed himself as a major artist.

For his performance of the Bruch G minor violin concerto was of an excellence that can result only from the combination of thorough understanding, on the one hand, with a superb command of the instrument's resources, on the other.

He seemed to conceive the concerto as a deeply romantic work which possesses, nevertheless, an extremely sturdy, four square structure of its own. The performance did justice to both of these aspects of the work. The themes had an urgent, personal, very moving quality—yet they were planned and projected with an eye to the integrity of the concerto as a whole.

What Mr. Quick's musical imagination and understanding found in the concerto his remarkable skill with his instrument allowed him to project forcefully. He produced a sternly beautiful tone quality for the rugged first movement, and one of a lovely restrained richness for the second. His agility and his well developed rhythmic sense were most in evidence in the finale.

Mr. Lange and the orchestra surrounded their soloist with a variety of attractive music—the Bloch concerto grosso, Debussy's prelude to "The Afternoon of a Faun," a Grétry-Mottl ballet suite, and Elgar's "Enigma" variations. The Debussy was an especially successful evocation of a difficult and elusive mood. Another high point of the evening was the minuet from the Grétry suite. A knowing treatment of its rhythmic and tonal possibilities gave it an out-of-the-ordinary clarity and distinction.

Cars, Drivers, Money Needed for Annual Orphans' Day Outing

Volunteer drivers and 650 more cars are needed for the 36th annual outing of the Orphans' Automobile Day association on Aug. 21 in Lincoln park. Funds also are short $1,800 if the 6,000 orphans, crippled children, and old people who want to come are to enjoy the holiday.

A plea for donations and the use of cars was made yesterday by L. C. Smith, president of the association. Almost 50 institutions have asked to be included on the guest list, Smith said. Lunches, other refreshments, and entertainment can be provided at the cost of $1 for each guest. Contributions should be sent to E. L. Cleary, secretary, in room 517 of the Bell building, 307 Michigan avenue. Volunteer drivers are asked to telephone John P. Keating, transportation chairman, at Longbeach 2247 or 2248.

Officials of the association and the picnic workers will meet for further planning of the outing tonight in the Café Brauer in Lincoln park.

Murder Is Not Mute

SYNOPSIS.

Detective Patrick Doyle of New York is vacationing in a small town when, while walking in the woods on the estate of Adolph Wunsch, he stumbles upon a skeleton. He reports the matter to Truman Briault, Wunsch's brother-in-law, rejects the bribe Briault offers to keep the matter quiet, and goes to the police. Returning to the scene with Policeman Madden and Judge Blain, he finds the skeleton gone. But by trailing fresh footprints they find where the skeleton has been hastily buried. Dr. Blake, the coroner, reports the skeleton belonged to a teen age girl who was murdered. Doyle is asked to help solve the mystery. Blue yarn and a watch clasp are found near the spot where the skeleton was first discovered. Doyle learns that Wunsch is a wealthy ex-brewer whose second wife is Paula, young and beautiful. Paula married him for his money and he has made her life miserable, allowing her to have a charge account but no cash money. Her irresponsible brother and her mother live with them but Wunsch dominates the household. Wunsch has sent his 18 year old daughter to Europe with Paula's mother as chaperon. His aged father also lives with them and is cared for by Miss Doty, a trained nurse. Lately Wunsch has been driving to town every night with his chauffeur, Follins, and Paula, becoming suspicious, puts detectives on her husband's trail. Doyle finds Truman owns a blue sweater and goes to question him. He learns from Follins that Truman is planning to leave that night, whereupon Doyle questions Paula. He sees a watch on her arm with a clasp identical with the one he found near the skeleton. He learns from the jeweler that Wunsch had a watch made for Paula as a wedding gift, and 18 months later had a duplicate one made.

EAVESDROPPING.

INSTALMENT XVI.

The detective rubbed his chin reflectively. "When we're finished here it might be a good idea to take a look at the brewery."

"Won't never be finished here," the Judge pointed out, "with so much talk going on."

They began to rake again. After a while, a grunt from Blain sent Doyle's hopes leaping. The Judge's find, however, was a disappointment. He had uncovered a conical wooden block about two inches long.

"What in thunder is that?" he pondered.

Doyle gave it hasty inspection. "There should be another one like it. High heels."

A moment later Blain raked up the second. Doyle slipped them into his coat pocket—two dirt-encrusted, unmarked bits of wood. It wasn't likely they'd be any help, he thought glumly.

Presently all the leaves in the section where the skeleton had lain were raked back and around a cleared center. But there was no sign of the watch.

"What do you make of that?" Blain asked.

Doyle said grimly, "Briault found it when he moved the skeleton."

"Maybe not," the judge contradicted. "Likely it's pretty small. Might have slipped between the teeth of the rake."

He got down on his knees and began to sift the dried dead leaves thru his fingers. Doyle went to his assistance. An hour passed.

And then, as a sense of futility began to weigh heavily within each, Doyle's hopes revived. His fingers groped nervously.

"Got it?" the judge asked.

"Not what we're looking for." Doyle's tone was absorbed. He rolled something between his fingers and grinned at Blain.

"But maybe this is just as good," he said. "The watch might tell us who was murdered. But this should lead us to the murderer."

Blain held out his hand for the distorted bullet which had pierced the young girl's skull.

His eyes narrowed as he examined it. "I'd say .44 caliber," he announced. "Tell you what I'd like to do. Ballistics is kind of a hobby of mine. Let me take it home and study it under the microscope."

"O. K." Doyle agreed heartily. "That's quicker than sending it to the city for a report."

They went back to their search of the leaves, but with no further results. Doyle berated himself harshly for letting the watch escape him when he'd been so close to it picking up the clasp.

The judge agreed gloomily that was a bad break. Because, for all they could tell now, maybe there had been more jewelery scattered in the leaves around the body. Maybe Briault took it all. Or maybe he took nothing—not even the watch. Trouble was, this way they'd never know whether or not the motive for the murder was robbery.

Doyle said he was beginning to think maybe it was. He thought it queer that they'd found no metal handbag frame. Nowadays no woman went any distance without carting a bag full of junk—cosmetics, cigarets, and so on. And it didn't seem reasonable that a young woman who'd hold Wunsch up for one expensive gift of jewelry would stop there.

The judge went home to lunch and Doyle had a quick hamburger at Krimp's, and then came back along the woodland path on the short cut to the Wunsch house. His jaw was set and his thoughts were busy. He was anxious to have things out with Briault. And his opportunity came in the way he had not anticipated. . . .

Doyle had emerged from the woods and he was skirting the green when a golf ball struck almost at his feet. A moment later, a second ball thudded on the green and rolled in a direct line for the cup, stopping just short of it.

The players were still hidden from view by the hilly countryside, as the detective wheeled and darted for the cover of the woods. Two balls meant two players. And two players meant conversation. And hearing things he wasn't meant to hear had solved many a case for many a detective.

He had chosen his hiding place at random, making for the spot where the shrubbery looked thickest. Now as he crouched within it, hot and uncomfortable, he could hear the players approaching the green. One of them was Mrs. Wunsch. Her crisp tones carried easily.

"What luck," she said enviously. "You'll hole in with one."

Then there was a click as her club came in contact with the ball on the fairway, and Doyle saw a flash of white whirl toward the green.

"Too bad," Truman Briault said.

Doyle grinned. This couldn't be better. But the next instant his grin vanished. For the brother and sister were not alone. No chance that they'd say anything worth overhearing.

Briault was calling peremptorily to the caddy. "Boy, take the flag out."

There was silence during the holing in. Then Mrs. Wunsch spoke, her voice petulant. "Truman, I'm tired. And frightfully warm. Let's send Jerry back for cold drinks."

Her brother answered in a constrained tone. "If you'd like." Doyle could hear him instructing the caddy.

"Have cook make up some sandwiches, too," Mrs. Wunsch added.

Again there was silence, as the two seated themselves in the shade and waited for the caddy to get out of hearing. Then Mrs. Wunsch spoke.

"I managed to get some money this morning in town," she said.

Briault answered her ungraciously. "It's no good to me now."

"Truman! What is troubling you?" Her tone was sharp with anxiety. "It's something to do with this dead woman—this skeleton—isn't it?"

Briault did not answer.

"You—you knew it was lying there in the woods, didn't you?"

Now his denial was quick and vehement. "I did not. What on earth makes you think that?"

She said pleadingly, "Don't be angry, Truman. I just thought perhaps you had found the skeleton, and you didn't know what to do about it. And now you think you'll get into trouble for not reporting it, because it turns out there's been a murder."

"I don't know anything about the skeleton," he said violently. "Will you stop tormenting me?"

She went on as tho she had not heard him. "You must tell whatever you know. Just because it's murder, there's no need to get panicky. Nobody's going to think you had anything to do with the murder." She laughed at the absurdity of the idea.

Then her tone changed, vibrated with excitement. "And don't you see what this thing can do for us? We'll all be dragged into the horrible publicity of it. And Adolph is going to hate that. Now at last he'll take us away from here. At least until this murder business blows over."

"You know he won't leave here," her brother contradicted.

Her voice rose triumphantly. "You'll see. Things are going to be very different. Soon I shall have a weapon to use against Adolph."

"What weapon?"

"I can't tell you. Not yet. But when the time comes, I shall use my weapon. And you and I will leave here. We'll go back to Paris. We'll join Maman and Texie."

"For the love of God!" Briault's tone was suddenly frantic. "Don't start that again." He broke off and then resumed more normally. "It's no use, Paula. That all fell apart when Texie went away. You must not try to put it together again."

"Why not?" Paula said. "I thought we had this all clear, and that we were agreed upon it. If Adolph had not sent Texie away, you'd be married to her now. As it is, she'll be of age the end of this month. If we meet her in Paris there's nothing to prevent——"

"No," he said. "I tell you, no."

"You're selfish," Paula accused. "You're not willing to make any sacrifices. After all, I put up with Texie for your sake and Maman's. Do you think it was easy for me? You know how Texie hates me. She feels I've taken her mother's place. She does everything she can to turn her father against me. But she's in love with you, Truman. She'll be a good, generous wife to you."

"I tell you that's over and done with," Truman protested hotly. "Can't you understand that I mean it?"

Fish cookery is really very simple, yet many cooks run into difficulties with baking and broiling, having had experience only in frying fish. Dried out or untender fish is the result of overcooking or use of too high temperatures. There isn't such a thing as a tough meated fish. All fish are naturally tender meated, and should come to the table that way.

Only oily or fat fish should be broiled, unless fat is added, for a dry meated steak or fillet will inevitably become drier under the broiler without protection such as butter or bacon strips afford. Baking is a suitable preparation for almost any kind of fish. It may be accomplished in a very hot oven for a very short time, or in a moderate oven for a somewhat longer period. The hot oven has the advantage of keeping fish odors from permeating the kitchen atmosphere, but a close watch must be kept, or overcooking will take place. Ten minutes in a 500 degree oven usually is sufficient for fillets and steaks. A whole stuffed fish is better off in a moderate oven, about 375 degrees, and will, of course, take longer than that, something like 10 minutes to the pound.

BAKED FISH FILLETS OR STEAKS.

Dip fillets or steaks into milk and sprinkle with salt. Roll in very fine, sifted bread or cracker crumbs, and place in a greased, shallow baking pan. Pour melted butter over the fish, or place strips of bacon or salt pork over them. Bake at 375 degrees 25 to 30 minutes. If the fish is very lean, baste with butter or drippings in the middle of the baking period.

The milk and crumbs may be omitted, if desired.

BAKED FISH IN SAUCE.

Fillets or steaks, unbreaded, may be baked in a thin white sauce, tomato sauce or creole sauce. Place the salted and peppered steaks or fillets in a shallow greased baking dish and pour the sauce over them. Bake uncovered for half an hour. Tomato soup to which chopped green pepper, celery, and onion have been added makes a delicious sauce in which to bake fish.

BROILED FISH FILLETS OR STEAKS.

Grease the broiler rack and brush fish on both sides with melted butter or bacon fat. Broil until lightly browned on one side, season with salt and pepper, turn, and broil likewise on the other. A broad spatula will be necessary for turning the fish without breaking it.

Fish fillets may be put together sandwich fashion with a stuffing between them, and then may be baked for about 40 minutes in the 375 degree oven, with butter or bacon strips, or in a sauce, as previously described.

FISH FILLETS IN WINE.

[Serves Six.]

1½ pounds white fish fillets
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon minced chives or onion
1 tablespoon minced green pepper
1 tablespoon minced pimiento
½ cup coarse bread crumbs
2 tablespoons melted butter
2 tablespoons water
¾ cup sauterne

Place the fillets in a shallow, buttered baking dish. Sprinkle with the salt, pepper, and lemon juice, then with the onion, green pepper, and pimiento. Add butter to crumbs and sprinkle over fish. Pour water and wine into the dish and bake at 350 degrees until fish is tender and crumbs have browned, about half an hour. Baste several times during baking with the wine and water.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	2 diamonds	Pass
3 hearts	Pass	4 hearts	Pass
4 no trump	Pass	5 diamonds	Pass
6 hearts	Pass	Pass	Pass

South had visions of a grand slam, but the four no trump convention speedily convinced him that a small slam was the limit of the combined hands. North's response of five diamonds indicated that an ace was held by the opponents, since North would have bid five no trump with both the ace of diamonds and the ace of spades. South's decision to go to six hearts in spite of the missing ace, however, was perfectly sound in view of North's strong bidding.

West opened the jack of clubs, South winning in his own hand with the ace. He next cashed the ace and king of trumps. When West discarded a club on the second trump, South drew two more rounds of trumps and started the spades. East captured the jack of spades with his ace, and later South could not avoid losing a trick to West's ten of spades.

South should have seen that it was vital to start the spades before exhausting the trumps. There was no danger if the spades broke 3-3, but a ruff was necessary to provide against a 4-2 split. After taking the second trump with the king he should have led the jack of spades. Then he could have trumped a third round of spades with dummy's jack, and later taken the established finesse thru East's ten of hearts.

"Pretend you don't see him, dear—remember he's gonna buy us that house we saw in the Tribune want ad section."

WILSON'S Weekly MEMO by GEORGE RECTOR

Knowing how to buy meat should be part of every woman's culinary education. If you do not know the geography of beef, pork and lamb, I suggest you write me for some good meat charts and learn the various cuts and for what uses each cut is best suited. When it comes to buying meats in the tin, however, the task is even simpler. All one has to do is look for the name Wilson Certified on the tin and you can be sure of getting finest quality, full value and exactly what is represented on the label.

Canny housewives are buying MOR at least three cans at a time. Keep one can chilled in the refrigerator at all times, for sandwiches and cold platters and a couple on the pantry shelf ready to be made into hot dishes for breakfast, lunch and dinner. MOR is the all pork shoulder meat that is more tender, more delicate, more perfectly seasoned than any you have ever tasted. No waste—12 ounces of solid meat. One can serves six.

FARMERS ASSERT AAA VIRTUALLY FORCES SIGNUP

Failure to Comply Results in Losses.

(Following is the fifth article in a series by a Tribune reporter who traveled thru seven farm states and parts of the south to gauge accomplishments of the Agricultural Adjustment administration. Today's article discusses the question of whether compliance with the AAA program actually is voluntary.)

BY CHARLES LEAVELLE.

Critics of the Agricultural Adjustment administration often are reminded by AAA men that compliance with the program is entirely voluntary.

The farmer may comply or not, as he chooses. He doesn't have to submit to curtailment of his acreage. He can operate his farm as he sees fit.

But is compliance voluntary in actual practice? What penalty does the farmer pay for refusing to go along with the program?

Court Decision Cited.

In outlawing the first AAA the United States Supreme court said:

"The government asserts that whatever might be said against the validity of the plan, if compulsory, it is constitutionally sound because the end is accomplished by voluntary coöperation. There are two sufficient answers to the contention.

"The regulation is not in fact voluntary. The farmer, of course, may refuse to comply, but the price of such refusal is the loss of benefits. The amount offered is intended to be sufficient to exert pressure on him to agree to the proposed regulation.

Statute Held Coercive.

"The power to confer or withhold unlimited benefits is the power to coerce or destroy. If the cotton grower elects not to accept the benefits he will receive less for his crops; those who receive payments will be able to undersell him. The result may well be financial ruin.

"The coercive purpose and intent of the statute is not obscured by the fact it has not been entirely successful. It is pointed out that because there still remained a minority whom the rental and benefit payments were insufficient to induce to surrender their independence of action, the congress has gone further and, in the Bankhead cotton act, uses the taxing power in a more directly minatory fashion to compel submission."

Process Tax Provision Killed.

The court threw out the processing tax provision by which the law had sought to finance the program. As rewritten and passed by congress seven weeks after the Supreme court ruling, the law provided direct financing from the treasury at the rate of 500 million dollars a year.

Its purpose still was to curtail farm production on the theory that scarcity would raise farm prices artificially. Soil conservation and erosion control now were offered as justification of the program. But the conditions complained of by the Supreme court remained, both in the 1936 law and the one that succeeded it in 1938 and which still is in effect."

The farmer still faces loss of subsidy payments if he refuses to comply. He is barred from payments for conservation practices. He gets no parity payments on wheat or corn. He cannot have the cotton export subsidy of $7.50 a bale.

Barred from Corn Loans.

He is not eligible to accept corn loans from the government. Corn loans are important to many farmers for this reason: the government will lend as much as 57 cents a bushel on the commodity. Suppose the market price is approximately 43 cents. The farmer can take his 57 cents from the government and buy corn for his own needs for 43 cents from a neighbor who does not comply with the program.

Inability to do this puts him at a financial disadvantage. Yet, as many small farmers in the central west have explained, they often are unable to comply. This is chiefly because the AAA allotment system cuts their production so low they are unable to get along. This is especially true among small operators of Iowa, Minnesota, Missouri, Indiana, and Wisconsin who feed live stock for the market.

Another view was expressed by J. L. Welch, who farms 160 acres in northwestern Marshall county, Iowa. He feels that the AAA forces farmers to comply, adding that he doesn't dare not to.

"They tell me the AAA is not compulsory," Welsh said. "I claim it is. If the time comes that Secretary of Agriculture Wallace calls for a referendum and it carries, noncoöperators will be out of luck.

"Their corn will be sealed up. They won't be allowed to sell it and they won't be allowed to feed it."

Welch referred to the law's provision thru which the secretary of agriculture, if he feels that the supply of a commodity on hand and the state of the market justify, may call for a referendum of farmers to fix marketing quotas. If a majority of the farmers approves, definite quotas will be set and the remaining surplus will be put under seal.

Market Affected, Say Farmers.

At present, sealing of corn upon which government loans have been made constitutes Wallace's ever normal granary plan. Supposedly, the corn surplus, if under seal, will have no depressing effect upon the market as would an ordinary surplus. Farmers, however, insist it does have. Another purpose of the plan is to keep the grain available to the farmer for repurchase [or redemption] in bad crop years. Of this Welch said:

"I have asked repeatedly: 'What good is there in the plan?' They tell me that when a bad year comes that corn will be available and I can buy it back. But if it is a bad year, where will the farmer get the money to buy it back? His live stock will stand hungry around a steel bin that is bursting with corn they can't touch.!"

Expects Complete Control.

W. H. Fellows, whose farm is in Olmstead county, near Rochester, Minn., takes the view that the farm program soon will be compulsory in fact as well as in intent. He feels it is wisest to "go along."

"I figure you'd as well coöperate," he said. "I think the AAA is just a bridge that is leading to complete government control. Before long they'll be telling what to do in everything."

[What will be the long run effect upon American agriculture of the AAA's sudden introduction in large quantities of hybrid grains? What effect has the New Deal's cotton policy had upon foreign markets? A noted midwestern farm authority discusses these questions tomorrow.]

Slaying Victim

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Rose Lodi, whose body was found stabbed and gagged in thicket near Springfield, Mass., home.

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 7 (AP).—The gagged and stabbed body of Miss Rose Lodi, 22 years old, employé of a Springfield match company, was found today in a roadside thicket.

The body, which was partly disrobed and bore stab wounds in the throat and chest, was discovered by the girl's father, Angelo. She had been missing since early yesterday afternoon.

The area in which the body was found, police said, is frequented by vagrants, known to authorities as "wood dogs." Two empty liquor bottles, discovered near the body, were taken by police for possible fingerprints.

Attorney's Wife Kills Son as Mercy Act, Then Self

Oakland, Cal., Aug. 7 (AP).—Mrs. Bernard Silverstein, wife of a prominent Oakland attorney, shot and killed her son, Phillips Loney, 31 years old, then fatally wounded herself, police reported today. The shooting was listed tentatively as a "mercy slaying." Loney, Mrs. Silverstein's son by a former marriage, had been mentally ill. "This is in the name of mercy," a note left by the mother said.

CONCRETE FALLS; THREE SUBWAY WORKERS HURT

Three workmen watched yesterday as a 1,000 pound bucket swung out on a boom to bring them 4,000 pounds of mixed concrete for the tube that will join the Clybourn avenue subway to the elevated railroad at Willow street. Suddenly the casting which joined the boom to the concrete mixer collapsed. The concrete plunged down upon the platform, 10 feet below the surface.

Platform, men and concrete fell thru to the top of the subway, 35 feet down. Other workmen hurried down to find the three victims all alive, tho injured. They are Granville Marshall, 25 years old, of 1809 East 23d avenue, Bellwood; John Fernandez, 50, of 6734 South Throop street; and Joseph Signoria, 25, of 999 Elaine place, Highland Park. They were taken to the Alexian Brothers hospital.

100 OF NEW TYPE GARBAGE TRUCKS ARE AUTHORIZED

The purchase of 100 new enclosed type garbage trucks costing $563,888 was authorized yesterday by the city council. Fifty of the trucks are to be delivered by Oct. 31 and the others by March 15, 1941. The trucks are similar to a type used in New York City and tried out experimentally in Chicago. Oscar E. Hewitt, commissioner of public works, recommended the purchase. Tests by the street department showed that the cost of handling refuse in the enclosed trucks would be less than in trailers now used.

6 REASONS WHY PACKERS WON'T LOSE (MAYBE)

Line Big Advantage, Says Lambeau.

Coaches Accept

THE five coaches elected to direct the College All-Americans against the Green Bay Packers on Aug. 29 gave speeches of acceptance last night over the Mutual system's coast to coast network. Arch Ward, sports editor of The Tribune, preceded the coaches with a talk from W-G-N. Dr. Edward Anderson of Iowa, head coach, also was heard from W-G-N; Tad Wieman of Princeton, from Denver, Colo., where he is vacationing; Buck Shaw of Santa Clara, from Des Moines, and Don Faurot of Missouri, from St. Louis. The voice of Lowell Dawson, Tulane coach and southern representative, was heard by electrical transcription.

BY EARL (CURLEY) LAMBEAU.

[This is the last of a series of articles on the Chicago All-Star game by Curley Lambeau, coach of the Green Bay Packers, five times world football champions.]

Green Bay, Wis., Aug. 7.—Six factors are especially encouraging in a résumé of the Green Bay Packers' possibilities for the Chicago All-Star game Aug. 29. One appears to be a distinct advantage. It is the Packer line.

Professional lines have proved more than a match for the collegians in the six preceding All-Star contests. They are too big, too mature and too experienced. It has been well established that the All-Stars cannot run to victory. Their last attempt resulted in a 9 to 0 defeat by the New York Giants a year ago. Both All-Star triumphs have been achieved on passes.

Four Great Centers.

Analysis of the rival personnels discloses no reason why this professional supremacy should not continue, even tho the 1940 All-Star squad contains line material equal to if not better than that of other years. Our line is big, fast, seasoned and at times quite nasty about surrendering yards. It figures to have too much heft and experience for the youngsters.

This line is bulwarked by four centers whom we believe to be the greatest group of pivot men ever collected on one team. Two of them in particular, Bud Svendsen and Charles Brock, both All-Star veterans, had more to do with our rise to the championship of the National league last year than perhaps any other two men on our squad. They are ball hawks. Our other centers also are ball hawks. But Svendsen and Brock do more than intercept passes. They have the coördination of half backs and never have failed to carry the ball back out of dangerous territory or place it in a scoring position. This ability is invaluable to a team.

16 Former All-Stars.

The Packers should profit from the fact that sixteen members of our squad have been on the All-Star team and half a dozen others, the veterans, were with us in 1937 when we forgot to duck. The leaders among this ex-All-Star contingent are Cecil Isbell of Purdue, who won the first All-Star most valuable player award in 1938; Don Hutson, our veteran end; Joe Laws, the Iowa half back; and Beattie Feathers, formerly of the Bears, Brooklyn and Tennessee. Hutson, Laws and Feathers will be playing in their third All-Star game and are the first men to enjoy that distinction. This familiarity with the All-Star setup should eliminate all possibilities of the indifference which led to our downfall in 1937.

Isbell led the collegians to a 28 to 16 victory over the Washington Redskins in 1938. Since then he has had two years of professional experience. He will direct the Packers when he is in the game, and at one moment,

THE GUMPS—THE WHOLE TOWN'S TALKING

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD.

ANTI-GERMAN sentiment during the world war was so strong in Elwood, Ind., Wendell Willkie's home town, that when "Heinie" Schrenker, senior guard on Notre Dame's 1940 football team, was born his parents named him Henry PERSHING Schrenker to show their patriotism. . . . Bob Haak, former Indiana tackle, plans to withdraw from professional football and devote his time to his new bowling alleys in Bloomington, Ind. . . . He played with the Brooklyn Dodgers last fall. . . . Cliff Bergere, Hollywood stunt man and noted racing driver, considers driving on the salt flats of Utah more dangerous than driving in the Indianapolis 500 mile race. . . . He ought to know because he has competed at Indianapolis several times and served as Ab Jenkins' relief driver on the Bonneville flats. . . . Terry Moore of the St. Louis Cardinals says an outfielder is two steps slower in a night game due to the difficulty in judging a fly ball. . . . American galleries have been quick to notice the "kangaroo dip" in the golf swing of Jim Ferrier, Australian amateur, but most of them have overlooked the fact that he retains the finish of the swing longer than any big league golfer in recent history. . . . He frequently remains poised at the completion of his swing for as long as 10 or 15 seconds. . . . Bob Quinn, president of the Bees, who sent Rabbit Warstler to the Cubs on waivers, paid $33,000 to Indianapolis for the doughty infielder when he, then president of the Boston Red Sox, purchased Warstler in 1930. . . . Dixie Howell, star quarter back of Alabama's 1934 eleven who now coaches at Arizona State, says his full back, Rip Pitts, is one of the best all round football players he ever has seen. . . .

The White Sox believe they have another Mike Kreevich coming up in Bill Mitterman, a red-head from the west side, who is getting his elementary training with the Sox's farm club at Jonesboro, Ark. . . . His Northeast Arkansas league record for the first half of the season included the top batting mark, most hits, most extra bases, most runs, most stolen bases, and a tie for most home runs. . . . Only two errors were charged against his fielding. . . . Edwin Joel Merrick of the University of Richmond, who was elected to a center position on the All-Star football squad, plans to join the British army shortly after the game on Soldiers' field the night of Aug. 29. . . . Milton Popovich, back field man with the Chicago Cardinals, keeps in shape during the off season as a hod carrier in Missoula, Mont. . . . Babe Horrell, U. C. L. A. football coach, recently was quoted as saying he liked to open his football season with tough games. . . . He should be satisfied this fall, for his team will meet Southern Methodist, Santa Clara, and Texas A. & M. on the first three weeks' program. . . . Altho lights have been installed in Forbes field, the Steelers of the National Football league will play all their games in the daytime. . . . Bill Werber of the Reds, who has played in both, says the only difference between the National and American leagues is in the publicity.

Summer Day.

A load of hay,
A summer day,
A pretty world
In which to play.

A bright canoe,
A girl in blue,
One whose heart
Is always true.

A setting sun,
A sweet new moon,
And the day is gone
All too soon.

Moral: Keep Alive.

Along a Country Road.

I love to ride along a country road
At dusk; to see each little farm abode—
A house set in among some friendly trees,
A flower garden—hollyhocks, sweet peas,
Tall corn—a lane, with cows a-wandering home,
Weird, dusky shapes a-moving in the gloam.
I like to look in lighted windows there,
To see, perhaps, a cozy kitchen fair
With flowers on window sills, a clean swept floor,
A table set for supper near the door.
It's such a peaceful picture, you will smile
And maybe want to stop and stay awhile,
And for a time forget there's war and strife,
And know there's still some lovely things in life.

Of Thee I Sing.

Side saddles first were used in 1380. Previous to their introduction women always rode astride. For a time the side saddle was regarded as most unfeminine. Later etiquette changed and genteel ladies despised any wench who rode astride. Today, however, whether a girl rides side saddle or astride, boy, doesn't she dress up a horse! —Chet Swital.

OSCAR WAS SORRY!

Last year he forgot to buy tickets for the All-Star football game. His family let him know what they thought of his mental processes, too. This year he vowed not to miss the seventh annual charity battle between the College All-Americans and the Green Bay Packers to be played on Soldiers' field the night of Aug. 29—and Oscar has made good, for he bought his tickets early. MISS HICKS TIES RECORD WITH 74 FOR 230 TOTAL

Leads Field in Western Derby by 11 Strokes.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Elizabeth Hicks yesterday chose the third round of the 12th annual Derby of the Women's Western Golf association to remind the galleries following the 72 hole show at the Westmoreland Country club that she is still the champion. For proof she fired a record tying 36—38—74, two under par, for a 54 hole total of 230 and an 11 stroke margin over the field as it enters this morning's stretch run of 18 holes.

Unless the California sports writer becomes lost in one of Westmoreland's bunkers today, there appears little doubt that she will repeat her 1939 triumph at Evanston. In that performance Miss Hicks set an all-time 72 hole Derby record of 307. In order to tie that mark she must do the final round in 77, which in itself also is likely, for in this 1940 defense of her championship Miss Hicks has not been out of the 70s, preceding yesterday's 74 with a pair of 78s. For the whole route she is only two over par.

Putter Fails Miss Williams.

Speaking of staying in the 70 league, one member of the Derby field disappeared from it yesterday. She was Ellamae Williams of Medinah, Chicago district and Illinois state champion for the last two years. On Tuesday Ellamae set the course record of 74, which enabled her to tie Miss Hicks for the 36 hole leadership at 156. Yesterday the putter which had behaved so well in the course of the second round 74 began to act up. She also encountered several bunkers, which sent her into the final round with a second place score of 241, result of a 40—45—85.

Two Tie for Third.

Tied for third place at 248 were Virginia Ingram of Sunset Ridge, who yesterday shot 41—43—84, and Mary Agnes Wall of Menominee, Mich., with a 41—42—83. One stroke back of them was Beatrice Barrett of Minneapolis with 249. Miss Barrett played with Miss Hicks yesterday and gave the gallery a thrill on the 150 yard 17th by holing out a chip shot for a deuce. Mrs. Dan Chandler of Dallas, Tex., put together a 42 and a 44 for the 86 that gave her next place at 251, one stroke better than the 252 submitted by Eleanor Dudley of Ridge, who had a 41—43—84.

Sirocco and Bimelech Arrive Today for American Derby

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Sirocco and Bimelech will arrive at Washington Park today, ready to run with Gallahadion and Weigh Anchor in Saturday's $60,000 American Derby. This race will serve a double purpose. It will renew a grand old stake and it will bring an interesting rematch of the big three—Sirocco, Bimelech, and Gallahadion—which are struggling for supremacy in the 3 year old division.

It would be fine if this event could be considered the decisive engagement for the championship of the age class, but unfortunately this is not the case. Like most races it will demonstrate which horse is in the best condition on the day in question. Sirocco, Bimelech, and Gallahadion have taken turns beating one another too often to have any one race change the entire complexion of the situation.

Three Big Races Remain.

The Travers Stakes at Saratoga and the Lawrence Realization at Belmont are the only important 3 year old events left after the American Derby. With the exception of the Withers mile, which was won by Corydon, the big 3 year old stakes to date have been dominated by Bimelech, Sirocco, and Gallahadion.

If a horse were capable of embarrassment, Bimelech would hang his head as he comes out of his box car this noon—but in all probability he will prance down the unloading chute with his ears pricked up and his eyes sparkling with interest at his new surroundings, just as tho he had never disappointed thousands of Chicago betters by running like a selling plater in the Arlington Classic, which was won by Sirocco.

The Big Test for Sirocco.

As far as Sirocco is concerned, the American Derby will show whether or not the Classic was all a mistake. Sirocco, which was beaten easily by both Bimelech and Gallahadion in his spring campaign, was completely the master of both in the July stake.

While nearly every one knows that Gallahadion won the Kentucky Derby, Bimelech the Preakness and Belmont stakes, and Sirocco the Classic, most Chicago race fans are asking, "Who is Weigh Anchor and what did he ever do?" The answer is that Weigh Anchor is a California campaigner which won the Golden Gate Derby at Tanforan, was second in the Hollywood Derby, and third in the Santa Anita Derby.

Shot Put Wins Marathon.

Then there's Charles S. Howard's Mioland, which was sent to Washington park with the intention of being started in the American Derby, but which has been training so lightly that few expect him to go to the post Saturday. A final decision will be made today upon the arrival of his trainer, Tom Smith. After running second to Bimelech in the Preakness, Mioland incurred an accident and has not yet regained his best form.

The $2,000 Snapper Garrison handicap, second of a series of distance races, was the center of attention yesterday. Despite his impost of 122 pounds, Mrs. Marie Evans' Shot Put outclassed his six rivals and came home three lengths in the lead, Noble Count being second and Getaway Jack third. The race was at two and a half miles, the winner covering the distance in 3:54 2-5.

Turf Fan Wins $3,000 Award in a Photo Finish

It was a photo finish in the Patrons' handicapping contest at Washington Park yesterday and the winner was Victor Hellgren of 5340 Greenwood avenue. He won the accumulated award of $3,000 by the margin of a neck — Hat Check's neck in the eighth race.

Victor Hellgren.

Hellgren, an unemployed painter, and George C. Brunkhorst of 6838 Thorndale avenue, picked the first seven winners. Hellgren selected Hat Check to win the eighth, Brunkhorst picked Annikon. Hat Check finished seventh, with Annikon eighth, a neck behind.

Hellgren submitted only one set of selections. The rules place three sets as the limit. Yesterday's award was built up to $3,000 by failure of contestants to pick seven winners Monday and Tuesday. Hellgren picked the first six winners Saturday and his first choice in the seventh race ran second.

J., emerged tonight as the national women's archery champion in the 60th annual tournament being held at Massachusetts State college. CUBS, LEE DEFEAT REDS ON 3 RUNS IN EXTRA INNING

Whip Derringer for Third Time This Season.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 7.—Bill Lee today turned in nine innings of superlatively fine pitching, tho he had to be bailed out after the Cubs had scored three runs in the 10th inning. Then Claude Passeau stopped a rally with the bases loaded and one out in Cincinnati's half to give the Cubs a 5 to 3 victory. Passeau's achievement enabled Lee to get credit for his eighth victory of the season, his first over the Reds in four tries.

Paul Derringer, who was seeking his 17th victory of the season, had a string of seven straight busted by the Cubs. Until the 10th all the Cub scoring off the Reds' enormous right hander came in the form of homers, one by Bill Nicholson at the start of the second and another by Jim Gleeson, which tied the score, the Reds having made two scratchy runs in the third inning. Nicholson, by the way, was the only Cub to reach base in the first five innings. It was Derringer's eighth defeat of the year and the third administered by the Cubs.

That Big Tenth.

The tenth inning was most startling to the thousands of Derringer bugs among the Ladies' day turnout of 18,549. Dom Dallessandro opened with a single to right, then Al Todd, after two failures to bunt and several fouls, lined a single into right, Dallessandro paddling to third.

Rabbit Warstler executed the squeeze play to perfection. He bunted a high bouncer to Derringer, so high that little Dominic was home before the ball came down into Derringer's glove. The Rabbit was out and Todd stopped at second. Derringer threw out Lee, Todd holding second. Hack then drew Derringer's only pass. Herman singled to left, scoring Todd, and Gleeson singled to center, scoring Hack. Nicholson grounded out to Frank McCormick.

Bill Blows Up.

Since Lee had looked like the Lee of other years, what happened in the home tenth scarcely was expected. Morris Arnovich batted for Billy Myers and filed to Gleeson, but Lew Riggs, batting for Derringer, singled. Bill Werber and Lonnie Frey followed with whizzing singles, Riggs scoring and Werber reaching third on Frey's hit.

Ken Raffensberger, who didn't walk a batsman in his nine inning victory in Brooklyn last Saturday, went in and walked Ival Goodman on four pitched balls. He was yanked in a hurry and Passeau was sent in. Frank McCormick shot a hot grounder to Passeau, who threw to Todd to force Werber at the plate. Bill Baker, who had replaced Ernie Lombardi at the start of the 10th, ended the game with a fly to Nicholson.

The Reds didn't feel so well after the defeat. They have lost five of their last seven games to teams like the Cubs and Boston Bees. They also have lost seven of their last 10 games, which scarcely is a pennant winning pace.

Nicholson's second inning homer, his 18th of the season, a 380 foot smash high into the right field bleachers, stood up as a 1 to 0 lead until the Cincy third, thanks to Nick's throw which got another Chat-

BOUDREAU HITS TWO HOMERS, DRIVES IN 6 RUNS

Chicagoans Make Four Errors.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The White Sox, who seem to have forgotten all the tricks with which they mystified their rivals over a three week stretch, fell over again yesterday. They were soundly spanked by Cleveland's Indians, who made it three out of four in the series before a Ladies' day turnout of 11,169. The score was 9 to 3, not a small portion of the victors' runs resulting from John Rigney finishing a poor second while trying to pitch to Lou Boudreau, the noted University of Illinois alumnus.

Rigney, while assimilating his thirteenth beating of the year, was jolted by various members of Oscar Vitt's rebel brigade, but these bruises might have proved inconsequential if Boudreau could have been kept under leash. His first blast was his eighth homer in the fourth. His next also was a homer, this one with two on, to shove the Indians in front by 5 to 3 in the seventh. And as a parting shot the young man slapped a single to drive in two of four superfluous runs in the ninth.

Sox Are Decidedly Off.

Al Smith, altho among the missing before the seventh was concluded, southpawed himself into his twelfth victory against four defeats but not thru any particular display of skill. The Sox slapped him at least once in every inning except the first, but were too charitable for their own good. They ran the bases every way except backwards, five of them being caught as the result of the giddy galloping. The most painful of these offenses occurred in the sixth when six men in a row reached base, but only two scored. This gave Rigney the 3 to 2 lead he couldn't hold.

Just to make it an all around off day the Sox added shabby fielding to their ineffective pitching defense and their merry-go-round base running. However, only two of the boys took part in the error display. Bob Kennedy made one bad peg and booted another, the pair of blunders giving the Indians a run in the fifth. Joe Kuhel improved on this performance in the ninth by erring twice on one play, but these miscues merely served to give the Indians their ninth run.

Kennedy Drives in a Run.

Two hits proved sufficient to fix up the Sox with a one run lead in the second inning. Taft Wright singled to left with one out and after two had been retired Kennedy singled to center to send Wright home from second base. A pass to Larry Rosenthal followed, but Rigney's batting effort was a tap to Smith.

The first hits off Rigney were singles by Smith and Ben Chapman after two were gone in the third, but nothing happened. Neither were there any happenings of account after Jim Webb had opened the home third with a two bagger down the left field line. This was spoiled by Mike Kreevich's poorly aimed bunt, which made it possible to cut down Webb going into third. Kuhel then slapped a long fly into Chapman's hands and Iron Mike, who mistook it for a hit, was doubled off first base.

The next Cleveland hit was Boudreau's homer into the left field stands at the start of the fourth, creating a 1 to 1 tie.

Kennedy Makes Two Errors.

Rigney had two men disposed of in the fifth before Kennedy got him into a jam. Smith singled to center for his second hit. Chapman was given a hit on a slow bounder. When Kennedy heaved the ball high over Kuhel's head Smith went to third and Chapman to second. The miscue would have been useless to the Indians if Kennedy hadn't followed with another. He fumbled Roy Weatherly's gentlemanly tap and Smith scored. The inning ended with Boudreau grounding to Webb.

The sixth, from which the Sox extracted only two runs despite a choice brew of four hits and two passes, took a promising turn when Kreevich doubled with one out. Kuhel scratched a single to Hal Trosky, and on a hit and run Luke Appling punched a single thru short, Kreevich scoring the tying run. Then Wright squeezed a single past Russ Peters and Kuhel scored. For some unknown reason, a double steal was tried and it resulted in Appling's

EVERY AMERICAN DERBY DAY IS A WINGFIELD DAY

75 Year Old Turfman to See His 30th Event.

A rigid rule prohibits mutuel clerks leaving their posts to watch a race, but when the American Derby is run for the 30th time Saturday Mutuel Manager Mort Shaw will make an exception for one of his clerks, because James Wingfield is anxious to keep intact his record of having seen every American Derby.

Jim Wingfield.

Wingfield was an assistant starter for ten American Derbies. He was the man some yards up the track who dropped a flag signifying that the field was off to an official start.

Recalls Millionaires Derby.

Most persons believe, and the records show that Highball won the last American Derby at old Washington Park, 61st street and Cottage Grove avenue, in 1904. And so he did, but unless one is strictly technical don't wager Jim Wingfield that it was the last Derby ever run at the old track before it was dismantled. If one is inclined to wager, Wingfield will present facts about the famous Millionaires' Derby, the all-ringers race, run just before old Washington Park passed into the limbo of gone, but not forgotten.

A group of Chicago's merchants decided to drop the curtain on old Washington Park in their own way. Each put up a stake of $500 and sent forth an agent to pick up a horse to carry his colors. The horses were to be thoroughbreds which had been discarded by racing stables.

Horses Get New Names.

The agents returned with mysterious animals, which were given new names. Wingfield doesn't recall the real names of the horses which comprised that famous all-age field, but each one was a ringer. The winner, Shoestring, carried the colors of the De Muth Shoe company; Silk Gown ran for Charles Stevens; Ham Tree for Swift & Co.; Hot Dog for Armour & Co.; and Dry Goods for Siegel and Cooper. John S. Cooper was the presiding judge. The starter was Wingfield, a former jockey on the flat and over obstacles.

Wingfield was born in New York in 1865 and began his riding career at old Jerome Park in 1877.

Rides in Chicago in 1883.

"I first rode in Chicago in 1883 at old West Side Park, Crawford and Madison street better known as Garfield park," Wingfield recalls. Famous horses raced there—Yo Tambien, Kingston, Maid Marian, Imp, and many others."

Wingfield lives at 4009 Kenmore avenue. He has been a mutuel clerk on Illinois tracks since the mutuel law became effective 13 years ago. Totalisators, electric starting gates, public address systems, and all the adjuncts to modern racing are great improvements, the 75 year old trufveteran admits, but he also yields to an occasional yearning for the old days and customs.

Evans Scores 4 and 3 Victory in City Meet

Chick Evans of Edgewater, former National open and amateur champion, advanced a step closer to his fourth Chicago amateur title by ousting 18 year old Sandy Rissman of Bryn Mawr, 4 and 3, yesterday in the second round of the 36th annual city tournament on the Jackson park course.

Evans demonstrated his mastery of the putter in his victory over Rissman. With a two hole advantage at the turn, Evans scored birdies on the 11th, 14th, and 15th holes with long putts, ranging from eight to 20 feet. He collected an eagle two on the par four 276 yard 12th as a result of a 35 footer.

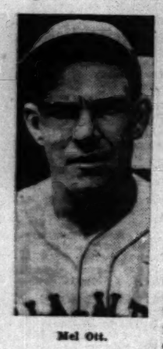
GIANTS HUMBLED BY DODGERS, 8-4, BEFORE 53,997

Crowd Honoring Ott Sets League Night Record.

New York, Aug. 7 (AP).—Mel Ott night in the Polo Grounds brought out a crowd of 53,997, the largest at a night game in National league history, tonight, but they couldn't give the Giants a victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers, who bombarded two pitchers with 14 hits and triumphed, 8 to 4.



Mel Ott.

The Giants took an early lead behind Carl Hubbell's pitching, but the Dodgers blasted out five runs in the seventh inning. It was the sixth success in six games for the Dodgers in their rivals' stronghold this season.

Ott's chief contribution was a spectacular catch of a 450 foot fly by Dolph Camilli in the fifth. Ott beat out a hit in the same inning and scored.

PIRATES TRIUMPH TWICE.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 7 (AP).—Showing the fight Frankie Frisch promised to instill in them, the Pirates today ran their winning streak to seven straight by taking a double header from St. Louis, 10 to 9 and 12 to 6. Pittsburgh now has won 24 of its last 33 games. Spud Davis came thru in the first contest with a pinch hit single that scored two runs in the eighth and assured victory after Pitcher Mace Brown almost blew an early eight run lead. A nine run third inning rally during which Lee Handley, Bob Elliott, and Frankie Gustine each made two hits, clinched the second game. Scores:

Tigers' 5 Run Rally Whips Browns, 7-5

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 7 (AP).—The Detroit Tigers had a scare today, but managed to hold on to an early lead and defeat the St. Louis Browns, 7 to 5. The tottering Browns, who surprisingly often make their best showing against first division clubs, rallied and scored four runs in the last three innings. John Gorsica, Detroit's starting pitcher, was relieved in the ninth by Archie McKain. He in turn had to have help from Alton Benton, who saved the day by retiring Johnny Berardino and Harlond Clift with the bases full. Score:

Cubs Get Nifty.

The Reds went ahead in the third, 2 to 1, after loading the bases with none out. Werber opened with a single to left and Frey beat out a bunt along the third base line. Goodman sacrificed and when Leiber's fielder's choice threw to Hack was too late to force Werber, the bases were loaded. F. McCormick hit into a double play, started by Warstler, Werber scoring the tying run. Lombardi smacked Lee's first pitch for a single to center, scoring Frey. Warstler threw out Dejan.

Gleeson's homer, his fourth of the year, tied the score at the start of the seventh.

Nicholson executed an unassisted double play in the ninth when, after he had come in fast to take Harry Craft's fly, he continued on to first base to get Dejan, who had left the base and was already past second.

Then came the Cub surge in the tenth and Lee's deferred blow up in the home half.

A CHEMIST MIXES UP TROUBLE FOR A POLICE SQUAD

There was shooting in the tavern at 5617 Lake street, Austin police were informed last night. But when Sergeant Danie' Ryan and his squad got there everyone looked amazed and said it was a mistake. An hour later the sergeant was back, in answer to a more urgent call, reporting a gun battle. This time everyone was a bit annoyed, or seemed to be.

It was just before midnight that the murder was reported. While the desk sergeant took down the frightful details, Ryan and his men sped to the tavern. Ryan found Robert Pelham, 50 years old, 312 North Central avenue, a chemist, still in the phone booth. At the bar Ryan seized a fellow chemist, John J. Ford, 34, of 1121 North Lockwood avenue. Both were locked up.

HURRICANE HITS LOUISIANA AND TEXAS; 3 KILLED

Port Arthur, Tex., Aug. 7 (AP).—A hurricane moved inland tonight, leaving a trail of destruction in the Sabine area of Texas and Louisiana. Three lives were lost; 25 persons were marooned, and six were injured as the winds, which reached 75 miles an hour, overtook some of the hundreds who sought safety in flight either inland or to public buildings.

Roaring into Texas from the east, the storm lashed Port Arthur and Orange. It took roofs from houses, uprooted oak trees, and hurled débris thru the air. Three persons were injured at Beaumont, Tex., as the storm passed out of Jefferson county and headed northwest. J. F. Coombs, Jefferson county agent, estimated the damage to the rice crop in that area might reach $500,000.

The fatalities all occurred in Louisiana. James Gordon, 60 years old, a fisherman, drowned near Alluvial. An aged, unidentified refugee was killed while trying to flee high tides. A Chinese youth drowned in Barataria bayou.

URGE DISCLOSURE OF SUPPRESSED TAX FIX REPORT

County Assessor John S. Clark yesterday urged the immediate publication of the complete report on tax fixing prepared by a taxation subcommittee of the Chicago Bar association after an extensive investigation into personal property assessment practices.

The bar association last week made public a report based on the subcommittee's investigations, but suppressed the subcommittee's report which reportedly cited specific cases of tax fixing and disclosed names of the alleged tax fixing firms. The abbreviated report said frauds in assessments had been found, including forgeries and "improper rewards" to county employés.

Clark opened the files in his office to the subcommittee for its search. He said yesterday the subcommittee found no evidence of fixing in his office other than cases already disclosed by Clark himself. In February Clark discovered and halted attempts to fix personal property assessments of 250 corporations.

WILLKIE TO GET SAME RADIO TIME AS ROOSEVELT

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 7 (AP).—The National Association of Broadcasters was assured today that Wendell Willkie will be given free time on radio networks in proportion to whatever campaigning, if any, is forthcoming in President Roosevelt's "fireside chats."

The question was advanced at the association's convention by Dick Bard of station WNEW, New York City, and answered by Paul Kesten, vice president of the Columbia Broadcasting system.

Spokesmen for the networks previously had said Willkie would be given time equal to that granted President Roosevelt, but it had not been made clear whether the time for the Republican nominee would be gratis.

HIND'S WIDOW SELLS $50,000 GUIANA STAMP

New York, Aug. 7 [Special].—The most valuable stamp in the world has been purchased by R. H. Macy & Co. for an unnamed client, it was announced today. Mrs. Ann Hind Scala of Utica, N. Y., sold the $50,000 rarity to Macy's.

The stamp is the only known example of the 1856 one cent British Guiana black on magenta. It has been sought by leading collectors in all parts of the world.

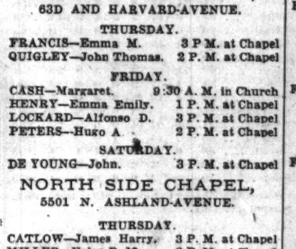
The stamp originally was sold for six shillings by L. Vernon Vaughn, then a youth, who discovered it among old family papers in 1873 in Demarara, British Guiana. Since then it has passed thru many hands. It was bought at auction in Europe in 1921 by Arthur Hind, late husband of Mrs. Scala, for $32,500.

RECOVER BODIES OF 2 DROWNED IN BOAT MISHAP

The bodies of a young man and a boy, who drowned July 21 when a sailboat overturned in the lake off Jackson park, were recovered last night. The victims were Ernest Helmboldt, 24 years old, 6116 South Richmond street, and Robert Wolf, 15, of 6122 South Francisco avenue.

Helmboldt, a photographer, was the owner of the boat, an 18 foot craft known as the Precept. His body was found by Illinois Steel company employés off Indiana Harbor. That of the Wolf boy was discovered by coast guardsmen near 103d street.

Both had been sought since the boat was seen floating, with its sails in the water, a few hours after it left shore.



TAKE TESTIMONY HERE TODAY FOR TRIAL OF SCALISE

Depositions for the grand larceny trial of George Scalise, former president of the Building Service Employés' International union, will be taken in Chicago today. The trial of Scalise, who is accused of stealing $60,000 from the union treasury, is scheduled to start Monday in New York.

Murray I. Gurfein, assistant district attorney of New York county under Thomas E. Dewey, and Martin W. Littleton, chief of defense counsel, will be in Chicago for the depositions. Gurfein will take statements from William McFetridge, who succeeded Scalise as head of the union; Thomas J. Burke and Gus Van Heck, vice presidents; Elizabeth A. Grady, trustee, and Harry Altschuler, an accountant.

For the defense, a deposition will be taken from Mrs. Helen Cumberland, 1007 Hollywood avenue, Des Plaines, who was a bookkeper in the union offices in Chicago from 1934 to 1939. It is the defense contention that Scalise had a legitimate right to withdraw funds from the union.

TAVERN OWNER, SEIZED IN RAID, FREED BY JUDGE

Arthur Green, 35 years old, owner of a tavern at 3325 Southport avenue, was dismissed in the Women's court yesterday on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of two girls.

The tavern was raided July 28 by policemen from Commissioner Allman's office and the two girls, 15 and 16 years old, were among 171 persons taken into custody. The policemen testified the girls were drinking noalcoholic beverages and Judge Nuncio Bonelli ruled Green had not contributed to their delinquency. The judge previously had dismissed the others seized in the raid, who had been charged with disorderly conduct.

Charges that Green had no cigaret, food, and amusement licenses were dismissed when he proved he had purchased them since the raid.

HAT IS SHOT OFF BUT A DRIVER KEEPS HIS CAR

Louis Pavlacky Jr., still has his car. When two gunmen jumped in with him at 18th street and Racine avenue last night, Louis, who is 25 years old and lives at 1648 Allport avenue, held the ignition keys out of the car window. Then one of the men stuck a gun against Pavlacky's ribs. Pavlacky stubbornly shook his head. The gun was shifted to his head and Louis reach up to knock it away.

The gunman shot his hat off. Louis still said no! The gunman walloped Louis on the chin. Louis jumped out and ran. The robbers jumped out also and ran in the opposite direction.

J. Soule Warterfield.

Ald. Arthur G. Lindell (9th), chairman of the housing committee, said he is confident a satisfactory bill to promote private slum rebuilding can be drafted for submission to the state legislature next January. His comment was made after reading a report submitted to his committee by J. Soule Warterfield, vice president of the building congress.

"The congress has gone more than half way to meet our suggestions," Lindell said. "The chief point of difference concerns the agency which shall supervise the city reconstruction program."

Sought Council Supervision.

In an earlier meeting with officials of the building congress Lindell had suggested that the private housing corporations to be created under the proposed law be under the jurisdiction of the city council. Previous bills placed them under the state housing board.

Warterfield's report suggested that supervision of the program be vested in the Chicago Plan commission. The report was referred to the committee for study. Public hearings will be called in the fall.

The proposed legislation would provide for the establishment of privately financed housing corporations which would undertake to reconstruct down-at-the-heel neighborhoods of Illinois cities. The companies would be given power to acquire, thru condemnation proceedings, a part of the land needed for building sites after they had purchased or taken options on 50 per cent or more of the land needed for each project. This power would be directed against obstructive landowners who demand exorbitant prices.

Previous Bills Filibustered.

Similar enabling legislation was defeated in the Illinois legislature more than a year ago. The defeated bills were passed in the senate, but were filibustered to death in the lower house in the jam at the closing hours of the session.

In his report to the council housing committee Warterfield said:

"The new Chicago Plan commission has been organized and will be ready shortly to prepare the general plan or pattern for the neighborhood social requirements and the economic rebuilding of our city.

"Next there must be the enactment of enabling legislation to permit the creation of corporate entities which will best serve all the public and private interests, and at the same time give the incentive to capital, both public and private, to do the job of rebuilding our cities.

"The power to assemble the necessary land in an orderly, legal, socially expedient, and economical way to accomplish the desired purpose must be made possible under such legislation."

Asks Council Sponsorship.

He suggested that the city council sponsor the proposed law to permit the creation of neighborhood redevelopment associations.

Warterfield said that he saw no "insurmountable hurdles to the harmonizing of our program." He said the congress' attorneys, William Wilson and John Butler, have been instructed to rewrite the draft of the law in collaboration with the corporation counsel's office.

The building congress, the statement indicated, agreed with the Lindell committee that at least 10 per cent of the building sites be devoted to parks and playgrounds, and that at least 60 per cent of the land be under option before condemnation is started.

"A program by which the necessary assembly of property is to be accomplished thru the exercise of the right of condemnation by the city and the transfer of the property thus acquired by the city to private neighborhood redevelopment associations is unobjectionable," Waterfield said, "if such a program can be made legally possible and the condemnation can be so safeguarded that the private associations will not be victimized by excessive costs."

Made on Lindell's Suggestion.

This opinion was submitted in response to Lindell's suggestion that the city start condemnation proceedings on behalf of the building companies after the latter had placed adequate funds in escrow.

Warterfield asserted that the program was "so vital to the survival of our cities that the use of eminent domain" by the private building companies themselves would be justified if proper safeguards were erected to prevent abuse of this power.

CANADIAN GOLD PRODUCTION SETS NEW HIGH RECORD

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 7 (AP).—Quantity and value of gold produced during 1939 were the largest in the history of the Canadian mining industry, the dominion bureau of statistics said today. Production of new gold from all primary sources totaled 5,094,379 fine troy ounces, compared with 4,725,117 in 1938. Gross value of output was $184,115,951, an increase of 10.8 per cent over 1938.

Ontario mines contributed 3,086,076 fine ounces, Quebec 953,377, British Columbia 626,970, and Manitoba 180,875. Lesser quantities were recovered in the Yukon, Saskatchewan, Nova Scotia, the Northwest Territories and Alberta.

According to preliminary statistics of world production, Canada ranked second or third as a gold producing country, being exceeded only by the Union of South Africa and possibly Russia, the bureau said.

COURT RULES OUT CONVICTIONS ON STOCK 'RIGGING'

New York, Aug. 7 (AP).—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals today set aside the conviction of Norman W. Minuse and Joseph Pelletier, New York stock dealers whose conviction was the first under the stock manipulation provisions of the securities exchange act of 1934.

They were convicted of conspiracy to violate the SEC act by "rigging" the market in class A common stock of Tastyeast, Inc. Operating in the brokerage firm of Minuse & Co., Minuse was sentenced to two years in prison and fined $5,000. His junior partner, Pelletier, was assessed a two year term and a $1,000 fine.

The appeals court reversed the conviction on the grounds of "prejudicial errors" committed by the trial court. Boris Kostelanetz, assistant United States attorney, said they would be retried if the government decided not to appeal to the United States Supreme court.

DEFENSE ORDERS MAY CREATE NEW TEXTILE RECORD

New York, Aug. 7 [Special].—Textile production for the first six months this year averaged 6 per cent ahead of the 1939 period, the Textile World reported today.

The publication's index of mill activity for the six months was 132, taking 1923-'25 as 100, matching the rate for the full year 1939.

"The activity in national defense plans," the trade paper observed, "involving not only direct government purchases but the indirect effect on textiles from other industries, promises continued activity. There is the further possibility that the rate may be accelerated, and a new textile record set in 1940."

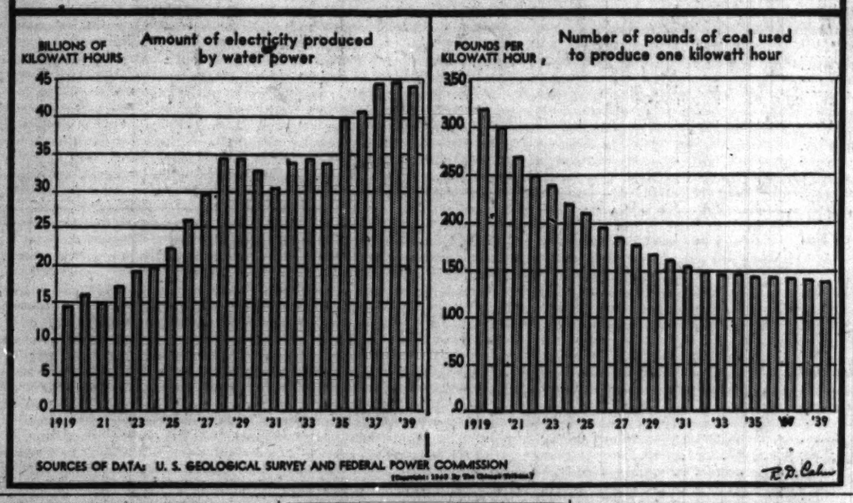
Two Factors in the Declining Market for Coal



Vultee Takes Over Stinson Aircraft Firm

New York, Aug. 7 (AP).—A corporate consolidation which will join an important maker of military planes and a widely known commercial aircraft manufacturer, and which will result in an expansion of plane building in the Tennessee valley area, was announced today by Harry Woodhead, president of Aviation Manufacturing corporation, and R. W. Millar, president of Vultee Aircraft, Inc.

Harry Woodhead.

Vultee will take over the Stinson aircraft division of Aviation Manufacturing, and plans an immediate expansion of the latter's plant at the municipal airport at Nashville, Tenn.

Aviation Manufacturing corporation is a wholly owned subsidiary of Aviation corporation, and Aviation corporation owns about 60 per cent control of Vultee.

Payment to Be in Stock.

The price to be paid for the Stinson properties, which also include a parts plant at Wayne, Mich., is 302,168 shares of Vultee, valued at present market prices at about $2,115,000. Stinson has previously produced only commercial, trainer, and observation types of planes, while Vultee, whose main plant is in Los Angeles county, California, has concentrated on fighting ships.

Woodhead declared: The extent of the ultimate expansion at Nashville will depend on the course of events, but it is probable that facilities will be enlarged immediately to three or four times the present area."

Now Employs 500.

The present floor space is 180,000 square feet, and employment is about 500.

However, it was learned that eventually Vultee expects to build a plant which, with equipment and tools, will have a value of $6,000,000 to $7,000,000 and may employ 6,000 to 7,000 persons. Such a development, it was said, will depend on the rate at which government plane orders are released.

Woodhead was elected chairman of the board of directors of Vultee. Millar will continue as president.

Doyle said that he was not at liberty to name the companies but that a statement may be issued today in Washington following a conference of officials of the department of justice and the Securities and Exchange commission.

It was reported that O. John Rogge, assistant attorney general in charge of the criminal division, would supervise presentation of the case.

PERMIT 2 FREIGHTERS TO GO TO RUSSIA, BUT BAR TWO FROM JAPAN

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7 (AP).—The maritime commission today authorized two American owned tankers to make trips to Russia with cargos of motor gasoline, but denied two other applications for vessels to make voyages to Japan with steel and oil.

The commission authorized the tankers Vacuum and China Arrow of Socony Vacuum Oil Co., Inc., to carry cargoes of motor gasoline from California to Russia, with loading to commence about Aug. 26 and Sept. 6, respectively.

The commission denied an application for the freighter Lafayette of the Waterman Steamship corporation to make a voyage with a cargo of new steel from the United States to Japan in September. Permission also was denied the tanker Emidio of Socony Vacuum Oil company to make a voyage to Japan in September with a cargo of Diesel oil.

In acting upon the applications, the commission made no comment.

ABITIBI POWER PROPERTY TO BE SOLD AT AUCTION

New York, Aug. 7 [Special].—The Montreal Trust company today announced that the property and assets of the Abitibi Power and Paper company, Ltd., now in receivership, will be offered for sale as a going concern in one parcel at public auction on Oct. 16. The sale will be conducted in Toronto, Canada, by F. J. Barlow, master of the Supreme Court of Ontario, pursuant to a court order dated June 10.

Subject to a reserve bid, to be fixed by the master, the high bidder will be the purchaser of the property, and must deliver to the master 10 per cent of the purchase price within 24 hours. The remainder is to be paid with interest at 5 per cent, on or before Dec. 16, 1940.

MINIMUM COAL PRICES FIXED AT EASTERN MINES

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7 (AP).—Coal consumers of Ohio, Illinois, Michigan, and West Virginia would pay prices at the mine ranging from $1.35 to $3.30 a ton for southern West Virginia "smokeless" and eastern Kentucky and northeastern Tennessee coals under minimum prices set by the bituminous coal division.

The prices—still subject to appeals to the department of interior before becoming effective Sept. 3—were set in an attempt to stabilize the soft coal industry.

The low price of $1.35 a ton was set for ⅝ inch slack of the lowest grade from the New River Pocahontas smokeless field in southern West Virginia. The high of $3.30 was for egg sizes from the same field.

ENGLAND TO BUY EGYPT'S ENTIRE '40 COTTON CROP

LONDON, Aug. 7 (AP).—R. A. Butler, under secretary for foreign affairs, announced today that Britain was setting up a commission to buy the entire 1940 Egyptian cotton crop of 1,600,000 bales [800,000,000 pounds].

Butler said this was done on the appeal of Egypt, whose regular outlets for the cotton have been cut off by the war. The purchase will be made before April 4, 1941, he said, at prices of about 14.25 to 15.25 cents a pound.

The British government will bear the whole of any loss which may arise from the transaction and will share equally with the Egyptian government any profits, Butler said.

Congress Acts for Regulation of Waterways

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7 (AP).—A conference agreement paved the way today for congress to complete action soon on the bill placing water carriers under regulation of the Interstate Commerce commission, along with the railroads and motor carriers.

Chairman Clarence F. Lea [D., Cal.] of the house interstate commerce committee said the legislation, dealing with many phases of transportation, would be called up in the house within a few days. It was recommended by President Roosevelt two years ago but had been tied up for more than a year while conferees of the senate and house strove to adjust differences between versions of the bill passed by the two chambers.

Modify Merger Clause.

One stumbling block was an amendment by Representative Vincent F. Harrington [D., Ia.] forbidding the I. C. C. to approve any railroad merger, consolidation, or abandonment which would eliminate any jobs. As finally worked out, this provision would be modified to permit the elimination of jobs provided displaced workers are paid their salaries for no more than four years afterward. The conferees also eliminated the reference to abandonment.

Also dropped from the final draft was an amendment by Representative James W. Wadsworth [R., N. Y.], which would permit carriers to reduce their rates so long as they provided a "compensatory return."

Rate Arguments Conflict.

Proponents of this provision argued that it would enable water carriers to reduce their rates to meet rate-war competition by railroads, while its opponents argued that it would disrupt the whole rate-making process. Wadsworth made public a letter to the house membership contending that its elimination was unjustified and unprecedented since both chambers had approved it.

The bill also would repeal the statutes which require the "land grant" railroads to carry government freight and troops free and would authorize the Reconstruction Finance corporation to make certain new railroad loans where private financing is lacking.

AUCTIONEER MAY BE NEW 'VICTIM' OF MACHINE' AGE

Winter Haven, Fla., Aug. 7 (AP).—Machines designed to auction Florida citrus fruit in several cities simultaneously will be demonstrated here tomorrow.

As explained by H. H. Stockfeld, engineer-sponsor, the plan would work like this:

Each day participating shippers would file with a central office via teletypewriter copies of federal-state inspection certificates covering carload lots of fruit offered for the next day's sales.

These certificates would be transmitted in facsimile to all marketing points and distributed in catalog form to carlot buyers. At a given hour the sale would open on a synchronized hookup of sales machines.

Each carload lot would be submitted by catalog number and as soon as a bid was made, a large hand on the machine would start a ten second revolution. If another bid were made before this cycle was completed, the hand would snap gack to its original position, repeating this action with each new bid. Whenever the hand completed its cycle the sale would be closed automatically at the latest bid.

BENDIX AVIATION EARNS RECORD QUARTER PROFIT

New Orders Exceed Shipments.

Among numerous earnings statements issued yesterday was Bendix Aviation corporation's report for the second quarter of 1940 showing net income of $2,361,539, or $1.13 a share, the largest profit for any quarter in the airplane and auto accessory manufacturer's history. In the June quarter of last year profit was $1,144,214, or 54 cents a share.

The statement, which included the domestic subsidiaries of Bendix, was issued by E. R. Palmer, vice president and treasurer of the company. Following the same trend as earnings, the company's sales and pay rolls for the latest quarter also were the highest on record, Palmer said.

"New orders received during the period continued to exceed outgoing shipments, resulting in a further increase in unfilled orders to a total of approximately $45,000,000 on June 30," Palmer said. Neither the sales nor unfilled orders reflect any business resulting from the new national defense program, he said.

Six Month Income Climbs.

For the six months ended June 30 consolidated net profit was $4,295,419, equal to $2.05 a share, against $2,168,210, or $1.03 a share, in the first half of 1939. Palmer said the company is carrying a reserve of approximately $625,000 to meet any excess profits taxes which may be applicable to the current year.

Pullman company, sleeping car affiliate of Pullman, Inc., reported net earnings for June of $155,117, a decline from the $178,725 reported for June last year. Net earnings for the six months ended June 30 were $1,146,249, compared with $1,317,131 in the first half of 1939. Net earnings in the case of Pullman are after taxes and air conditioning reserves.

Link-Belt company and subsidiaries, large manufacturer of material handling equipment, with headquarters in Chicago, reported consolidated net income of $965,279, or $1.26 a common share, for the six months ended June 30. This compared with net income of $442,479, or 49 cents a share, in the 1939 period.

Eastman Kodak Net Higher.

Eastman Kodak company reported profit of the company and its subsidiaries in the Americas for the 24 weeks ended June 15 was $9,179,170, or $3.63 a share of common stock after preferred dividends. This compared with net earnings of the company and all wholly owned subsidiaries of $8,688,870, or $3.43 a share, in the corresponding period of 1939.

In explaining that the accounts of subsidiaries in the western hemisphere were consolidated in the current report, the statement said profits of companies and branches elsewhere were not included, "altho all known losses of such companies and branches have been deducted in arriving at earnings."

Directors said that their information was that premises and stocks of subsidiaries in war zones are intact and undamaged, but that "it is still too early to appraise the ultimate effects of the war on the company." The statement was signed by W. G. Stuber, chairman, and F. W. Lovejoy, president.

Since June 1, the American Woolen company has received federal government contracts totaling $11,060,552 in connection with the defense program, the company reported in issuing its earnings figures. Net profits for the first six months were $394,430, equal to $1.13 a share on preferred stock, compared with $357,670, or $1.02 a share, in the first half of 1939.

ChargeHopson Put on the Bite for $1 Dog Tag

New York, Aug. 7 (AP).—The government charged today that Howard C. Hopson, accused of illicitly milking $20,000,000 from the billion dollar Associated Gas and Electric system, used corporate funds indirectly to pay for a $1 license for his brother-in-law's dog.

Howard C. Hopson.

"The system paid directly for the rent of Hopson's hotel apartment, the salary of his personal chauffeur, the expenses of trips to Florida, his personal telephone bills, and advanced cash for his personal expenses," Special Assistant United States Attorney General Hugh Fulton declared.

Fulton's statement was made as he filed a two-volume bill of particulars charging the former utility magnate and two associates, indicted with him May 9 on charges of mail fraud and conspiracy, with having made 200 false statements in Associated Gas & Electric company litigation in recent years.

Charged with "Pettiness."

Asserting the 58 year old utilities executive was "not satisfied with having defrauded the purchasers of securities and with the profits made by his service companies, the prosecutor added:

"Hopson resorted to the pettiness of padding bills which were paid directly or indirectly by companies within the Associated system.

"Other items, paid indirectly thru various companies, included bills for food, groceries, cigars, liquors, linens, theater tickets, hardware, gardening implements, fertilizers for Hopson's lawn, motor robes, medicine, cameras and radios."

Hopson's co-defendants are Charles M. Travis and Garrett A. Brownback, lawyers. They are scheduled to go on trial Sept. 3.

Runs Few Thousands to Billion.

During the postwar boom Hopson ran a few thousand dollars into control of a billion thru a series of pyramided holding companies, each controling by a relatively small investment the larger assets of subordinate companies.

Stockholders repeatedly charged that Hopson was "syphoning" the profits of the lower companies up into the top company and his pocket. The government has been investigating him since 1933. In 1935, he resigned his offices, retaining investments.

Last January the government ruled that the subordinate companies were not in position to pay dividends to the upper companies and, with the flow of profits thus cut off, the top controling unit went into technical bankruptcy.

In February the government filed a $2,600,000 income tax lien against Hopson, four relatives and five corporations he controled.

Grant Delays to Comply with Power Regulations

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7 (AP).—The Federal Power commission today granted five electric companies extension of time in which to comply with the commission's uniform plant account regulations. The companies and the dates to which extensions were granted are Consolidated Gas, Electric Light and Power Company of Baltimore, Dec. 31; Buffalo-Niagara Electric corporation, Jan. 31; Northern Indiana Power company, Dec. 31; Public Service Company of Indiana, Dec. 31, and Indiana Service corporation, Sept. 30.

DIESEL ENGINE BUILDER GIVEN ORDER FOR 18

Big Contract Goes to Electro-Motive.

An order for 18 Diesel-electric locomotives has been placed by the Atlantic Coast Line railroad with the Electro-Motive corporation at La Grange, C. McDowell Davis, executive vice president of the road, announced yesterday in Wilmington, N. C. This is said to be the largest single order ever placed for passenger Diesel-electrics in point of total horsepower and dollar volume.

Each of the locomotives is to be of 2,000 horsepower, or a total of 36,000 horsepower, and the amount involved is said to be about $2,000,000.

From headquarters in San Francisco, the Southern Pacific company announced it had placed orders for 2,350 freight cars. Included were 1,500 box cars to cost approximately $4,250,000. The General American Transportation corporation, Pressed Steel Car company, and Bethlehem Steel company, each will build 500 of them.

The company ordered 500 large automobile cars from the Mount Vernon Car Manufacturing company, at a cost of about $1,800,000. From the American Car and Foundry company, 350 hopper cars costing $1,000,000 were ordered.

Roads Order Passenger Cars.

Davis also disclosed that the Atlantic Coast Line and the Pennsylvania railroad have ordered 21 stainless steel streamlined coaches to double the carrying capacity of the Champion—de luxe all coach train that runs between New York and Miami. The order was placed with the Edward G. Budd Manufacturing company, Philadelphia.

The Champion is operated jointly by the Pennsylvania and the Atlantic Coast Line. Last year the train proved so popular during the winter tourist season that it was frequently sold out and there were reports that hotel employés sought to scalp tickets on the train. In addition to the growing popularity of Florida as a winter resort, Davis said increasing business in the southeast also was responsible for the orders.

"The rapid gains of industry in the southeastern states demand a corresponding increase in new and faster trains," Davis said. "The manufacturing centers of the intermediate south can be expected to increase their production since America, because of the European war, is forced to supply its own markets, and we look confidently to new and greater development in the south in the near future."

Brings Orders to 40.

The Atlantic Coast Line order will bring to more than 40 the number of locomotives now being built in the La Grange plant of Electro-Motive, a subsidiary of the General Motors corporation. The first of the A. C. L. locomotives is expected to be delivered about Nov. 1, with the rest to be completed early next year.

Among the other orders on which Electro-Motive is working is one for 25 switch locomotives for the Baltimore and Ohio. Of this group 16 will be of 600 horsepower and 9 of 1,000 horsepower. On Tuesday it was announced that the North Western, Union Pacific and Southern Pacific railroads were ordering two 6,000 horsepower Diesel-electrics to be used between Chicago and the Pacific Coast.

The La Grange plant is being operated at a high rate, with employment close to 3,000 persons. Only a few years ago the site of the plant, near the western suburb at McCook, was farm land.

New York Stocks.

New York, Aug. 7 (AP).—Stocks slipped a shade today in a market almost paralyzed by doubt over the English channel campaign.

The Associated Press average of 60 selected stocks dropped 0.1 of a point at 42.4. Only 239,690 shares moved, compared with 289,890 yesterday. It was one of the lightest weekday sessions in months.

Only 548 issues were traded on the "big board." Some of the usual leaders failed to appear on the ticker tape.

Industrial news in the United States continued as a supporting factor.

Wall street continued to look to Washington for leads in the program of rearmament. The steel industry, it was reported, has to date received few actual army orders. Many producers of various kinds of munitions are waiting hopefully for tax rate modifications. Meanwhile, shares in many of the companies concerned were static.

On the downside, by fractions, at the close were Glenn Martin, Douglas, Eastman, Allied Chemical, Union Carbide, duPont, Westinghouse, Air Reduction, American Smelting, Anaconda, and American Paper. Higher a bit were United States Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, International Paper, United Aircraft, Santa Fe and Montgomery Ward.

In the curb, where 62,000 shares were traded, compared with 63,000 yesterday, gainers included Aluminum, Ltd., Cities Service, and Niles-Bement-Pond, and among the losers were New England Telephone, Chesebrough, and Pittsburgh Plate Glass.

CORN FUTURES SPURT; OTHER GRAINS HIGHER

Confirmation by the weather bureau of extensive damage to the corn crop in various parts of the leading producing states started a buying movement in corn futures yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade, and prices on the exchange generally finished higher with the exception of soy beans.

Corn was the leader. At no time were prices on that grain below final sales on Tuesday, and when shorts tried to cover they found little for sale. Closing trades on corn were about at the top with grains of 1 to 1¾ cents, September leading the advance. The upturn in September corn was helped along by commission house buying of September against sales of the deferred futures.

Strength in corn influenced other grains. Wheat was under pressure early, but rallied late in the session and closed ⅛ to ¼ cents higher. Oats finished ⅛ to ¼ cent higher, and rye was up ⅜ to ½ cent. Commission houses sold soy beans on a small scale and found support lacking. Soy bean futures closed 1¾ to 1⅞ cents lower.

SECRET PLEDGE TO MAKE LATIN LOANS CHARGED

Congressman Hears New Deal Acted at Havana.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7 (AP).—A congressional committee heard an assertion today that the administration secretly promised loans to Latin American countries at the recent Havana conference in return for their support of a proposal to bar the axis powers from gaining a foothold in the western hemisphere.

Representative Fred L. Crawford [R., Mich.], told the house banking committee he understood that Milo Perkins, president of the Federal Surplus Commodities corporation, had been sent to the Havana meeting of American foreign ministers to negotiate the loans with countries which would promise support for a resolution barring transfer of title to European possessions in this hemisphere.

Representative Crawford (left) and Milo Perkins, named by Crawford the man reported sent to Havana with secret offer.

Jones Testifies on Bill.

Crawford made the statement while Jesse Jones, federal loan administrator, was testifying on a bill to authorize an increase in the capital of the Export-Import bank from $200,000,000 to $700,000,000. Crawford asserted that the report of Perkins' activities strengthened Republican contentions that the bill was merely a "back door" method of getting the United States into a cartel which would buy up South and Central American agricultural surpluses.

Commenting to reporters, Perkins characterized Crawford's statement as "absurd."

Perkins said that altho he attended the conference, he was not a member of the official delegation. His reason for attending, he said, was to discuss with agricultural officials of Latin American countries their methods of handling the disposal of farm surpluses.

Jones Prefers to Take Risk.

Earlier, Jones told the committee that altho the government would have no insurance against revolutions in the borrowing countries and any possible subsequent renunciation of all their public debts, the potential benefits would make the risk well worth while.

Because of the world situation, Jones said he thought the United States could afford to lose the money better than it could afford not to take the risk.

COFFEE IMPORTS SET PEAK; EXCHANGE SAYS IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

New York, Aug. 7 (AP).—"Advertising pays," the New York Coffee and Sugar exchange said today in an announcement that imports of coffee in the crop year ended June 30 had reached a record total of 15,482,830 bags of 132 pounds each, or 15½ pounds for each person in the United States.

The announcement said imports, which about parallel domestic consumption, had risen 2,346,615 bags, or 2.2 pounds per capita, in the last two years. During that period an advertising campaign has been conducted in the United States jointly by six Latin American countries banded together in the Pan American Coffee bureau. A United States trade organization, Associated Coffee Industries of America, coöperated.

The American people consumed the equivalent of 620 cups of coffee a year [40 cups to the pound] for every man, woman and child in the United States in the latest crop year. That was 88 more cups a year than two years ago, when the promotion campaign began.

STATE'S REQUEST FOR UTILITY QUIZ ACCEPTED BY SEC

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7 [Special].—Called upon to investigate a utility situation at the request of a state commission, for the first time since enactment of the holding company act of 1935, the Securities and Exchange commission today ordered a public investigation of service charge relationships between New England Power Service company and Bellows Falls Hydro-Electric corporation and Green Mountain Power corporation.

The investigation was ordered at the request of the public service commission of Vermont, where the Bellows and Green Mountain companies operate. Hearings will start Sept. 12 at Montpelier, Vt.

The application of the Vermont commission and the immediate response of the SEC attracted more than ordinary attention in view of certain criticisms that the SEC was dominating the regulatory field and might eventually displace state commissions.

The New England company is a service organization for New England Power association, of which the other two companies are subsidiaries.

BUREAU SETS UP TOBACCO LOAN, PURCHASE PLAN

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7 (AP).—The Commodity Credit corporation announced today it would establish a loan and purchase program for flue-cured tobacco, designed to stabilize the market and assist in financing exports. The program, it was announced, would give United States producers an average price equal to or slightly above last year's average.

The program, it was said, would apply not only to foreign controled firms buying largely for Great Britain but also to domestic companies buying for export to countries whose purchases are now cut off by war. Foreign controled companies will be eligible only for the purchase phase of the program. American companies may either purchase the tobacco as agents for the corporation or may buy the tobacco at auctions, move it into storage and obtain loans from the corporation.

The authorization is for loans and purchases up to 200,000,000 pounds. Early in July, flue-cured production was estimated at 675,000,000 pounds.

CHICAGO FEDERAL SAVINGS RENTS ROOKERY SPACE

The Chicago Federal Savings and Loan association, now in upstairs offices at 1 North La Salle street, has leased for six years first floor space at 211 South La Salle street, in the Rookery.

Clive J. Taylor, of Aldis & Co., negotiated the lease. According to John B. Reynolds, president of the association, the new quarters will be ready about Nov. 1, following extensive remodeling. The association, Reynolds said, has grown during the last seven years from total assets of $25,000 to $1,800,000 at present. During the year ending June 30, assets increased $460,000, and 119 first mortgage loans, totaling $759,000 were made, principally on homes in the Chicago area.

The organization was said to be the third federal savings and loan association to move to a first or second floor banking space on La Salle street in recent years.

VIEW CORN LOSS AS 'IRREPARABLE' IN SOME AREAS

Weather Bureau Confirms Drouth Damage.

Hot and dry weather has caused irreparable damage to corn in parts of Illinois, Nebraska, Kansas, and Oklahoma, but the condition of the crop showed much improvement in areas which recently received ample moisture, the weather bureau reported yesterday.

Moderate to heavy rains occurred in most of Minnesota and in areas in North Dakota, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, northeastern Missouri, northwestern Ohio, and in a few other localities, the bureau said. There was little or no rain in the Ohio valley, eastern Oklahoma, and parts of Montana. Elsewhere amounts were mostly light.

Some Corn Already Matured.

The bulk of the corn crop has passed the critical pollination period in most southern and many central areas, and some early corn is matured in Texas and Oklahoma, the report said. Harvesting and threshing of small grains is about completed in the central states and the southwest and is well along in the northwest.

Water for live stock is becoming scarce over much of the great plains area, and there is local shortage in Ohio.

Crop conditions in Illinois as reported by the weather bureau follow:

Lack of a state-wide rain is daily increasing the damage to corn and soy beans. Condition of the corn crop ranges from poor to excellent in the north and poor to fairly good in the central and southern section of the state. Considerable tassels and bottom leaves are firing in most areas, seriously so in many fields in the south and central areas, with damage estimated at 20 to 50 per cent. Condition of soy beans ranges from poor to good.

Comparison of Rainfall.

Rainfall for the week ending Aug. 6 and from April 1 to Aug. 6 in inches and hundredths of inches, as reported by the weather bureau follow:

Find Chicago Apprentice Ratio Is High in Tool and Die Trade

The Chicago area has one apprentice to every five tool and die makers, a status which puts the district in a foremost position for expanding training to provide defense workers, according to a report issued yesterday with the indorsement of the Council on Training of Defense Workers.

William Bachrach, head of council on training defense workers.

The report presented the results of a survey on the present supply of this class of skilled mechanics in the area, and the demand for such workers. The study was made by the committee on education of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Altho the report stated that "present trainees in industry probably can not be regarded as more than sufficient for replacement only," it said the ratio is considered more favorable than those prevailing in other sections of the country. The council on training has recommended that "in service" training be expanded to meet the future demands of the defense program.

Most Are Trained in Shops.

Out of 133 companies reporting in the survey, 86 answered questions relating specifically to training methods. These 86 companies employ 883 tool and die makers, of whom 85 per cent were trained in the shops of the reporting enterprise or those of another firm. Only 3 per cent were recorded as having training in trade or technical schools.

As yet schools "cannot be regarded as a source of supply for men who will be accepted by industry as completely trained tradesmen at the time of graduation," the report declared. The value of schools as a source of background and supplemental training was not under consideration in the study, the report added.

"The supply of foreign trained craftsmen is generally held to be practically shut off," William Bachrach, chairman of the council on training, said in the report.

Discussing another possible source, he said that "apparently there are enough tradesmen in the area who are not now employed at their trade to care for a very small increase in business." The extent of this reserve man power is estimated at 4 to 10 per cent, he said.

Average Age 41.8 Years.

The average age of the 1,706 toolmakers in the 133 reporting companies is 41.8 years, the report stated. "This is younger than perhaps might have been anticipated," it added. The number of tool and die makers employed by these companies varies from 1 to 251.

Stanley P. Farwell is vice chairman of the council on training of defense workers, organized by the Chicago Association of Commerce to coördinate the training of mechanics for defense work in the Chicago area.

Members include representatives of the Illinois Manufacturers' association, the army, the navy, the WPA, the National Youth administration, the Illinois state employment service, Western Electric company, Armour Institute of Technology, Industrial Relations association, Chicago Management council, the Y. M. C. A., the public school system, Illinois Board of Vocational Education, and the National Metal Trades association.

CHICAGO GROUP SEES SYNTHETIC RUBBER PROCESS

Goodrich Aid Explains How Material Is Derived.

A group of Chicagoans at the Palmer House yesterday saw one of the first public demonstrations of the making of synthetic rubber—one of several processes which are said to offer the possibility that America eventually will be freed from the threat of having its raw rubber supplies cut off by war.

The group watched James W. Schade, director of research for the B. F. Goodrich company, pour synthetic latex into a bowl and add an acid. As the whitish liquid was stirred, the acid coagulated it and Schade produced on the stirring stick a round ball resembling a ball of raw rubber before heating and other treatment.

Bankers Watch Demonstration.

Observers of the demonstration included E. E. Brown, president of the First National Bank of Chicago, and James R. Leavell, president of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company.

Schade said that the synthetic rubber, after coagulation, goes thru practically the same routine in the making of various rubber products as does natural rubber. At present it is somewhat harder to work than natural rubber, he said, but added that as manufacturing experience grows this minor handicap is expected to be overcome.

Petroleum Basic Material.

The basic raw materials in the synthetic rubber being produced by Goodrich, which has been named "Ameripol" or "Liberty Rubber," include a mixture produced from the cracking of petroleum. From this mixture is separated a gas which under pressure liquifies to give butadiene.

The butadiene is mixed with other ingredients prepared from natural gas and air, and then made into an emulsion in which is used soap made from American agricultural products. It is this emulsion that coagulates when acid is mixed with it.

Schade said that the Goodrich company completing a large commercial plant, which is to go into operation this fall at Akron, O. It is expected that the plant will have a capacity of several tons a day.

DAY by DAY on the FARM by HOMER CROISZ

Rains Aid Crops.

Aug. 7, 1940.

LIGHT rains during the last few days have moistened the surface soil in gardens and corn fields at the Du Page county farm and brought more relief to parched pastures and field crops than they have had since the drouth began early in July.

Pastures are greener already. The corn has stopped firing and shows some promise of making a fair crop should the rains continue. The surface soil in corn fields is moist to a depth of two inches or more. The manager had about decided to make silage of the corn, but now he thinks it may pay to fill the remaining silo with alfalfa and leave the corn to see if it will produce a crop of ears.

Interfere with Harvest.

The rains have been heavy enough to interfere with oat harvest by making the straw too tough for the combine to do a clean job of threshing. Some of the straw that had been left in the swath by the combine had to be turned over with a side delivery rake to dry out before it could be baled. All the small grain straw this year is being raked up and baled for use as bedding in horse barns and in cattle feeding yards.

Short pastures made it necessary to shift the 80 feeding steers to fresh grazing land this week. They now have access to a bluegrass pasture and a field of red clover. The steers have been given dry feed since the drouth became severe and workers say they have continued to gain weight despite the scarcity of green feed.

The steers are fed hay twice a day and each gets five pounds of whole oats and one-half pound of cottonseed meal at night. During the hottest weather they spent much of their time around the watering tanks. An electric motor still runs several hours a day, pumping water into two large tanks for them.

Open Pastures Preferred.

The manager says the steers make faster gains on open pasture than when they are grazing in the timber pastures. He thinks the strength of the grass in the open and in the shade may have something to do with it, but he says the animals graze more of the time when in the open. When in the woods they spend a lot of time tramping single file thru the brush or lying down among the bushes to protect themselves from flies. There are flies in the open too, but the steers huddle close together for protection and keep on grazing.

The hay chopper was set up yesterday, ready to start filling the last silo with second cutting alfalfa. Two silos were filled with alfalfa and red clover from the first cutting. The alfalfa to be put in the silo was cut short by the drouth and workers say it will not yield more than half a normal crop of hay.

LEHIGH VALLEY DEBT EXTENSION PLAN APPROVED

Court Acts Under Terms of Chandler Law.

New York, Aug. 7 [Special].—The Lehigh Valley railroad's plan for extension and adjustment of indebtedness of approximately $50,000,000 was approved today by a special three judge federal court appointed under the Chandler act to pass on the plan.

With the authorization of the Lehigh Valley plan, voluntary reorganization of recapitalization plans of six railroads which filed under the Chandler bill have been approved. [The Chandler act revising the federal bankruptcy act permits railroads to make voluntary agreements with creditors to ease financial difficulties.]

The plan of the Lehigh Valley, filed on Aug. 7 last year, has been held up in the court pending some assurance on the part of the railroad that a settlement could be reached concerning more than $6,000,000 of delinquent taxes which are owed to the state of New Jersey and which are now in litigation.

Report Chance for Agreement.

It was reported that the road's officials are now hopeful that such an agreement can be negotiated this fall.

Under the terms of the debt adjustment plan, which has sufficient assents of bondholders to make it effective at once, maturity dates of three bond issues totaling about $33,500,000 will be extended for 10 years.

The issues involved are $8,500,000 of the Pennsylvania and New York Canal and Railroad consolidated bonds extended from April 1, 1939, to April 1, 1949; the $15,000,000 issue of Lehigh Valley Railway company first mortgage bonds, extended from July 1, 1940 to July 1, 1950, and the $10,000,000 issue of Lehigh Valley Terminal railway first mortgage bonds, extended from Oct. 1, 1941, to Oct. 1, 1951. Bank loans and Reconstruction Finance corporation notes totaling about $16,000,000 are extended to Nov. 1, 1943.

Interest to Be Postponed.

The plan also provides for postponement for five years of 75 per cent of five semi-annual interest payments on $72,300,000 of general consolidated mortgage bonds. The amount of interest to be postponed under the plan is about $5,850,000. Dates of maturities of the five coupons ranged from Nov. 1, 1938, thru Nov. 1, 1940.

This part of the plan will leave the railroad with only the problem of picking up interest charges on these 4 per cent, 4½ per cent and 5 per cent general consolidated series beginning with May of next year. Annual interest requirements for the five series of bonds are slightly less than $3,000,000.

WALWORTH.

What are the products of the Walworth company? Are the company's earnings stable or subject to periodic sharp variations? What dividends did the company pay in the last few years?—L. P.

Answer: Walworth company is the second largest manufacturer of valves, pipe fittings, and pipe tools. Industries that are the main users of its products are oil refining, mining and smelting, chemical, marine equipment, railroad, and construction.

The company was reorganized under the federal bankruptcy act in 1935. The original business was started in 1842.

Altho interest charges on the funded debt were reduced sharply in the reorganization, the company has been able to cover its fixed charges by only a slight margin. In the last four years, the charges were earned on an average of 1.46 times.

Funded debt amounts to $7,778,638. Capital stock consists of 61,411 shares of 6 per cent cumulative preferred stock of $10 par value, and 1,357,632 shares of no par common stock.

Earnings of the company fluctuate acutely in sympathy with the capital goods industries upon which it depends largely.

Consolidated net sales, net income, and earnings per common share were as follows in recent years:

	Net sales.	Net income.	Earned per com. share.
1935	$10,120,000	*$ 270,248	*$0.94
1936	13,766,000	519,218	.40
1937	16,615,000	1,354,301	.98
1938	10,469,000	*1,297,878	*.99

*Loss.

A dividend of 60 cents a preferred share will be paid Au. 15 on stock of record Aug. 1. Arrears on this issue will total 90 cents a share after the payment. The only dividend on the common stock since 1931 was paid in 1937 and consisted of 25 cents and 7/100ths of a preferred share on each share of common stock.

Net income in the first half of 1940 was $203,415, equal after provision for preferred dividends to 14 cents a common share. Net loss in the first half of 1939 was $145,626.

LUSH YEARS.

What was the best year and the second highest year in the life insurance business?—L. B.

Answer: The greatest volume of life insurance in any year was written in 1930, the total amounting to $21,689,000,000. In 1929, the second highest year, $21,078,000,000 was written.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK

Cooler weather and the small available supply of fresh pork in packingtown as a result of recent decreases in butchering were reflected in wholesale markets up 5ρ cents a hundred pounds yesterday.

The broader demand for pork stimulated hog buying, resulting in a recovery of 10 to 15 cents a hundred pounds. Some classes showed as much as 20 and 25 cents advance compared with the low point of the present rise in values. Prices for the session averaged 15 cents higher, at $6.08, the highest daily average since July 19.

Strength to 15 cents higher prices were paid for slaughter lambs.

[All prices are in dollars per 100 pounds.]
